THE WATER WORKS.

Conclusion of the Testimony for the Company—An Adjournment.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the water works arbitration, Mr. Hewett, plumber for the company, testified. His figures for rock excavation were $3 79 per yard, and 75c. for clay. His familiarity with the ground in the city was remarkable. The iron pipes were not much rusted either inside or out. One on Brock street had been eaten away by acid from a silver-plating establishment. Witness was cross-examined at length.

H. B. Savage testified that he estimated the painting to be worth between $500 and $600. He calculated on one and two coats.

Robert Carroll of the Kingston foundry, valued the beam engine and pump at $2,834, the double pumps at $1,194, and the new boilers in position at $2,400. The boilers cost about $1,400 each, and had been used by the cotton mill. One was damaged, but was repaired. The iron being bowline, it is double thick and the boilers are worth doubly as much as ordinary boilers. The horizontal engine which is 12 years old, is worth $1,100, and its two boilers $400. The new duplex engine he valued at $7,000, and the vault at $1,000. The boilers now in use are as good as new. Boilers will last from 15 to 20 years.

Jno McIntyre, Q C., testified that the lot next to the waterworks belonged to either Mr. Pratt or Mrs. McIntyre and it was considered to be worth $2,000.

In reply to some bantering questions the learned Q C stated that he supposed he might have been a judge had he applied for the position. Regret was then expressed that the country should draw so many eminent men from Kingston. The lawyers indulged in considerable fun.

The arbitration then adjourned for ten days, to allow the city to make out its case and secure witnesses.

The total valuation of the company's plant and property is a trifle over $160,000, which sum does not include the franchise. A prominent citizen said he would be greatly suprised if the award was not over $140,000. Is the city prepared to pay that sum for the works?

Penitentiary Officers' Salaries.

The Hon. Mr. Thompson has given notice of a series of resolutions fixing the salaries of the officers of the penitentiaries and superannuation allowance of officers of good conduct who may be compelled to retire in consequence of infirmity. The salaries of wardens range in the different penitentiaries from $2,000 in British Columbia, to $2 600 at Kingston, with yearly increases of $50 for eight years in each case. The retiring allowance of an officer who is not entitled to a superannuation allowance is to be calculated at half a month's salary for each year of his services up to five years and a month's salary for each year of service in excess of that period. Other provisions are made to cover the case of death or the total disablement of an officer through injuries received by him in the performance of his duty.

Games of Baseball Played Yesterday—The Scores.

BUFFALO, April 29.—At Washington to-day the opening of the league season was marked by much unpleasantness in the latter part of the game. Radbourne was injured and wanted to retire, but the Washington people wouldn't permit it, and a lengthy wrangle ensued, ending finally in Radbourne going off and Sweeney coming on, and, after much delay, the game proceeded; but it was finally terminated after the sixth innings owing to darkness, the visitors having in that time completely outbatted and outplayed the Senators. Score:

Washington	0 2 0 1 1 0 —	4	7	5
Boston	0 0 2 2 4 1 —	9	11	1

Pitchers, Radbourne and Sweeney for Boston and Whitney for Washington.

At New York the Giants won their second victory from the Philadelphias by better batting and superior fielding, although the game was closely contested up to the very last inning and neither club could secure a decided advantage. Casey carved with his old-time skill, but was at times somewhat erratic, while Welch did not find the new rules hamper him very greatly. Score:

New York	1 0 0 2 0 2 0 0 2 —	7	13	1
Philadelphia	0 2 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 —	4	11	5

Batteries Welch and Beasley, Casey and McGuire.

At Indianapolis Detroit had a hard tussle to win against the home club and only succeeded in obtaining honors through costly errors in the seventh innings. Both teams batted steadily, but the weather was such as to prevent any specially good field work. Weidman and Briody did good battery work for the Detroits, while Kirby pitched a good game, well supported by Hackett, for the home team. Score:

Indianapolis	1 0 0 0 1 4 0 2 0 —	8	10	6
Detroit	0 2 2 0 1 0 2 3 0 —	10	11	6

There was no game at Pittsburg. The grounds were too wet and rain in the afternoon makes it improbable they will be in a condition to be used to-morrow. There was no game at Philadelphia, rain preventing.

At Baltimore Phenomenal Smith was too much for the Metropolitans and the Orioles lost batted Shaffeer (who pitched for the Mets) as they pleased. The game was very much a one-sided affair. Score:

Baltimore	5 0 3 0 3 2 1 —	14	20	3
Metropolitans	3 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 —	4	6	5

The International Season.

