CAPTURED BY PIRATES.

Startling Adventure of the Salesman Tenant. How Captain Thompson Baptized Possession of His Ship

(New York Herald.)

A story, which reads like a chapter from some old-time Munchausen romance, comes to us from the coast of Florida, in the shape of an official report transmitted by Master Wm. Jas. Thompson, shipping master of the Barkentine Mary A. Thompson, which recently arrived at Pensacola, Fla., from Honduras, consigned to her owners, Messrs. Thompson, Baker & Co., of this city. Captain Thompson, who is owned here, is also agent at Blue Fields, Nicaragua, having been entrusted with the management of the business of the schooner Mary A. Thompson, owned by the same firm, and which was captured by pirates off the Nicaragua coast. The schooner Mary A. Thompson was one of the finest vessels of her class afloat, and was valued at $30,000. She was engaged in the lumber trade between Honduras and Nicaragua, carrying cargoes of mahogany and cedar. Captain Thompson, who is a native of Nova Scotia, has been in command of vessels for the past twenty years, and has sailed in the Trade winds between Central America and the United States. He has a wife and family residing in this city, and is well known in shipping circles here. The following is the report of the capture of the schooner Mary A. Thompson, as made by Captain Thompson to the Spanish Consul at Pensacola:

"I left Blue Fields, Nicaragua, on the 15th of August, with a cargo of mahogany consigned to Messrs. Thompson, Baker & Co., of New York, and bound to that port. The schooner's crew consisted of seven men, including myself. We had a fair wind and fine weather for the first two days, and were making good headway, when, on the morning of the 17th, we sighted a steamer coming up astern of us. She was a long, low craft, painted black, and had the appearance of a fast vessel. She overhauled us rapidly, and when she was within hailing distance she ran up the Spanish flag and fired a gun across our bows. We hove to, and a boat, containing a lieutenant and ten men, came alongside. The officer in charge of the party came aboard and demanded the ship's papers. I handed them to him, and he examined them carefully. He then informed me that I was a prisoner, and that the vessel was to be taken to Greytown, Nicaragua, for adjudication. I protested against the action of the officer, but he paid no attention to me. He ordered the crew into the boat, and then, with the exception of myself and the mate, left the vessel. The officer then ordered the mate to get the vessel under way, and to follow the steamer. The mate refused to obey the order, and the officer drew his revolver and threatened to shoot him if he did not do as he was told. The mate then got under way, and we followed the steamer. The mate and I were kept under guard by the officer and his men. We were treated with the greatest indignity, and were threatened with death if we attempted to escape. We were kept in irons for two days, and were then released. We were then informed that we were to be put ashore at Greytown, and that the vessel was to be taken to Spain. We were kept under guard, however, and were not allowed to leave the vessel. We were put ashore at Greytown on the 20th of August, and the vessel was taken to sea by the officer and his men. We were kept under guard at Greytown
