HOW TO GET UP A BALL. From the last edition of the Montreal Court Cookery Book.

Catch, if pessible, eight and twenty or thuty of your immediate acquaintances, with their wives (if they have got them) and then mix them up together, taking care to have the biggest at the top, and all the smaller people at the bottom. If you can get all military, so much the better; if not, you may take a sprinkling of lawyers, and some merchandise to stop up the crevices. Fill all these people with the idea that they are "patrons," and that the public are u der infinite obligations to them for allowing them to pay ten shillings each for tickets to come and stare at them. You may also impress on the "small beer" part of the "patrons" that they are much indebted to you for enabling them to take this step in "society," which will forever win for you their gratitude and admiration. Harmony effected thus, the next thing is to get your "stewards," and in this also. you must keep an eye to military, putting in as few civilians as you can, and these only parties who you know will not take any part in the arrangement. When this is completed. choose a committee of management, who (as you intend to manage exery thing yourself) will of course be nobodies. Then, finally put down yourself as "Secretary and Treasurer," intimating thereby that you are the red "lion" of the affair. ### STARTLING INTELLIGENCE.

PUNCH OFFICE, Saturday, 6 P. M. We have just heard from undoubted authority, that a warrant has been issued against the | Sentimental and Carricature Valentines. Receiver General, the Hon. Colonel Tache. His apprehension will take place to-day.

Punch Office, Saturday, 7 P. M. Ministers are out. Punch has been sent for. Colonel Tache has made his escape.

Punch Office, Saturday, 8 P. M. could not pay it in cash. As for the rumour I therefore do not consider myself responsible that Ministers were out, that need have caused for the same. no astonishment, they having been notoriously out in their judgement ever since they came in. Punch was sent for by his washerwoman to indentify a curious piece of filagree work, a thing of shreds and patches. Col. Tache made his escape from paying cash by serving out a debenture.
