SLEEPING WONDERS.

FEATS ACCOMPLISHED BY PEOPLE IN THE ARMS OF MORPHEUS.

Indians Sleeping at the Stake of Torture—Slumber During a Cannonade. Influence of Habit, Time and Circumstance—Extraordinary Phenomena.

Sleep in most individuals lasts for the space of eight hours. Exceptions to this statement are numerous; whether these arise from duty or laziness we shall not venture to examine. Sir E. Codrington, the famous naval officer, when a midshipman, could watch on deck for nineteen hours; this left only five for sleep, which in his case was most profound—so profound that no noise was sufficiently strong to waken him; yet if the word "Signal" was whispered in his ear he awoke and was on deck instantly.

Reporters of the house of commons require great exertions to keep themselves from sleeping. A few years ago a distinguished member of "the gentlemen in the gallery" took down a speech while he was sleeping. His statement rests on his oath. Calvin tells of a friend of his reading aloud to him while asleep. The organ of vision was alone active.

Coleridge, the dreaming philosopher, composed "Khbla Khan" (one of his poems) while fast asleep. Next morning he was sure there had been an acquisition to his literature, but was too negligent to write the stanzas. A few days afterward he attempted to recall the verses, but they had for the most part fled, and the poem as it now stands is but a fragment.

IN SPITE OF SURROUNDINGS.

Every one knows that extreme fatigue induces sleep, and this in spite of surrounding relations, which in ordinary circumstances would hinder any one from resting. Previous to the shortening of the hours of work factory children frequently fell asleep while working at the machines, although well aware that they would incur severe punishment by doing so. The North American Indian, at the stake of torture, has been known to go to sleep on the least remission of agony, and will slumber until the fire is applied to awaken him.

It is on record that during the heat of the battle of the Nile some of the over fatigued boys fell asleep upon the deck, and during the attack upon Rangoon, in the Burmese war, the captain of one of the steam frigates most actively engaged, worn out by the excess of continued mental tension, fell asleep and remained perfectly unconscious for two hours within a yard of his largest guns, which were being worked energetically the whole period.

Habit and time, place and circumstances predispose us all to sleep. The celebrated pedestrian, Capt. Barclay, when accomplishing his extraordinary feat of walking 1,000 miles in as many successive hours, obtained at last such a mastery over himself that he fell asleep the instant he lay down. The doctor's wife never hears the door bell during the night, although the noise is sufficient to rouse the wearied husband; but should a child in the nursery cry, then the mother, oblivious to all other sounds, hears at once the infant's voice.

EXTRAORDINARY PHENOMENA.

It is related that the Abbe Faria, who acquired notoriety through his power of inducing somnambulism, was accustomed merely to place his patient in an armchair, after telling him to shut his eyes and collect himself, and pronounce in a strong voice, "dormer," which was usually successful.

There seems to be no limit to the wonders displayed by man in sleeping. Condercet, the mathematician, solved one of his most difficult problems while asleep—a problem, too, which puzzled him during his waking hours. A professor of theology in the University of Basle once wrote a sermon while asleep; he found it on his desk next morning. The preceding night he could not grapple with the subject as he desired, but the performance of his sleeping hours was quite satisfactory to him.

Jenny Lind was one of the most celebrated singers of her time. No one could rival her powers except a factory girl, who sang sometimes better than the famous Jenny. The girl could not attempt any difficult piece when awake, but when sleeping she sang so correctly, so like the renowned artiste, that it was difficult to distinguish between their voices. On one occasion Mme. Lind heard the girl, who even tested the accuracy of her powers by giving her a long and elaborate chromatic exercise. This the sleeping girl performed, much to the wonder of the famous Swedish singer.—London Telegraph.

Kerosene Lamps.

A thorough study of the subject of petroleum lamps has been lately made by Sir Frederick Abel. He suggests that the reservoir of a kerosene lamp should always be of metal, the more strongly to resist any explosive tendency of the oil or vapor within, and that there should be no other opening than that for the wick, unless so small a one that flame could hardly enter it. He further says the wick should be soft and dry when put in, and should completely fill its space, but without forcing; that it should be scarcely longer than to touch the bottom of the reservoir, and there the oil should never be suffered to be less than two-thirds of the depth, while the lamp should always be filled partly before lighting. The wick should never be turned down suddenly, and the lamp should not be suddenly cooled or allowed to meet a draught; and when the flame is extinguished it should first be lowered as far as possible and then a sharp strong puff should be blown across, but not down the chimney.—Harper's Bazar.

Hardly Got at It Yet.

"Tell me," he whispered with the hoarseness of emotion; whispered as if he feared the murmuring surf might catch the question and bear it to some other ears. "Tell me, have you ever loved?"

She trembled. She hesitated for a moment, and he thought he felt her blushes glow into his eyes. She trembled, and in a still, soft whisper, gentle as the summer breeze, answered:

"Not this summer."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Nature's Wise Provision.

Consumptive Patient—An old lady up town says if I will drink cream it will do just as well as cod liver oil.

Holloways Pills and Ointment.