BUFFALO, April 29.—Advices from international cities are of a gloomy tendency as regards favorable weather for the opening games of the season. The most interest seems to be given to the games at Syracuse and Jersey City, the game at the latter place having to all appearances dismissed all doubt as to the result of other games.

The One Thousand Guineas.

LONDON, April 29.—There were twelve starters in the race for the 1,000 guineas stakes for three-year old fillies at Newmarket to-day. The Duke of Beaufort's Reve D'Or won Perkins' Porcelain was second, and the Duke of Westminster's Freedom third.

Dust from the Diamond.

The International League season opens today with these games: Toronto at Syracuse, Hamilton at Oswego, Buffalo at Newark, Rochester at Jersey City, and Binghamton at Utica. Newark, Hamilton and Utica are the only sure winners on paper, and even in this estimate the tables may be turned. Jersey City will probably get away with Rochester, and Toronto, according to Manager Cushman, is certain to down Syracuse. It is a hard combination to pick out.

The Daily Canadian Gazette, after a fortnight's existence, ceased publication on Thursday. O. P. Caylor puts it thus: "If we have had a brief existence, it has been hilarious and rich."

"Tip" O'Neill's batting under the new rules so far is not up to his splendid work of last season.

President J. S. Cox, Toronto Baseball Association, left yesterday afternoon for Syracuse to witness the Toronto-Syracuse opening match.

Railway Leases.

Boston, April 30.—In regard to the reported lease of the Boston & Lowell railway to the Boston & Maine, General Manager Furbur, of the B & M, said that it was true that the directors of both roads had reached an agreement on the terms of the lease. In regard to the connecting roads Mr. Furber said: "The Passumpsic railway is leased to the Boston and Lowell, and the lease is assignable. It will be transferred to the Boston and Maine. A lease of the Northern has been agreed upon provided the legislature of New Hampshire will authorize it to be made. The Boston, Concord and Montreal is leased to the Boston & Lowell but the stockholders have applied to the courts to have the lease declared invalid. The Nashua and Lowell is leased to the Boston and Lowell but the leasen is not assignable without the consent of the Nashua and Lowell. The Boston and Maine will control the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain which extends from Swanton, Vt., to Whitefield, N.H."

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

A DULL DAY AFTER THE PARTY FIGHT.

Figuring on the Result of the Division—Bills and Amendments Announcements from the 'Gazette.'

OTTAWA, April 29.—There was not enough fight left in the House to-day to make it worth while holding a session. Everybody wanted to talk about the division of last night and most of the representatives were sleepy and tired. Sir John had such a bad cold that he could scarcely speak and Mr. Davin had his hair parted ambidextrously and did not care to speak at all, while when Mr. Welsh of Prince Edward Island rose to the surface he was promptly muffled out. Mr. Blake was absent, having left for Toronto along with Mr. Denison, Mr. Brown of Hamilton and a lot of others by the noon train. The House was half empty, the galleries almost entirely so.

Some private bills were introduced: To incorporate the Berlin and Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the New Westminster and Southern Railway Company, respecting the Regina and Wood Mountain Railway Company, and to amend the act incorporating the Hamilton, Guelph and Buffalo Railway, and to change the name of the Hamilton Central.

Then, it being Government day, Government bills were taken up. Sir John introduced his bill respecting the Department of Customs and the Department of Inland Revenue, and with too bad a cold to talk much, Sir John explained that the two departments mentioned were to a great extent administrative, only it was intended in time to have them become part of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Jamieson's bill to amend the Canada Temperance Act, in order to make it apply to British Columbia and to other unorganized districts, brought Mr. Mills to his feet. He charged the Government with shirking their duty in giving this bill to a private member, taunted them with having no policy on this great question directly affecting the revenue of the country, excoriated Mr. Foster for being, as he said, afraid to act up to the principles he held before going into the Government and in general thrashed around quite lively for so dull a day. However, nobody had energy enough to reply and the motion passed.

Hon. Mr. Thompson introduced his bill to make provision for the appointment of a Solicitor-General. In speaking to the motion he explained that the effect would be not only to establish that officer, but to provide that he shall do counsel work and such other duties as the Governor-General-in-Council might allot him; that he will be eligible to a seat in either House, that a new department would not be created and that the Solicitor-General need not necessarily be a member of the Cabinet.

Hon. Mr. McLelan moved the second reading of the bill to amend the act respecting public officers. It simply provides that in addition to the security that may now be accepted for the faithful performance of duty, the Government can take an assignment of all moneys standing to the credit of the person concerned in the Postoffice Savings Bank. As there was nothing in this to fight about it was allowed to pass, but the Opposition policy of attacking everything could stand the strain no longer.

