Mr Powers was cross-questioned at considerable length by Mr. Whiting on the rock and clay excavations made at the new central school. Mr. Power having estimated that where the mains are there in three quarter rock. On William street, between King and Barrie there is little or no rock. From Clarence to Queen or Bago', there is an average depth of a foot of rock. Mr. Whiting said that Mr. Power's statement as to rock on the streets was not made from any data, but from recollection. Mr. F. C. Ireland, city chamberlain identified a number of accounts which have been paid by the city for work done on hydrants, and a copy of a statement which he had furnished Mr. Wilson. Mr. R. Carroll was re-called. He said that the city had paid Davidson & Doran $60 each for hydrants. Cast iron pipes for the hydrants had been charged at five cen's per pound. He was present at the test of an old eight inch pipe now at the works, which had been in use for thirtyfive years, and it had stood a test of be tween 400 and 500 pounds. In answer slabs, $3 per cord; dry soft wood and to a question, he said that the gauge during the test was not as ateady as it might have been. Mr. Kirkpatrick here said that another test in the presence of Mr. Keefer would be made. In answer to a question by Mr. Agnew, Mr. Carroli said that the proper way to make a test is t put on pressure until the pipe bursts that is if it were desired to see how many pounds the pipe will stand. Mr. Heazlitt said that he has been foreman of the boiler shop in the Kingston foundry, and was there when one the water works boilers was repaired He considered the value of the boilers, after beingrepaired, when they were almost as go as new, to be from $2,300 to $2,500, with fittings. When they were first bought, Mr. Heazlitt did not think they sold for less than $1,200 each; that is without the fittings, as they now are. He knew the reason why the boilers had been taken from the cotton mill. If the boilers in question were being made now, the wit ness thought that they could be made for $200 less than the price paid for them. This concluded the evidence, and Mr Kirkpatrick said that he would submit two letters regarding tenders to supply engines Mr. Agnew said that he and Mr. Whiting would object as the letters would not be evidence, but if they were accepted by the arbitrators, they would put in similar evidence. Judge Clark said that strictly speaking, the letters would not be evidence, as they are only what some person or persons have said. I was decided to leave them aside until to day Mr. Kirkpatrick said he wished to call for the company, Mr. Surtess, of Ottawa, an expert in laying pipes. This | gentleman would have been present yes terday but was detained. He asked the city to proceed with their case, and allow Mr. Surtess to give evidence later on They also would like to have the collector of customs give evidence regarding the increased tariff on iron. The arbitration then adjourned to meet this morning