The combined ill effects of overcrowding, sedentery occupations and monotony of life are only too well known to those who have to pass the best part of their lives laboring in factories and crowded workrooms. The compulsory confinement weakens the general health and induces chronic constipation, indigestion, and various forms of skin diseases. Holloway's remedies are of priceless value to persons of this class, for they can be used without entailing loss of work, being purely vegetable in their composition, and consequently not without harshness on the most delicate system. The experience of more than forty years proves that no means surpass Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, bad breasts, piles, and wounds of all kinds.

Paris at the Seaside.

The idea of a trip once a year to the seaside has been accepted by every class of Parisian society. The Normandy coast is lined with villas and chalets from Honfleur to Cherbourg, and right along to Nantes, built by speculative contractors whenever they discover some new spot, which a few newspaper paragraphs are to convert into a fashionable resort for sea bathing; hotels spring up like mushrooms, where those who are content to forfeit their individuality take their places at table d'hote like so many sheep. Their host increases the sum fixed per diem as equivalent for board and lodging by making those who arrive late for breakfast or dinner pay a fine, and by subjecting such as introduce spirits, candles or soap into his establishment to a momentary penalty. At table the visitor realizes the dreadful misfortunes which must have befallen the twenty-five little cobblers of the nursery rhyme as the dishes are passed along in front of them, and they are charged extortionately for liquids baptized with names pompously recalling the best Bordeaux and Burgundy vintages, but which would not even pass muster with the excise officers at the gates of Paris. The fruit, fish and meat are supplied from the French capital every morning, and the visitor soon learns to his cost that the gay city he has left behind is the only place where fresh produce can be obtained for money's worth.

Hotel keepers and owners of boarding houses think that the privilege of inhaling ozone cannot be properly enjoyed, especially during the dog days, unless quickened by a proportionate exudation of coin. Each year the price of food and apartments appears to increase, and the cost of the periodical emigration is equal to the sum required to keep any one for the rest of the year in Paris. Revolutions have been caused by the rapacity of certain speculators whose interests clashed, with the material welfare of the people, but the French submit with lamblike humility to the exorbitant demands of the grandchildren of mere wreckers, despoilers and smugglers who formerly plied their nefarious business along this same sea coast. —Cor. Philadelphia Times.

Starved Into a Verdict.

Jurymen are better off in these times than in the good old days, when it was the law to endeavor to starve them into a verdict. It is bad enough now to be put to loss of time and money, with little or inadequate recompense, without being starved or fined in the bargain.

In the early part of the reign of Henry VIII Lord Chief Justice Reed tried an action when on circuit in which the jury were locked up, but before giving their verdict had eaten and drank, which they all confessed. This being reported to the judge, he fined them each heavily and took their verdict.

In Hilary term, sixth, Henry VIII, the case came up before the full court of queen's bench on a joint motion to set aside the verdict on the ground of informality of trial, the jury having eaten when they should have fasted, and next remit the fines under the peculiar circumstances of the case. The jury averred that they had made up their minds in the case before they ate, and had returned into court, with a verdict, but, finding the lord chief justice had "run out to see a fray," and not knowing when he might come back they had refreshment. The court confirmed both the verdict and the fines.

In "Dyer's Reports" a case is reported of a jury who retired to consider their verdict, and when they came back the bailiff informed the judge that some of them (which he could not depose) had been feeding while locked up. Both bailiff and jury were sworn, and the pockets of the latter were examined, when it appeared that they all had about them "pippins," of which "some of them confessed they had eaten, and the others said they had not." All were severely reprimanded, and those who had eaten were fined twelve shillings each, and those who had not eaten were fined six shillings each, for that they had them in their pockets.—All the Year Round.

Cause of Dirty Finger Nails.

People who are nice to a scriptural point about the care of their bodies, wonder sometimes despairingly how it is that their finger nails get so dirty. They may not have been out of doors or engaged in any manual occupation, and yet a few hours after a thorough cleansing of their nails they have a black streak under the points and the hand brush must be used again. They will be surprised to learn that their hair is the cause of this offensive collection of dirt. There are few persons who do not often put their fingers to their hair to replace a stray lock, if a woman, or if a man to throw it back from his forehead or run his fingers through it. Each time that the hand touches the hair some of the oil adheres to the fingers and the nails, and this attracts and holds the dirt and dust whose particles float in the purest atmosphere. Anybody can prove this statement by watching the finger nails for a day after the hair has been shampooed and noting how much longer they remain clean than they will two days after the barber has rubbed all of the oil out of the scalp.—Manicure in Globe-Democrat.

How Paper Is Toughened.

Paper, rendered as tough as wood or leather, has been introduced abroad for roofing and other purposes. The method consists in mixing chloride of zinc with the pulp, in the process of manufacture, it being also found that the greater the degree of concentration of the zinc solution the greater is the degree of toughness, and, consequently, of durability, characterizing the paper. The material is likewise adapted for making boxes, combs, etc.—New York Sun.

Mexico's Transition State.

