LEWIS W. SHANNON,

MR. WIMAN ON COMMERCIAL UNION

It is becoming very evident that Mr. Erastus Wiman is exceedingly anxious to air his crude ideas in print, and a per usal of a recent letter to Valancey E Fuller, president of the Wentworth farmers' institute, is not calculated to raise him in the opinion of any sensible reader. He declares that Lord Salisbury's pro posed settlement of the fisheries question by letting the Americans have full enjoyment of our fishing grounds in return for their removing the duty on fish imported from Canada "seems like divine intervention !" We need scarce. that badly off for immigrants. stop to criticize such statement: Lord Salisbury's proposal is intended only as a temporary measure pending pegotiations, and to prevent in the meantime the irritation necessarily incident to a continuance of last year's experience. A resident by choice of a and then a long Latin cross would be made much more highly protected country than in the soil and probab'y stuck into it. 'A Canada, he utters a puerile sneer at our few week ago, however, it was turfed tariff policy which, in the language of over by orders frem the board of works, Goldwin Smith, he says, "is an attempt t get rich by taxation, lifting himself by h s boot straps, as it were," and he adds. certainly if a community can get rich by taxation, these gentlemen (the delegations which recently waited on the finance minister for a readjustment of duties) possess the remedy, for it follows that the greater the taxes the greater the riches." This is merely a feeble echo of some of the free trade platitudes to which we were treated so lavishly in 1878 and 1882. It exhibits his superficial acquaintance with the matter he attempts to discuss. He might as well argue that because an ox will get fat by cating, therefore the more he cats the tatter he will become. But over feeding will stoken if not kill him. Besides it is a misuse of words to call a protective duly 'taxation." It may or may not become so depending on whether it is wisely or foolishly imposed. It can be regarded as necessarily "taxation", only on the assumption that it is the importer who pays the duty. If so it is the American consumer who pays the duty now imposed by his government on Canadian fish. All he has to do is to apply to congress to have the duty on fish abolished. Canada would, cerned as to whether there was or was not a duty on our fish export. Yet he thinks that Salisbury's proposal to bribe congress into abclishing that duty, fishing grounds, is a like "a divine intervention!" Just think of our giving away our fisheries to induce the American government to-relieve its own zens from "taxation," and for any one to call so stupid an act a divine intervention! Again he tilks about Canada becoming "self-poised by a commercial phone company, for example, sells to day union." We confess we do not see what he means. To "poise" is to balance; self-poised must therefore mean "selfbalanced"-that is, Canada is going, by to the item referred to. C. F. Sise, means of commercial union, to balance herself! He indulges in most extravi-gant language. By adopting commercial union, Canada can, he says, "at ore bound become the most envied of all nztions in the world." Rubbish

Shy were the picturesque garland-shaped diadem of the Plantagenet sovereigns, only in a lighter orm, composed of very fine brilliants cet ransparently, which, from the absence of color and pellucid brightness resembled a wreath of hawthorn blossoms covered with tremulous dewdrops. Surely never did British sovereign receive inauguration imposing. Yet she appeared serene and self possessed when she arcse from her private devotions and seated herself which her lovely train-bearers were grouped in their perfect costumes of white satin and garlands of blush roses."

The Cleveland Leader prays for the day Oshawa; W. when Canada will present as great attractions to lumigrants as Uncle Sam, so that the constantly increasing atreams of westward-bound anarchists, socialists, nihilists and rebels of all sorts now swarming into the large cities of the United States may cast longing glances at our fair fields and pastures green. The statement there made is so much at variance with the facts of the case, that the public may be misled and I am quite sura that you will willingly correct

In the first place, the company referred to is the American Bell telephone company of Boston, and not the Bell telephone company of Canada, which is an entirely different and independent corporation, owning its patents and operating its own exchanges and lines.

Secondly, the American Bell telephone company, operating no exchanges, is not interested in the question of placing our wires underground.

Thirdly, the dividends of the Bell telephone company of Canada since its organization seven years ago, have not averaged over five per cent per annum. Fourthly, the statement made as to the "cost of operating" in the item referred to is incorrect. The annual statement of the American Bell telephone company gives revenue and expenses as follows:according to that theory, be quite uncon- | Receipts, $3,097,000; expenses, $1,149. 717; net revenue, $1.947.283, making the actual expenses $888,749 greater than stated by you. Mr. James McEwan, of Drayton, heartily endorsed the resolution, believing that with reciprocity times would be greatly improved. This feeling was widespread among farmers, Col. Campbell thought the time was at hand when the farmers of this country should call upon the Government to take measures for the carrying out of more amicable trade relations with the United States. Some might accuse him of disloyalty for holding such news, but if it came to a question of Queen and country, his position would soon be as-

Chairman Fuller called upon Mr. Anderson to take the chair while he spoke on the question. He referred to Mr. Wiman's message to him, which he had answered as a private individual, and he thought the executive officers should be empowered to carry the matter further. His business was carried on mostly with the United States, and if those opposed to reciprocity knew the amount of trade which might be carried on if commercial restrictions were, withdrawn, It is the duty of every person who has I there would not be one dissenter. He had s little too much British blood in him to throw himself at the foot of Congress, and he would not support the resolution. He had advocated Canadian menufacturing interests in the past, but he believed that these interests now take care of themselves. The consideration of the matter was premature.

Mr. D. R. Ellis thought that now was the proper time. [Cries of hear, hear]. Mr. James Cochrano submitted the following addition to the amendment : That in the event of fallure to obtain reciprocity between the United States and the Dunitalian Govern-ment, the Imperial Parliament be asked for such trade relations as would admit colonial goods free of duty and place a heavy tax on foreign food supplies.
