The Appetite

May be increased, the Digestive organs strengthened, and the Bowels regulated, by taking Ayer's Pills. These Pills are purely vegetable in their composition. They contain neither calomel nor any other dangerous drug, and may be taken with perfect safety by persons of all ages.

I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation. I had no appetite, became greatly debilitated, and was constantly afflicted with Headache and Dizziness. I consulted our family doctor, who prescribed for me, at various times, without affording more than temporary relief. I finally commenced taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time my digestion and appetite my bowels were regulated, and, by the time I finished two boxes of these Pills my tendency to headaches had disappeared, and I became strong and well.—Darius M. Logan, Wilmington, Del.

I was troubled, for over a year, with Loss of Appetite, and General Debility. I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, and, before finishing half a box of this medicine, my appetite and strength were restored. —C. C. Clark, Danbury, Conn.

Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered Stomach and Liver. I suffered for over three years with Headache, Indigestion, and Constipation. I had no appetite, and was weak and nervous most of the time.

BY USING

three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and, at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured. My digestive organs are now in good order, and I am in perfect health.—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kans.

Ayer's Pills have benefited me wonderfully. For months I suffered from Indigestion and Headache, was restless at night, and had a bad taste in my mouth every morning. After taking one box of Ayer's Pills, all these troubles disappeared, my food digested well, and my sleep was refreshing.—Henry C. Hemmenway, Rockport, Mass.

I was cured of the Piles by the use of Ayer's Pills. They not only relieved me of that painful disorder, but gave me increased vigor, and restored my health.—John Lazarus, St. John, N. B.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency of disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

AN INGLORIOUS END.

The libel prosecution brought by C. E. George of the Ottawa Free Press against Mr. James Johnson, editor of the Citizen has come to a most inglorious end. The prosecutor did not even dare to go before the grand jury and consequently no bill could be found. Mr. Johnson's counsel accordingly near the close of the court asked that his client should be discharged and that the prosecutor should be ordered to pay his costs. This the judge was of course unable to do as the case was never before him. The counsel for the prosecution, however, stated that his client did not intend to go on with the case and desired to say that he did not believe that the libellous letter had been written by Mr. Johnson. But it may be remembered that in the police court he swore just the opposite of this! Mr. Johnson was never alarmed by the prosecution for he soon discovered that Mr. George knew more about the authorship of it than anyone else. The Citizen yesterday states editorially that the person whom it supposed to be the author of the letter attacking George, and whose card accompanied the letter, had never even seen or heard of it till it appeared in print. He stated that he had left one of his cards in George's office a short time previously. The manuscript of the letter had fortunately been preserved, and on its being shown to a person intimate with George's handwriting, he exclaimed: "That is Geoage's own handwriting." A number of other persons familiar with that individual's writing confirmed this, and experts pronounced it to be by the same hand as other well known writings of George. Unless all these people are mistaken the conclusion is unavoidable that George himself wrote the letter slandering himself and then sought to punish Mr. Johnson for publishing it. One ceases to wonder that the prosecutor was delicate about proceeding before a jury with his case.

The use of another man's card by sending it with a letter to a newspaper for publication reminds one of an exactly similar trick played during the late election contest by which Mr. Farrow was put down for being the author of a letter to the Globe signed "A tory M. P." Newspaper men will need something better than the presence of someone's card to induce them to publish some other libel. We congratulate Brother Johnson on the successful termination of his suit.

THE PRESS GALLERY.

In these days of the rapid growth of the press and the enterprise displayed in the collection of news and the discussion of public questions, the press gallery in the dominion house of commons is deserving of more than passing notice. The writer had the pleasure of recently meeting the gentlemen composing that body and by the courtesy of the officers was extended the privilege of a seat among them during an interesting debate. The press gallery is lower than those in which the public sit and, being immediately over the speaker's chair, is most favorably situated for hearing the speeches on both sides of the house. Its present dimensions have however become too small for the ever increasing number of representatives requiring accommodation, and a movement is on foot to place before the government the necessity of increasing its capacity. The members of the gallery are a splendid body of men, and include many of the brightest minds and readiest and wittiest pens that Canadian journalism can boast of. An excellent esprit de corps prevails among them and they have organized themselves into a society or company with regularly appointed officers elected yearly and which meets from time to time to discuss matters affecting the business concerns or entertainment of the members. They are a gentlemanly lot of fellows who go through their frequently laborious tasks with a cheerfulness not to be exceeded in any other profession. They have well defined ideas of their own collective and individual importance and woe betide the honorable member, aspiring to have his glowing eloquence committed to paper for the admiration of his constituents, should he offend the "gallery." The merciless bore, too, who is on his feet on every opportunity, and persists in delivering long and dull orations, soon receives his punishment at the hands of the reporters. When looking up the report of the debate, he will probably find his hour speech cut down to "Mr. Smith then spoke in favor of the motion, and was followed by, etc." Merely that and nothing more. The present "gallery" is remarkable for the abstemiousness of its members, their libations being, in a large majority of cases, confined to strictly teetotal beverages. The writer came away most favorably impressed with the "gallery," collectively and individually, and hereby tenders them his thanks for the courtesies extended to him during his visit.