If you are contemplating a visit to Mexico the sooner you make it the better. Everything is in a transition state. Old things are fast passing away, and not only the ancient landmarks, but customs and conditions which gave the country its greatest charm are disappearing like dew before the morning sun. This is especially noticeable in the picturesque costumes of the country, which are fast being discarded for American fashions.—Cor. Troy Times.

Inventor of the Saw.

The inventor of the saw is said by the old Greek writers to have been Talus or Perdox, and the invention is said to have been suggested to him while using the jawbone of a snake to cut through a piece of wood. His master, jealous of the honor won by Talus, caused him to be privately put to death.—Boston Budget.

Cholera and all summer complaints are so quick in their action that the cold hand of death is upon the victims before they are aware that danger is near. If attacked do not delay in getting the proper medicine. Try a dose of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, and you will get immediate relief. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to effect a cure.

A. J. Cassatt's great horse, The Bard, was reported a trifle better on Thursday and slight hopes were entertained of his recovery.

The black stallion Atlantic, record 2 24½, by Almont, dam by Kent Clay, was sold on Wednesday by R. W. Davis, of West Williamsfield, Ohio, to J. H. Goldsmith, of Washington, N.Y., for $6,000.

All beds seem hard to the rheumatic. Then hearken ye peevish sufferers! Apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil to your aching joints and muscles. Rely on it that you will experience speedy relief. Such, at least, is the testimony of those who have used it. The remedy is likewise successfully resorted to for throat and lung diseases, sprains, bruises, etc.

George W. Atkinson, of the Sporting Life, London, says:—"If Jake Kilrain can defeat Jem Smith in the international battle American sporting men can win £200,000."

It cost the Hartford club management $4,500 this season to learn that baseball was not popular in that city. Once Hartford supported a club that was a member of the National league.

Mr. H. McCaw, Custom House, Toronto, writes: "My wife was troubled with Dyspepsia and Rheumatism for a long time; she tried many different medicines, but did not get any relief until she used Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. She has taken two bottles of it, and now finds herself in better health than she has been for years.

In commenting on the last game with the Stars, the Binghamton Leader says:—Well we checked the Stars in their mad career. We learn that the Binghamtons beat the Stars at Syracuse. We want confirmation strong as proofs of the Holy Writ before we hurray.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or Diarrhœa, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

A rumpus is threatened over the fact that Detroit pitched Beatin, the Allentown, Pa., pitcher against Boston, after the American Association had sent out notification of his suspension for nonfulfilment of contract with Louisville. It is thought that the incident may lead to the utter collapse of the national agreement. What a grand old scurry for players there would be then!

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea, in one remedy, for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient—what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtainable in a sound unadulterated state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use, the frailest systems are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own restoratives. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquilizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep—imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses through out the veins, strengthening the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demand increased substance—result, improved appetite. Northrop & Lyman of Toronto, have given to the public their superior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and, guaged by the opinions of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market. All druggists sell it.

Regarding the transfer of the club from Detroit, President Stearns recently said that nothing had or would be done in that line. The club is $20,000 ahead this year, and would have been $50,000 ahead if the Detroit public supported the game as was expected. Stearns also said that he thought two weeks ago when the Chicagos were playing such good ball and the Detroiters were doing so poorly, that the former would win the pennant, but that he has made up his mind that Detroit can win.

A Sad Mistake.

There is trouble and tribulation in the Moss Schaumburg family. Young Levi Schwindelmeyer has for some time been paying attentions to Miss Rebecca Schaumberg, who is considered one of the belles of Austin. On the Jewish New Year's day Schwindelmeyer called at the Schaumberg mansion. While he and Rebecca were in the parlor Moss Schaumberg thought he would stroll out into his garden and give the young folks a chance, for Levy is a very excellent young man with a great deal of money and "pishness cabacity." While strolling about the premises, what should Moss see but a boy up in a tree among his fall peaches. Thinking to terrify the boy, Moss roared out:

"O, you young scoundrel, now I see you mit mine own eyes. Vere vas mine shotgun?"

A wild female shriek was heard from the parlor. The shutters were torn open, and, with a bound, young Schwindelmeyer emerged from the window and was over a six foot fence and was out of sight like a flash. He has not been seen since, although Moss has been hunting him high and low to tell him that his remark about the shotgun was intended for the boy in the peach tree.—Arkansaw Traveler.

New York Slang.

The vagaries of slang are infinite. Last night as I stood waiting for a car, two Sixth avenue gentlemen met and greeted each other cheerfully.

"Hullo, Chimmie," said one, with a radiant smile, "still wearin' them gallway slugs for whiskers, I see."

"Still wearin' 'em, Andy. I notice you've got your feet wid you."

"Ya-as."

"Better keep 'em along; y' may go fishin' this summer, and you'll need 'em for sinkers."

"Well, rather"—a slight pause—"Don't you tink you better close your mout, m' son? Might git cold in yer teeth."

"Have t' go you."

"Well, good night, ole man."

"Good night," said the other, shaking hands warmly, as he turned into a restaurant. "Excuse me, will you? I'm goin' in here to feed me face."

Yet Howells says there is no distinctive New York accent.—San Francisco Argonaut.
