THE COMMERCIAL UNION CATECHISM

What is the chief end of Commercial Union? A.—To benefit the United States and glorify Wm. & Co.

Who are the American leaders in the movement? A.—Erastus Wiman, of New York, stock broker and capitalist.

Have the American people made an official declaration in favor of commercial union? A.—No.

Has Canada made a declaration in favor of reciprocity? A.—Yes; there is now standing upon the statute book, 42 Vic., C. 1556, this clause:

Any or all of the following articles, that is to say:—Animals of all kinds, green fruit, hay, straw, seeds of all kinds...

Who abrogated that treaty? A.—The American.

Why? A.—Because, as they alleged, they were getting the worst of the bargain.

What would be the benefit to Canadian manufacturers?—Wiman, Butterworth, Hitt & Co. have so far failed to provide an answer to this question.

What evidence is there that the Americans will stand by commercial union?—that, supposing we adopt it now, we shall not, within a few years, be compelled to adjust our commercial relations?

Is Mr. Hitt recognized by the "fathers of commercial union," as competent to speak on the subject? A.—Certainly: Mr. Wiman published the letter from which the extracts quoted are taken, in his pamphlet on "Commercial union in North America."

What is the policy of the government regarding assisted immigration was stated by Hon. John Carling, minister of agriculture at a meeting of the committee on agriculture and colonization.

The supplementary estimates for the present fiscal year of 1887-8 aggregate $3,213,630; those for 1887-88 reach $1,956,790.

Among the grants for public works in the North-West for public buildings in the $100,000 and $75,000 for the new government printing bureau.

The largest vote is that of $213,000 for the payment of losses, arising out of the rebellion.

We are glad to note the announcement that there is to be no increase in the indemnity of members in honor of the LITTLE LAUGHS.

The way of the transgressor is generally agreed to be hard, but he undoubtedly deserves it all.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Handsome (has been looking at a house, to wife—but why don't you like the house? It has two large parlors, a cozy library and drawing room, a beautiful dining room, three bath rooms, and the kitchen arrangements are perfect and the rent low. Wife shaking her head—Only seventeen cents, John.—New York Sun.

Gingering—Congratulations, my father! You have won the prize of the Father's Ab. But do you think the lady will be so good as to support you in the style to which you have been accustomed?—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It is suggested that the plan of executing criminals by electricity will give relations the chance to say that their luckless kinsman was struck by lightning.—Philadelphia Call.

It is generally conceded that women dress to attract the admiration of men, and the Pittsburg Dispatch asks: "But why do men dress?" Well, because they look better that way.—They would attract altogether too much attention if they didn't dress.—Norrington Herald.

A Chicago man paid $1,000 for a copy of the Bible. When he reaches the passage treating of wine you will hear from him. He will want his money back with a haul and angry wail.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Women are fruitful givers, we know, but if they were not their husbands would miss a great deal of entertaining information about the neighbors.—Boston Journal of Education.

Representative Borah Wilkins tells of an Indiana granger who recently called on the president, shook hands with him vigorously and long, looked him over from head to foot, and then remarked: "Waal, waal! Here I see you for president high onto fifty year, and I'll be glad to see you ain't the first one I ever see! Jus' shake agin, will yer?"

Most of the 50 persons killed by the eruption of the new volcano in Mexico are thought to have died of fright. It is supposed that when the Mexicans saw the lava running down the mountain sides they mistook it for soap.—Detroit Free Press.

A student, being desirous of learning whether there was any truth in the statement that Seneca was addicted to drunkenness, opened an illustrated encyclopedia, and having found the name of the celebrated philosopher, first object that met his gaze was a woodcut, beneath which were the words "Seneca, after an ancient bust. The silent investigator, finding his worst fears confirmed, looked no further.—Chicago Herald.

"Was ever thus?" cried the little creature, looking into tears. "Now that you're so good to have died of fright, it is supposed that you'll be glad to see you ain't the first one I ever see!"—Philadelphia News.

Up to date no liberal newspaper has nominated Mr. Mills for the leadership of the party; nor has the London Advertiser made a nomination.—Ottawa Citizen.

The editor-in-chief of the Advertiser is probably trying to find out what Mr. Mills' best says to him about it.

At a recital given in Rochester Saturday nine numbers out of twelve on the programme were of the "spinning song" variety, and it is said the audience departed "all of a whirl," in a dazed condition.

Henry George is an anti-poverty society man, and to show that what he professes he believes in, he is getting wealthy as fast as he can. Henry is wise in his day and generation.

A writ will be issued immediately for a new election for the Manitoba legislature for Assinibois, caused by the appointment of ex-Speaker Murray to the municipal commission.

How a Traveler Put It. "Why, how are you, Billy?" said a traveling man, on meeting an acquaintance in Chicago. "I'm indeed surprised to see you here. I thought you were living in St. Louis."

There is Nothing to Equal It. OTTAWA CITIZEN. The suitability of "cheek" is Grit members of Parliament holding the Dominion Government responsible for the failure of Mr. Mowat's officials to perform their duty.

Emotionally Correct. Toronto News. That the fact is that Ontario will have thriving iron furnaces of her own, and will have them in spite of all the efforts to impede it by belittling our country and panegyrizing our neighbors.