O'BRIEN NOT COMING.

So we are not to have Mr. O'Brien of United Ireland after all! Such we conclude will be the result of the settlement arrived at between Lord Lansdowne and his tenants. None will breathe more easily on account of this than those who in general sympathize with the cause of which Mr. O'Brien is so vigorous a champion. Had he carried out his intention of coming to Canada and instituting a campaign against the governor-general, they would have felt themselves pulled in opposite directions. As an earnest and leading home-ruler they would have felt it their duty to receive him with every mark of honor and enthusiasm while at the same time the majority of them would have felt anything but sympathy for or approval of the immediate and particular purpose of his visit. The sentiments expressed by Archbishop Lynch may, we think, be taken as fairly expressing the views of the more conservative and moderate friends of the Irish national movement who saw at once that however reprehensible to their minds might be the conduct of Lord Lansdowne, his representative capacity as viceroy of her majesty was a triple shield to protect him from attack in the manner proposed.

GALLOWAY.

How dear to my head was the Fur Cap of winter,
The nice, curly Cap that now I am fain!
To swop for the Sable and Felted Newcomer,
Which, because it's so light, I return to again.
But, like to the Crofter's thatched hut of Killkenny,
That the soft summer breeze creeps thro' all the day,
Is the welcome Straw Hat because lighter than any,
And cheaper—it costs a quarter in May.

The above soliloquy is forced upon me by the return of Spring, and, as others sing it, let them remember that Galloway sang it first and deserves a call.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggists about it. Sample bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada.

It Is Very Generally

Acknowledged that at this season of the year the system should be toned up and prepared for the strain imposed upon it by the extremely high temperature of our Canadian summers. Experience appears to have demonstrated that the practice is a wise one, so that the important essential is to employ the proper remedy. For impaired appetite, loss of tone, weakness and general debility use wine, beef and iron with quinine. In this elegant preparation are combined the nutritive properties of iron and quinine, wine, beef, and iron, sold only by N C Polson & Co., Kingston, at 50c. and $1 per bottle.

No Uncertainty

About Dr. Dorenwend's "hair magic." It does its work every time. It has done more good and saved more heads of hair than any other preparation in the world. It has produced good crops of hair on bald heads, where every other remedy failed. It restores grey hair to its youthful color and vigor, and eradicates every trace of dandruff; for sale everywhere Take nothing else. A. Dorenwend, sole agent, Toronto. J. G. King and A. P. I Found It a Sure Cure.

I have been troubled with catarrhal deafness for seven or eight years with a roaring noise in my head. I bought medicine in 13 states but nothing helped me till I procured a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. In four days I could hear as well as ever. I am cured of the catarrh as well. I consider Ely's Cream Balm the best medicine ever made.—Garrett Widrick, Hastings, N Y.

Don't Believe It.

Don't believe it when you are told that English oilcloth cannot be bought for less than $1 or $1·25 per yard. We sell J. These oilcloths are in handsome patterns pliable and warranted not to chip off, and will be cut to fit any shaped room or hall at R. McFaul's.

The Right Time.

The months of April and May is the proper season to renovate your system, and we recommend you to get a bottle of Curtis' compound syrup of sarsaparilla, iodide of potassium. This preparation has had the long continued approval of the best physicians, and it is expressly put up to meet the popular need for a blood purifier; only at the City drug store.

THE OURRAN RESOLUTION.

Concluding Portion of Mr. Blakes Speech in Parliament on Friday Last.

