The Daily News.

THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 20.

The President having vetoed the bill restricting Chinese immigration for twenty years, another bill, modified in some respects, and extending over five years, has been passed through Congress by a vote of 201 to 37. Whether this new bill will also be vetoed by the President is the question which is being discussed in Washington.

There is a rumour that the minority who are opposed to the Girmard Bill, which has now passed both houses of Parliament, will petition the Governor General to veto it and, in case such petition is filed, will carry their petition to the foot of the throne. This would be a very unwise thing to do however strong the belief of the dissentients may be that the bill is both unscriptural in its principle and impolitic from a social standpoint. The people of Canada, by their representatives, have decided that marriage with a deceased wife's sister shall be allowed, and they have done so after full and abundant consideration; consequently there is nothing left but, for those who disapprove of such marriages, to avoid entering into them.

The Ford brothers who killed Jesse James two weeks ago were tried on Monday in St. Joseph, pleaded guilty, and were sentenced to be hanged on the 18th of May, but a full pardon was immediately promised them by Governor Crittenden. The trial was merely a farce, the prisoners treating it with the utmost unconcern, thoroughly conscious that they had nothing to fear. Such is the state of affairs in deeply disgraceful to a civilized country. Missouri seems to be given up to lawlessness; wild desperadoes, before the "bold Terpin" in the nonchalance with which they put bullets into the robe of travellers, being permitted to parade their pastimes in comparative freedom. The lesson taught by this latest episode is that the authorities, being unable to deal with a determined highwayman by legitimate means, employ another such murderer to murder him first one. The effect this will have in suppressing violence and outrage may be imagined. The rest of the James gang will have vengeance on the Fords, who will meet them, no doubt, by organizing a hostile force, and the law will be vindicated through their conflicts.

At William's College the other day a young gentleman named Gunn, who had won valedictory honours, declined to read them on the ground that the system of competitive examination and marking in vogue in the college was not only unfair to the majority of students and misleading to the public, but also that it put them at a disadvantage. This is very far from being the case in the majority of instances. The thoroughness of previous training, age and physical strength are elements which deeply affect the result of competition; and a machine like memory is a far greater advantage than original thought, taste, imagination, tact or practical talent. So much for the significance of competitive examination and placing; but of more importance is their effect upon the character of the competitors. As they confer the prize upon the man who makes the most show, they hold out every temptation to young men to devote themselves entirely to making marks to the disregard of a thorough conscientious insight into the real nature and principles of the studies in which they engage. They teach young men to pride themselves upon successful rivalry instead of planting themselves upon the work's worth, as Walter Savage Landor is said to have persistently done, and in this manner they conflict with the aims of duty which exalt honesty, love, service, and vanity. They benefit neither the one who wins the prize from inferior motives, nor the numbers who do not he beaten. The first may be temporarily found to fall behind in the race of life, having consumed his energy and ambition in the struggle for a paltry college badge; and whereas the latter at once feel pangs of disappointment and resentment at the want of recognition of the worth of whose possession they are conscious.

Jesse James' Brother.

Since the death of Jesse James made the whereabouts of his brother Frank a matter of considerable interest to persons who have cause to fear his vengeance, individuals have been popping up all over the region distinguished by his operations to announce through white lips and chattering teeth their convictions that they were personally entertained the devil on awares. One of the aspirants to this kind of notoriety is a Nashville barber, who is certain that he dyed the desperado's hair a fine brick red about two weeks ago. He was surprised that a man should wish his hair to assume a colour which most people prefer elsewhere than on their heads, but nothing that his customer said was equipped like an arsenal he did not venture to push the matter. A photograph has now convinced him that his discretion was judicial.

An Egg Story

An Aurora despatch says a curiosity in the line of eggs was brought in on Monday morning by Chauncey King. It consisted of a genuine pair of Siamese eggs. Each egg was distinctly separate and well formed, excepting the absence of the hard shell which usually envelops the whole, about half an inch long united the two. In one was the yolk only, while the other contained exclusively the white. The two were laid in perfect shape and without breaking. A double egg with a single case is common, but the curiosity of two distinct eggs peculiarly connected by a natural tube is exceedingly peculiar and rare.

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE.

Mr Alexander Fisher, Manager of the Ontario Bank, Takes His own Life.