Decided.

Woman!—Pears to me we've got it all the dirt out of it, it beats so light now.—Tribune.

How a Traveler Put It. "Why, how are you, Billy?" said a traveling man, on meeting an acquaintance in Chicago. "I'm indeed surprised to see you here. I thought you were living in St. Louis."

I was with a short time since. "Indeed? And how long have you been in Chicago?" "I was recruited last January."—Merchant Traveler.

A New Proverb. Schoolgirls are not altogether devoid of observation. Some of them can also describe in fair English the results of what passes before their eyes. In a class of girls a few days ago the lesson was to state one proverb from each of the proverbs.

The girl that has a dog cart never lacks friends.—Boston Transcript.

Trying to Reach a Verdict. Court Officer—A message from the jury room, your honor. His Honor—What do they want—further explanation of evidence? Court Officer—No, your honor; they want a fresh box of cigars.—New York Sun.

Seashore Chestnuts. Next summer they'll "spoon" by the sea and waves. "An' you'll speak of rest in the ocean's graves, Over which the wild billows will roar."

The same old story'll be told once more; He'll quote poetry, she'll cry like a dove, They'll speak of this life as a terrible bore, Unless sure of each other's love.

I wouldn't father the lies they'll tell In their flinging a wretched old trick; The "whittens" and "whites," no know very well, Will be sure to make the sea sick.—Goodwill's Sun.

Astonishing Success. It is the duty of every person who has used Fowler's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 done bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada.

Advice To Mothers. Mrs. WILSON'S SWEETENED SYRUP, for children, is a most valuable medicine, and one of the best female nurses and physicians in the world have used it for forty years with never-failing success. It is a most valuable medicine for children, and one of the best female nurses and physicians in the world have used it for forty years with never-failing success.

First Loves. Pittsburgh Bulletin. In her own little chamber, with her feet upon the fender, She was reading Walter Scott, the while her husband, young and tender, Wore a smile upon his lips that neither tongue nor pen could render.

"Not one person out of twenty with the first love never marries. So she reads, and so the sentence for a passing moment lingers. While her heart, with a subtle subterfuge, Is quietly carrying on its work."

"Was your ardent prostration unto me your first confession?" And, "was your beloved admission your initial confession?" Well! I married my first love, providing you did "she said faintly, "If you did," "I didn't," with a smile serene and sunny. Thus, by woman's wit, the quarrel was averted very quietly.

We have just received a fine line of spoons which we are selling very cheap. H. H. Curtis & Co.

"Loaded!"

Tommy (trick's little brother, after the ceremony)—Did it hurt the book?—Hurt—the book? What do you mean, dear? Tommy—"You see, my little brother, I had for a long time, but she'd looked yer at last!"—Punch.

The Pensive, the Beautiful Pensive. Now let us to the woodland lie, where trees their verdure wrap, for spring no longer lingers in all burly winter's lap. In plente garb we'll amble forth and sit beneath the trees, and have our limbs all chilled and backed with stings of humble bees. We'll gaily don our linen coats and thin seersucker pants, and sit beside the gurgling stream while'er we crawl the ants. We'll swallow picnic lunches, and to no matter down our grub, while people make by soaking one cheap lemon in sugar. The guileless lemon we shall eat, devour the mustard pie, and sit on bowls of oatmeal while a near business our eyes. We'll tip the mustard in the jam, the pepper in the tea, and try with all our might to show that we are flannel with glue. Then let us to the picnic come, our baskets in our hand, and housewifery come filled up with woe, and leaves and dust and sand.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Had a Room. "Has this town ever had a room?" inquired a Bostonian of a native who was looking around a railroad depot in Nebraska. "I should remark," was the ready reply. "Help things much?" "Then it must have helped!" "Yes, but we all got so infernal stuck up that me and another feller are the only two men in town who speak to each other, and seventeen persons back of from one church alone."—Wall Street News.

French Politics. Mrs. Bagley—William, are the French an intelligent people? Bagley—Susan, I am amazed! The French are civilized to the highest degree. Mrs. B.—All the same, they must be stupid. I have noticed that about a dozen French men have been trying to make a cabinet for a week or two and they can't do it. Now my brother in Boston— Bagley (in anguish)—Great Heavens, Susan, don't let the neighbors know that your brother is a carpenter.—Philadelphia Call.

Get Along with Economy. "You know, of course," said the old man to the young man, "that my daughter has $100,000 in her own right?" "Yes, sir." "You are not worth a cent." "I'm poor, sir, but great Scott, $100,000 is enough for two! Why, I'm economical to meanness."—New York Sun.

Feminine Diplomacy. "I can't understand my dear, why it is that you do have such an excellent opinion of a husband, should quarrel with him so often." "Don't you? Well, it is because he always brings me home a present at night to make up for."—French Fun.

An Object Lesson at the Park. Miss Lane rings furiously for the valet de chambre. "Antoine," she cries, "this letter has been opened." "Madame, I was my husband who has done it. Confess or I will discharge you at once." "It was not monsieur. I confess, madame, that it was myself." "Oh, well, more gently, that makes a difference. You may go."—Paris Paper.