Sir John Macdonald moved the second reading of the bill creating the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Sir Richard Cartwright took the floor. He held that there should be less ministers of the first rank and more under-secretaries, after the English system.

Mr. Mills said they were making the system of government unwieldy. He took the opposite view from Sir Richard Cartwright, and advocated the Italian system.

Sir John said they might reconcile their differences as best they could, and in the meantime, as they did not propose to amend the British North America Act, they might go on with the bill. Carried.

Hon. Mr. Pope's bill to amend the Government Railways Act created only a slight discussion. The object is to facilitate the crossing of other lines of railway for long distance trains, which is to be done by a system of interlocking switches now successfully operated on several lines of railway in the United States, by which the train goes through without stopping. Mr. Pope explained that if the system was found to be dangerous it would be dropped at once. The present bill applies only to Government railways, but another measure will be introduced applying it to all through lines.

Next came the Banff National Park Bill and the flood gates of eloquence were let loose for the first time this session.

Hon. Peter Mitchell agreed with the Government and made a neat little speech in support of the bill.

It passed its second reading after a lot of talk. But by this time the lethargy had worn off, and when Sir John Macdonald moved the second reading of the bill to give the territories senatorial representation the House laid off its coat, spat on its hands and went in, as the poet hath said,

When coats went off and all went in,
Shouts and bad language swelled the din.

Mr. Mills charged the Government with increasing the expenses of government uselessly.

Sir John said if the Opposition would practice economy in the matter of asking for useless returns, enough money would be saved to give the territories a dozen senators. Sir Richard Cartwright said the Senate was a perfectly useless and worthless body of partisans.

Mr. Charlton applied so many bad names to the Senate that Mr. McNeill had him called to order.

Then the talk drifted from senatorial representation to the results of the election. The Opposition charged the Government with everything bad under the sun, from intimidation to bribery and corruption, and Sir John took it out of them by taunting them with having been perfectly sure of carrying the country, with having intimidated civil servants and purchased support by promises of what they would do when they got into power, and made fun of them for getting so badly sold. The Opposition speakers admitted that they had believed the country would declare in their favor and believed now that it would if the election had been honestly conducted.

Mr. Jones was the last speaker, and when it came to 6 o'clock an irreverent Tory advised him to haul down that flag.

Mr. Welsh got on his feet, but Sir John asked them to pass the second reading and resume the debate when they went into committee, as he did not want to have a night session. This was agreed to and the House adjourned. Altogether it was a nice, lively debate, having for the greater part nothing to do with the measure before the House. When Sir John was speaking he created lots of fun.

Sir Charles Tupper got off a pretty good thing, too. Sir Richard Cartwright has been pestering him for a week as to when the budget speech may be expected. To-day he renewed the question.

Sir Charles Tupper solemnly replied that he hoped early next week to be able to tell the probable time the budget speech might be expected.

Mr. Davies, the Prince Edward Island leader, reached the capital to-day and received a warm welcome from the Opposition.

Judge Kingsmill, Alex. Shaw, Q.C., and Mayor Stovel of Walkerton, part of the Mount Forest and Inverhuron Railway deputation, are still here. Their line proposes to run from Mount Forest through Walkerton to Inverhuron. This would give the most direct route established between Toronto and the Sault Ste Marie and the Lake Superior ports, with a harbor at Inverhuron that they claim is the best on Lake Huron and the Georgian Bay.

Mr. Fremont, editor of La Presse, Mr. Chapleau's strongest supporter, is in town consulting with the Secretary of State.

Mr. Bowell laid on the table this afternoon a return showing the copyright duties collected between Oct. 1, 1868, and March 31, 1887, on foreign reprints of copyrighted works—the total amount collected was $9123, of which $7341 has been remitted to the Imperial authorities to be distributed among the authors.

A deputation from Montreal, consisting of Messrs. H. McLennan, G. M. Kingsmill and Cowan, waited upon the Minister of Railroads this morning and asked that the new short line railroad be extended a mile and a half beyond its proposed eastern terminus in order to connect with a branch line, fifteen miles long, thereby making a through line of communication to the coal regions of Nova Scotia.

His Excellency the Governor-General has summoned Ouse De Aksesulaleti (Mr. F. R. E. Campeau) the Grand Honorary Chief and plenipotentiary of the Huron tribe, to enquire into some of the particulars with regard to the claim set forth for a grant of land made by the French Government to the tribe in 1650. His Excellency promised to lay the matter before the Indian Department.