Toronto, April 20.—Yesterday afternoon Mr Alex. Fisher, local manager of the Ontario Bank, committed suicide in a fit of fright in the rear of his residence in the bank building by shooting himself in the mouth with a revolver. Mr Fisher was at his post in the bank at the customary hour in the morning, and nothing unusual in his appearance or actions was noticed. He left in a little time. Some hours elapsing without his again coming into the office, fears were aroused and a search was instituted, it being known that the old gentleman was subject to epilepsy, and had frequently taken fits while away by himself. The search resulted in finding the body of the unfortunate gentleman lying in a corner of the stable, a pistol clutched in the right hand, and blood oozing from the mouth, at which he had evidently placed the weapon in discharging it. A coroner, Dr. Hooke, was notified, but on enquiring into the circumstances surrounding the and occurrence he deemed it unnecessary to hold an inquest. What motive could have prompted the rash act can only be matter to have been continued ill-health, Mr Fisher having for the last two years been a victim of epilepsy, a disease which he feared developed weakening the mental power, and frequently apprehending a suicidal mania. The deceased gentleman, who was sixty-five years of age, has been for about twenty years a resident of this city, where he was held in universal esteem. His melancholy end is the subjected general regret.

Trial of Maclean

London April the 19 At Reading today Lord Chief Justice Coleridge charged the grand jury in the case of Maclean, who attempted to shoot Queen Victoria at Windsor. Chief Justice Coleridge said such cases in England have been rare, but the law bearing on the case, though over 500 years old, was undoubted. The facts as narrated in the disposition of the witnesses clearly supported the charge. The grand jury returned a true bill for high treason against the prisoner, who was plead-ed in the dock. He looked pale and haggard, and pleaded not guilty. The Attorney-General opened the case for the prosecution and said it was a very aggravated one. The jury had a grave responsibility in determining the condition of the prisoner's mind at the time he committed the crime. Mr Montague Williams, in opening for the prisoner, made inquiry the ground of the defence, and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty on the ground of insanity. The superintendents of the Salisbury and Broadmoore asylums testified that the prisoner suffered Maclean incapable of appreciating the consequences of his acts.

MeLean will be detained in custody during Her Majesty's pleasure. The deliberations of the jury occupied but five minutes.

SHOP MATES.

The Shoemakers in Council—They Retire the Bosses' Coffee and Dismiss the Parents of Orphans.

Last evening your correspondent ascended to the assembly room of St. Patrick's Hall for the purpose of taking the final action as regards the strike which has been inaugurated by the employees. There about thirty persons present, and the meeting was conducted in a very orderly manner. The men were all dressed in their best, and looked as if they had prepared themselves for church rather than for a trades meeting. On the floor of the room were a number of empty whisky bottles. It appears that on Saturday morning last McLennan and Jas. Baldwin left Gananoque for Clayton (where the former has a saloon) in a buggy and a cutter respectively. When they reached Hemlock Island they landed, fearing to go further, the wind blew so hard. They waited at the house of Mr. Mack, but as the wind did not abate they decided to return to Gananoque. They were warned not to start out again, but they did not consider there was much danger in going back. They had not gone any longer is going about a mile when the cutter upset, and both were drowned. Baldwin leaves a wife, but no children. McLennan was a single man. Last winter he worked for Messrs McEwen, mechanics, Queen street. On Tuesday morning Mrs Lachance (McLennan's mother) being under the impression that her son was wrong at his late home at house, Gananoque, left for that place. She had been gone but half an hour when the telegram announcing the accident was received.

DID NOT FIND THE BODY.

Mr Joseph Lachance returned from Gananoque this morning, where he went to search for the body of his stepson, Thomas McLennan. He says that the search for the body was very rough, which rendered it impossible to grapple with success, so the work had to be abandoned until calm weather sets in, when search will again be made by the body. It appears that on Sunday morning last McLennan and Jas. Baldwin left Gananoque for Clayton (where the former has a saloon) in a buggy and a cutter respectively. When they reached Hemlock Island they landed, fearing to go further, the wind blew so hard. They waited at the house of Mr. Mack, but as the wind did not abate they decided to return to Gananoque. The Canadian Monthly has of late been notable for the number of really excellent articles on distinctively Canadian subjects. The April number is no exception to the rule. In the April number is contributed to by that able writer, Mr. Alexander Somerville, whose article paper on "The Rise and Progress of Democracy" is very interesting and has already been referred to at length in our editorial columns. Mr. Somerville is a thorough believer in the Power of Democracy, and his article is a powerful argument and will be read with interest by all who are politically interested. Mr. Goldwin Smith, has a characteristic article on "Life and Education." There are historical verses to Longfellow, by Charles Sangster, and a very Canadian tale, "Ugo Young People's Department," which is well maintained. Toronto: Rose Belford Publishing Co.

