BEAUTIFULLY HALUSTRATED by Cusachs, and well worthy of perus. The New York Tribune says of it: "Mr laggard continues to keep out of the beaten track and to write stories which are full of imagination, realistic description, stirring action agination, realistic description, stirring action first and third. Mondays in every month, at 8 p.m., in the Cataraqui O.F. hall, Princess yaal tale, and all the more interesting because | street, it makes us acquainted with a people whose savagery and whose robust powers have together made them the predominant force in Bouth Africa. Episodes in the story stand out as almost perfect bits of graphic narmurder Jess and Neil at the false ford, the scene of the arrest of Bilas Croft, the burning f Monifontein, and the vengeance of pour Jess. The vivid descriptive power shown in Mr. Haggard's previous works is seen at its best here, and the passion and energy of the narrative carry the reader away.

The story is a decidedly captivating one, and not to be put down until the end is reached; a sure proof of the sterling quality of any novel.

On the conclusion of the address, Mr. Oberndorffer was visibly affected. He could not thank his cigar-makers too much for their magnificent present-a The handsomest ties in the city and the portrait of himself-which would always make him look back with pleasure to the many happy hours he had epent with his workmen. In the administration of his affairs, he had always taken into consideration the best welfare of his employees. When Mr Oberndorffer had finished his short speech he received hearty ap plause. A Dishonest Employe.

Edward Flavin, a clerk in the Monc on, N B., sugar refinery company's office, skipped out some days ago, and as he was a young man in receipt of a good salary and had the confidence of his superiors, the officers of the company were at a loss to account for his departure. He left nearly a month's pay due which added to the mystery. A few days around the city yesterday morning while later the firm of A. Gunn & Co., of this in regard to an order for augar placed by them to be delivered at Riviere DuLoup It then transpired that the sugar had been ordered from Flavin and he had received the pay therefor, part in cash, the balance a deaft on the bank of Montreal, which Flavin endorsed with the company's en dorsement and got it cashed The order had never been entered in the company's books. Flavin started for San Francisco, Of a sound mind, is the person who it is said, in company with another young man, and may now be on the Pacific coast. He had been drinking hard just previous to his departure. The amount The Biggest Display in Central Ontario.

What Dr. Fre will do.

Evidently the medical officer at Hamil ton has the same difficulty with the physicians there as Dr. Fee has with them here, judging from the following:-"At the police court this morning the medical A game of baseball was played in the officer of the board of health charged Dr. ing in Mr. Robson's house.