Below will be found the concluding portion of the speech delivered by Mr. Blake in the House on Friday:

Then the hon. gentleman brought up the letter attributed to Mr. Parnell, and he declared that the circumstance of that letter being produced was the reason why we ought not to act just now. I have no hesitation in saying that from the moment I read that letter, as well from the general circumstances as from the intrinsic evidence, and from all I know and have learned on the subject, I was convinced that Mr. Parnell never wrote that letter. I do not propose to justify or declare free from absolute suspicion all the course that Mr. Parnell and his friends may, in past times, have taken; but I have ever believed, and I have some opportunities of forming a judgment, derived from sources very remote from Mr. Parnell himself, but still highly authoritative, I have believed for years that there was no man under the control of the British Throne who felt so deep a wound as Mr. Parnell did upon the occasion of the massacre of those two gentlemen in Phœnix Park. It is perfectly obvious that just at that moment there was a crisis in the sentiment of England as to the Irish affairs, destined, as far as we could see, to be propitious; it is obvious that the aims and objects towards which Mr. Parnell had been tending were apparently approaching some measure of consummation, and no man, with the slightest grain of common sense, could doubt that the effect of that dreadful and horrid murder, that awful tragedy, would be to blight all these fair prospects and to replace them by a fresh and stringent Coercion Act! Who is there who does not know that the obstacle to the remedy and to the relief for Ireland for many years has been the block of public opinion in England and Scotland? And who could not tell such a transaction was the very thing to shock such opinion and render, perhaps, a Coercion Act the only act you could propose to the Imperial Legislature. Therefore, altogether apart from those feelings of head and heart, which, I am convinced, would have caused Mr. Parnell to shun and deprecate and dread and have naught to do with such a dreadful deed, those who charge him with the slightest complicity in, or favor of, this deed must give him very little credit indeed for the qualities he possesses, in a very uncommon measure, of shrewdness, steadiness, sound judgment, far-sightedness, and a persistent, steady, but not impulsive, determination. Therefore the whole thing is, I think, unworthy of the great journal in which it appeared, and very much more unworthy to be repeated here as a reason why we should stay our hands to seek relief for the Irish people. But another name, after all, is concerned than Mr. Parnell's in the effort to stay the hand of the Imperial Parliament in passing this bill—the great name of Gladstone. Therefore, from that point of view, we are to remember that it is not merely the chief of the Irish Parliamentary party who is posting, but the chief of the great body of English Liberals, the man whose illustrious life, if it be but prolonged some few years, we may hope will be crowned by a great measure of justice to Ireland. Then the hon. gentleman dragged into the controversy the question of the announced visit of Mr. O'Brien here, to discuss some particular cases of eviction. I do not really see that that has anything to do with the question. I regret, if it be the case, that that particular visit, with that particular purpose, is to take place. I think it would be a mistake on the part of those in Canada who desire, as all true friends of Ireland must desire, to avoid any circumstances which may chill the sympathies of the other classes of the population—I say they would act wisely if they would defer or end that visit. I am not here to enter. I think it would be hardly decent to enter, into the slightest discussion of the transactions concerning the tenantry of the illustrious nobleman, with whose case Mr. O'Brien proposes to deal. He is here in a representative capacity. He is the representative of our Sovereign, and I think that if there be examples of evil-dealings on the part of landlords with tenants, those examples which might be presented with the best proof, and with least possible difficulty resulting to the Canadian people would be examples drawn from other estates than those drawn from those of the Governor-General. While I say that, I regretted to hear the observation of the hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. O'Brien). He said, alluding to a statement which I observe in the papers, that the Government of the day has called that Mr. O'Brien will be under police surveillance if he should come here, that he would be more in need of police protection. I do not believe that, if Mr. O'Brien came here, he would require either police surveillance or police protection. I am delighted to be able to say that we have been able to discuss this exciting question in communities in which there is a very great difference of opinion upon it, in the most satisfactory way, without one particle of disturbance. We have had great meetings in the city from which I come on both sides of the question. The views which have been brought forward on each side have been heard without disturbance, without any attempt to prevent the free utterance and expression of the views of each side. The people have been informed of what the views of each side were, and a great step has been gained in the way of tolerant discussion and proper handling of exciting questions. I have no doubt that, in whatever taste we may consider the visit of Mr. O'Brien and his discussion of the affairs of one particular landlord to be, he will have in Canada—I hope so, at any rate—freedom of speech; he will not be, in the first place, under police surveillance, and, in the next place, that he will require no police protection to enable him to say his say, whatever that say may be. I hope that we shall not import anything of that description which is suggested by the hon. gentleman into our dealing with this matter; but it is of a piece with some other suggestions. We are told by the hon. gentleman, dealing with the question of Home Rule, that Home Rule such as is indicated cannot be obtained without civil war. The advocates of peace, of law, of order declare by their spokesmen here that they will not obey a law of the Imperial Parliament should such a law be passed, and the reason is, forsooth, that the Irish are not a homogeneous people. No, they are not a homogeneous people; but a people not homogeneous has lived in peace and amity, in personal, in social, in political relations as one country often before; and although I am not here to deny that the bitterness of this long controversy, complicated as it has been by differences of race, by differences of creed, more and most of all by the land question, and the fact that you have a minority of one race and one creed very largely the possessors of the soil and a majority of another race and another creed who are tenants of theirs under very exceptional circumstances, still we have to trust to the Irish people to manage this matter. I do not speak of the Irish people in the sense of the Irish Roman Catholics—I say the whole Irish people I regard them as one people after all, and I have no doubt, for my part, that an example of tolerance, of generosity, of magnanimity will be set by the numerical majority, and that their natural measure of ascendency due, not to their possessions but to their intelligence, their education and their power, will be awarded with a liberal hand to the minority when the measure of Home Rule takes place. These prophets of civil war said something of the same kind when the church disestablishment question was in vogue. We were told that the waters of the Boyne were to be reddened with blood; but the church was disestablished and there was not a shot fired. All was peace, and I believe the cause of Protestantism and the cause of religion benefited greatly. They say that separation is the goal. You may make separation the goal if you persist. It may be that the Irish people may at last despair, as many of them have despaired in the past, and that despair may produce the feeling to which hon. gentlemen referred when they spoke of that feeling of hostility. But I say that separation is not now the goal of the mass of the Irish people. They are simply making a demand for those rights which are their due, for a fair share of self-government and a tolerable condition of existence upon the soil upon which they were born, and on which they desire to live. I ask you to listen to the eloquent words in which Mr. Gladstone combatted this argument, because I know it is a plausible and specious one, and I believe that to agree in it would be fatal to the cause it would be designed to serve. If we shrink on this ground, we will be sure to precipitate some effort, abortive it may be, but hardly less calamitous, towards the separation which you dread. Mr. Gladstone says:

