TITHESE Machines have been arranged with the strictest regard to economy, and every exhinery that any person of common intelligence can work them and repair them, in case of accident. It is well known, that on a Railroad a Horse can move a much greater load than in any other manner. This principle has been adopted in these Machines. The horse power is, in fact a moveable Railroad—the weight of the Horse does nearly all the work, and so easily do they run, that when once in good working order, and well greased, it is always necessary to use the brake before they can be stopped.