THE ADDINGTON ELECTION

It appears from a communication in another column that we were in error in saying that Mr Bruton had taken out a writ for the election petition case. That gentleman's efforts have been more modest than was anticipated, as having run for the Legislative Council in 1864 and for the Legislature in 1867. In the former he was defeated by majority of 1,210 decided to prefer Sir Alexander Campbell, as he is a lawyer, now, and in the latter by majority of 237 was returned against him. Mr Bruton's main garden is for not being exactly informed concerning his political career, it is worthy a more intimate acquaintance. However, we have no fear of being "on at the end," when the third and last chapter will be added to the record, comprising a letter or two of our reference to that gentleman in the form of this.

NEW WORK ON CHEMISTRY,

BY

A. P. KNIGHT, Esq.,

Rector Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Price, 50 cents each

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS:

"The book is small and the matter is arranged in a concise and convenient form, and is sure to be welcomed by a students of chemistry."—Montreal Gazette.

"The style of the work is such as to render it peculiarly adapted for the purpose designed."—Queen's College Journal.

"The work has been prepared with the object in view of lessening the labour of the student. Mr Knight's qualifications for the duty of preparing such a work are of a high order. He has succeeded in a manner which will establish his popularity of his book."—Ottawa Citizen.

DIVISION OF HIGH SCHOOL MASTERS.

"Knight's Intermediate Chemistry is for the pupil preparing for the Public Schools. The arrangement of the work being in the form of questions and answers, and the matter arranged and symmetrical ground work for a thorough preparation. The experiments are simple and suggestive, and in every part, it meets with my unqualified approval."—Alexander Marling, M.A., Toronto.

"If the student it will be worth its weight in gold, containing as it does, all that is wanted and no more or less."—Arthur Houston, B.A., Hawkesbury.

"It is by far the best elementary book on the subject I have seen. Its arrangement is so good and simple that a pupil of 12 or 13 years must of great service to candidates for teachers certificates."—C. M. Bigg, M.A., Parkhill.

"Its merits are manifest, brevity and clearness, combining just such a selection of notes and problems as was needed."—S. Hurwath, B.A., Ottawa.

"In the line of binding general approval. The arrangement of the matter is an advance of the book, arrangement of the questions and answers, and having so complete a list of examination questions is excellent."—J. Seath, M.A., Port Perry.

"I sincerely thank you. It is just a what I have long wanted. The special excellences of the little work are its great conciseness, and the fact that it contains of what is necessary, and finally its examination papers."—J. Seath, M.A., Port Perry.

"I have carefully examined Knight's work on chemistry and find it to be a very good text book for the use of intermediate candidates. The problems are well selected and will test well the pupil's knowledge of the book. The small I have to find matter is the Alphabetical arrangement of the elements."—R. E. Ireland, B.A., Peterboro.

"I find I will find no trouble to supply the text book in my school. I am sure the efforts will be more successful having it rather than any other I have seen."—Wilmot White, Cookshire, P.Q.

"Knight's Chemistry for Intermediate Candidates is in my opinion admirably adapted for the use of candidates for intermediate examinations. The arrangement of subjects is systematic and the explanations given in connection form. The questions and problems throughout test the knowledge of the pupil, and will give the student a thorough knowledge of the subject."—M. M. Fenwick, B.A., Cobourg.

"Knight's Chemistry I would recommend to the Education Department for adoption. I might mention its excellent arrangement, concise explanations and large number of problems."—D. Johnston, B.A., Alexandria.

"I consider it the best elementary work extant for the accomplishment of the object it has in view."—A. C. Crosby, B.A., Strathroy.

"I consider it an admirable work."—A. G. Knight, B.A., Campbellford.

"I consider it an excellent collection of short but full notes upon the subject, well arranged, neatly printed, and strongly bound."—M. Hicks, M.A., Trenton.

Last evening your correspondent ascended to the assembly room of St. Patrick's Hall for the purpose of taking the final action as regards the strike which has been inaugurated by the employees. There about thirty persons present, and the meeting was conducted in a very orderly manner. The men were all dressed in their best, and looked as if they had prepared themselves for church rather than for a trades meeting. On the floor of the room were a number of empty whisky bottles. It appears that on Saturday morning last McLennan and Jas. Baldwin left Gananoque for Clayton (where the former has a saloon) in a buggy and a cutter respectively. When they reached Hemlock Island they landed, fearing to go further, the wind blew so hard. They waited at the house of Mr. Mack, but as the wind did not abate they decided to return to Gananoque. They were warned not to start out again, but they did not consider there was much danger in going back. They had not gone any longer is going about a mile when the cutter upset, and both were drowned. Baldwin leaves a wife, but no children. McLennan was a single man. Last winter he worked for Messrs McEwen, mechanics, Queen street. On Tuesday morning Mrs Lachance (McLennan's mother) being under the impression that her son was wrong at his late home at house, Gananoque, left for that place. She had been gone but half an hour when the telegram announcing the accident was received.