So I say that those considerations which do most deeply affect us all, which affect us all, as I pointed out the other day, in our material condition, which affect our own relations to the power adjoining us, the maintenance of amity and cordiality which ought to be one of the highest objects, as long as it can be honorably obtained, of Canadian statesmanship, which affects us as citizens of the Empire in respect to which we are partners in its prosperity and sharers in its shame those considerations do justify, may, I will add that they demand, our action now in such sort as may further the cause which stands in such a critical position to-day. I believe that, if this ill-omened measure which we repudiate should become the law of the land, a period of difficulty and distress for Ireland and for all of us hardly exampled before will supervene. Let us, then, do our feeble best to avert it. I believe that the postponement for any long period of a measure of Home Rule will make that measure much less valuable for the great and chief purpose for which we hope to see it accomplished, for the restoration of the bonds of affection and concord and amity and friendship between the two Islands; and therefore let us do what we can to avert the ill, let us do what in us lies to procure the good.

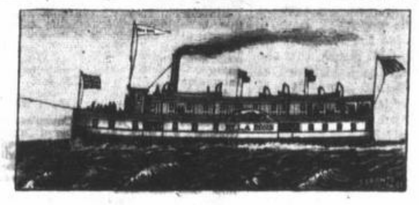
Opposite the City Hotel. 132 and 134 Princess street.



The Iron Palace Passenger Steamer ELLA ROSS (Capt. W. Garrett) will begin her regular weekly excursion trips about the middle of May—from Montreal via Ottawa and Rideau Canal to Kingston, and thence down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, running all the Rapids, and passing through the matchless scenery of the Rideau Lakes, and 1,000 Islands by daylight. The Ella Ross will remain over Sunday at the 1,000 Island Park (calling at Alexandria Bay each Monday morning). The Ella Ross is the only passenger steamer making the round trip. Only $14 for the round trip; meals and berths included. Those wishing to make this trip had better do so early in the spring, as the accommodation is limited. JAS. SWIFT, Agent.

CATARRH OF MANY YEARS' STANDING CURED

Dr. N. Washington, Throat and Lung Surgeon, Toronto

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to express my entire satisfaction at the results of your "new method" of inhalation, which has cured me of a very troublesome form of Catarrh. In fact, all the usual remedies failed to give me any relief, but your Treatment, from the first, gave me great ease and in a few months entirely cured me of a most annoying disease. I can honestly recommend any who may be suffering as I was, to your skilful consideration. Yours truly,

GEO. GOULDING, G. TURNBULL, Galt; and W. H. STOREY & SON, Acton.

To those who like

A GOOD CUP OF TEA,

Ask for and drink only

REDDEN'S

CHINESE MIXTURE.

Drink it alone, it is pure, and therefore cheap It is much stronger than any other tea, and the same quantity must not be used—two teaspoonfuls will go as far as three of other sorts, therefore it is much more economic.
