He had a devoted servant known as "the faithful Rooney," who was an indispensable element in his existence. Macdonagh was one day prommending in faultless stire at Brighton with his suffering family when off the rays of the sun, "the faithful Rooney" followings a respectful distance. On this interesting Macdonagh exclaimed, "What did they think of me; touch struck with my appearance, eh? Why don't you use to tell, don't you?" Rooney, scratching his head, "I command you," said his master. "Well, then, sir, when they see me following you in this way they say you're a lunatic and that I am your keeper." "Rooney," said Macdonagh, looking very blank, "I shall go without you for the future."

How Weapons First Came to be Employed.

The idea of employing weapons for assault or defense was a logical result of the first exercise that took place between man and man. In those contests the strongest man with his native weapons—his fists —was unconsciously the father of all arms and of all armed strength, for his weaker antagonist would early seek to restore the balance of power between them by the use of some sort of weapon. The shorter-armed man lengthened his striking power by the use of a stick, and found, after a time, the help its leverage and weight afforded him. The first one to which the chance selected, heavy ended stuff or club showed that weight and hardness had their value, was a first step towards furnishing it with a strong head. Hence the blow of the fist was the forerunner of the cruder club weapon. In the same was the pointed stick became the lance or dagger; and the broken shaft, helped, as knowledge increased, by the bow or "throwing-stick," was the precursor of the dart and arrow. The character of the first weapons was largely determined by the nature of the materials from which they were derived and their shape partly from this and partly by copying the forms of the weapons possessed by the animals the primitive men slew. Hence arises the general similarity in character and shape of the earliest tools from all parts of the world. —Popular Science Monthly.

There is no evaporation or deterioration in strength about Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The ingredients of this incomparable anti-rheumatic and throat and lung remedy are most volatile, but fixed, pure and imperishable. Pain, however intense and stubborn is relieved by it, and it may be used with equal benefit externally and internally.

The grey hairs of old age demand and should receive respect, but the grey hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold at Wade's Drug Store at 50 cents per bottle.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere. 25 cents a bottle.
