THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

London, April 25 - Sir John Gorst, parliamentary secretary of the India office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that the Ghazal rebellion is not spreading, and that his troops are meeting with success in their encounters with the rebels.

Mr. Sexton asked Mr. Broderick, conservative, whether in a recent speech he had stated that the "Times" report by Mr. Parnell's letter.

Mr. Broderick answered, "Yes. In addressing any meeting on the subject, I will call the letter Mr. Parnell's in the absence of any action in a court of law to disprove the statement." (Conservative cheer.)

Mr. Sexton asked whether, in view of the fact that Mr. Parnell has discredited the document as a villainous and barbed forgery, Mr. Broderick was not desirous of the privilege in so describing the letter.

Speaker Peck replied that the remarks of Mr. Broderick did not refer to anything done by Mr. Parnell in the house, and therefore the matter did not come under the definition of a breach of privilege.

The house then went into committee on the budget.

Mr. Gladstone contended that the main proposals of the budget were at variance with the principle of economy, and that the budget was a breach of privilege.