A deputation of fruit merchants from Montreal waited upon Sir Charles Tupper this morning to press for a reduction of the duties upon imported fruit. In support of their request they argue that no Canadian industries will be affected by the reduction and that the perishable nature of the goods makes it very difficult to profitably handle imported fruit with the present duties.

Before the Standing Orders Committee this morning a petition was presented asking that the Southeastern Railway, a controlling interest in which is owned by the Canadian Pacific, be sold and the assets divided equally between the bondholders and creditors. A deputation from Montreal waited upon the Finance Minister this morning to urge a reduction in the duties of pig iron.

The Opposition held a caucus this forenoon, which was attended by the full strength of the party. The further steps to be taken in the Queen's County case and the renewal of the attack upon the returning officers were discussed.

Mr. Laurier gives notice to-night that on Wednesday next he will move that in the opinion of this House it is expedient to repeal the Franchise Act and to revert to the plan which had been followed from confederation up to the enacting of the said act, of utilizing for the elections of this House the provincial franchise and voters' lists.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

Schnaebeles Released and Re-arrested—Fighting the Crimes Bill.

LONDON, April 29.—The House of Commons this afternoon went into Committee on the Irish Crimes Act Amendment Bill.

Mr. T. M. Healy proposed that the word offence in the act should be changed to the word "crime."

Mr. Dillon and Mr. Bradlaugh supported the proposal.

Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, declined, on behalf of the Government, to accept the change.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt said it was evident that the bill was not intended to punish crime in Ireland but designed for applying penalties by the resident magistrates to new offences created by the bill.

Mr. Gladstone advised the Government to concede Mr. Healy's amendment. The word offence could not be held to be strictly synonymous with the word "crime" in the bill. If the Government desired a strictly legal use of the measure they would accept accurate definitions. A division was taken and the amendment was defeated by a vote of 157 to 120.

THE CRIMES ACT RETROSPECTIVE

Landon, April 30.—When parliament was in committee on the crimes bill last night, Dr. Commins, liberal, moved that the crimes act should not be retrospective. Mr. Healy, in supporting the motion, said he would advise his countrymen to refuse to answer summonses under the clause if the act were made retrospective. The amendment was negatived without a division.

TERMS OF RECONCILIATION.

Vienna, April 30.—The Tagblatt says: "The vatican favors the following conditions for a reconciliation with the quirinal: First, the pope will advise the royal archducal and ducal families of Naples, Tuscany and Madena to renounce all claims to sovereignty in favor of the holy see; second, the pope will crown Humbert king, granting him and his catholic descendents territory in Italy in fief; third, the king will govern the whole kingdom with full temporal rights, but will acknowledge the pope as suzerain and pledge himself to rule according to the dictates of the church; fourth, the king will reside in Rome; fifth, a territory including Leonine city and part of the Tiber shore will be allotted permanently to the pope with absolute reigning and proprietary rights; sixth, a special convention will be concluded fixing the amount Italy shall pay to maintain the papal household.

SCHNAEBELES AGAIN ARRESTED.

Paris, April 30.—M. Schnaebele, who was released from prison yesterday by order of Germany, and who at once departed from Metz, where he was incarcerated, arrived at midnight at Pagny sur-Moselle, where he was arrested. His wife and son met him at the station, where were also assembled the whole populace of the town, headed by all the officers of the municipality. M. Schnaebeles was given an ovation by the crowd, who cried out: "Vive la France," "Vive Schnaebeles" After a short stop, Schnaebeles proceeded to Paris. He declined to be interviewed by members of the press. He declared that he he had been well treated by the Germans.

The Canadian Resolutions.

LONDON, April 29.—Nearly all of yesterday's papers alluded to the resolutions adopted in the Canadian Parliament protesting against the passage of the Crimes Act for Ireland.

The Globe blames Mr. Blake for taking part in a meddlesome proceeding, from which he and other Canadian Liberals should have held themselves aloof. As it is, they have greatly discredited themselves.

St. James' Gazette asks what the Canadians would say if the Imperial House of Commons passed a resolution approving of the repeal agitation in Nova Scotia. The Gazette thinks that the Canadian Parliament should have let the matter alone.

The Evening News refers to the resolutions as "aimless," and of the "school debating society" order.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Irish vote is a permanent factor in colonial politics. The Gazette approves of the resolutions.

The Pacific Mail Service.

LONDON, April 29.—In the House of Lords to-night the Earl of Harrowley asked for information regarding the decision of the Government on the proposal of the Canadian Government to establish a line of mail steamers between Vancouver and China.

