Rain spoiled the baseball match tween the Park nine and Belleville baseball clubs yesterday afternoon. In the morning about 350 left here on the steamer Maud bound for the city on the bay. The prospects for a fine day at the time of starting were excellent, and up till two o'clock in the afternoon, no sign of rain was visible. Belleville was reached shortly after one o'cleck, the steamer making a quick trip. On disembarking a large crowd was on the wharf, including a number of Kingstonians who had gone up on the morning train. Woods, the Coburg pitcher was also on hand, and welcomed the Park nine. He had come to Belleville to witness the game, Mr. T. Sullivan, of Kingston, who has been living in Belleville for some weeks past, met the party and said that there was considerable excitement in the city over the match. He was told that the Kingston crowd had their pockets lined with bills ready to back their club. After donning their uniforms, the ball grounds were reached by the Park nine at two o'clock, and both teams commenced practicing. The game was not called until 3:20, when Mayor Biggar, of Belleville, was selected umpire. The Belleville team went to the bat and in this inning, his decisions caused so much dissatisfaction that Capt. Little threatened to leave the field, unless another umpire was appointed. When the game was called at the conclusion of the fourth linning, baseball rules was limited. He stood a distance of twenty feet from the batter, Belleville placed a very good nine on the field. Their battery was fair, but in the fourth inning their pitcher wha batted freely. If rain had not stopped the been high in favor of the Park nine. The first two innings were whitewashes, and in the third the home team Fisher and Millan made runs. Pitcher McIntyre deserves credit for his work, he having struck out five men, while Fraser, the Balleville pitcher, struck out but one. > Now, in looking carefully at the act under which they were proceeding, it is found that its wording is peculiar. In the first place, the council is to fix a price to offer. In the next place, the arbitration is to determine the price. This word "price" was, it must be presumed, used advisedly. No direction is given as to the mode of computing the price. The legislature evidently considered that it would be unjust to limit the arbitrators in their estimate of the proper amount to be given, or in their mode of making the estimate in cases where the charters had been granted and the words constructed prior to the passing of the act, and iteleft them bare to deal with such cases as they pleased, or as justice might require. There are two important points to be kept in view in determining the principle on which the valuation of the arbitrators should be made. In the first place, the valuation should be made on the assumption that the property is to be transferred corporation has a right to be heard at all. In the second place, it is a principle