The Earl of Onslow, Parliamentary Secretary of the Colonial Office, replied that the committee to whom the matter was referred had declined to recommend a subsidy of $300,000 for the proposed service of a steamer every three weeks, but was considering the advisability of granting a subsidy of $300,000 for a monthly service, Canada to contribute also.

Lord Carnarvon urged that a subsidy be granted. He said that if England did not assist the enterprise the advantage of the route would pass into the hands of another power.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

University Endowment.

[To the Editor of THE DAILY NEWS.]

Dear sir,—I cannot tell you what a load has been lifted from the hearts of those most closely identified with Queen's by the large sums so generously donated by prominent citizens of Kingston. To the endowment fund of 1878 Kingston subscribed $40,000. As several of the gentlemen who have now subscribed have seen their way to multiply their former subscriptions by five, it would seem as if Kingston alone, on that reckoning, would give the very handsome sum of $200,000. There must surely be something wrong in my calculation, and yet, when I studied arithmetic, I was told that five times four is twenty. I think five times four is still twenty, but I shall ask my colleague, Professor Dupuis, who knows all about those things. Now outsiders gave to the former endowment $100,000, and this I multiply by five and I get the sum of $500,000. The new endowment fund will therefore consist of $700,000, if there is any virtue in my arithmetic Q E D. Now there are people, I have no doubt, who would ask what we could possibly do with all that money. There are some people who are always bothering one with conundrums. But I shall try to answer them to the best of my ability.

I cannot think that gentlemen who talk of making the university of Toronto, even with its income of $100,000, second to none on this continent, quite realize what they are saying. What makes a university strong? I suppose it is the amount of valuable work done by its teaching staff. Now, Harvard university has about 150 teachers. Let us say, extravagantly, that Toronto will have 50. Is it seriously meant that those are equal to 150 Harvard professors? I have the highest possible respect for the gentlemen who compose the staff of our sister university, some of whom are personal friends of my own, but I do not think that each of them is equal to three Americans. It used to be claimed that an Englishman could whip three Frenchmen, but I never heard that a Canadian could whip three full grown Yankees. I think it would be very strange if any professor of the new Toronto university should do more work than we of Queen's. If he does, I pity him. There will be a continual change in the professoriate to fill up the places of those who have dropped from the ranks. Let us be modest, and say that a Canadian professor is only equal to two American professors. Even then Toronto will be 50 professors behind.

Why should Harvard have so large a staff? The reason is simply this, that Harvard tries to fulfil the complete functions of a university. A university in its ideal is an institution in which all the branches of human knowledge are taught by men who have made a special study of them. No Canadian university can hope to rival Harvard or John Hopkins in less than two or three hundred years. But the time has come when every Canadian university should refuse to be satisfied with fewer teachers than are needed to carry out the very modest aim of putting within reach of everyone education in the main branches of knowledge. This cannot be done thoroughly by us unless our staff is increased in the arts department by at least half a dozen new teachers. Knowing that, it is delightful to find that the citizens of Kingston are going to do so much better than could have been expected.

I cannot refrain from saying that, if our friends only do their best, we shall have no dread of coping with our wealthier sister in Toronto. Only those who are familiar with academic matters can tell how disheartening and crushing it is to struggle on doing a little, knowing how much more might be done, if only one had the funds. We have in Dr. Grant a man of high ideals, who knows what a university should be, and who, as I believe, more than any man in this country, is competent to carry out his ideal, if only he had the sinews of war. But not even the intensest love of teaching will enable a man to live on nothing, and if we are to have a well-equipped institution, we simply must have the money needed. I will take this opportunity of saying, what I feel certain Principal Grant would not permit me to say were I not doing it entirely on my own responsibility, that it is unfair to a man of his supreme faculty of organization to expect him to devote his energies to a badly endowed institution. He is fitted for greater things. I have often felt sore at heart, when I found him at times despondent of the future, and reflected that were the means at his command at all equal to his ability to use them for worthy ends, we should soon have in Queen's a university that even the most ungenerous of the friends of our rival would have to confess was equal to their own. Is it too much to ask that on this, which is "positively the last" appeal to their generosity, those friends of the university who on a former occasion so generously helped her in her hour of need, will follow the lead of the public spirited gentlemen who have already done so well, and make their subscriptions as much beyond the sums they formerly gave as they are able to afford. I have written this without consulting anybody. To ask people to give money is a thing from which I shrink with an uncontrollable shrinking, and I have only brought myself to do so now from a sense of the supreme gravity of the present crisis. JOHN WATSON.
