SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 20, THE STEAMER CITY OF TORONTO.

This favorite sea-going craft deserves a longer and a better notice at our hands than was taken of her on Thursday last. The City of Toronto has almost been entirely rebuilt sirce last Fall. Like," my grandfather's knife" which had two handles, and three new blades, this steamer visits the port of Kingston a new vessel. Capt. Dick has expended upwards of Three Thousand Pounds in repairs; that is to say, if new top sides, new deck, new cabins and new furniture can be called repairs. In addition to which, the City is furnished with a pair of wrought-iron Wheels, the first of the kind ever applied to a merchant steamer on these inland waters, and which have had the merit of encreasing the speed of the boat fully two miles an hour. The Boilers and Engines of the City have been thoroughly overhauled; but as they were always most excellent and kept in good order, they stood in need of few or no repairs. The propriety of building steamers substantially, and of the best materials was made abundantly manifest while stripping the City to put on the new upper part. The original timbers were found to be in a most excellent state of preservation, sound as a roach, and bidding fair to last for many years to come. When properly painted and fitted for the season, the City of Toronto will be what she always, was, a safe-going and elegant steamboat. In all probability she will make one of Mr. Bethune's Line of Lake Mail Steamers, but running independently for the owner's account. Her regular days are Wednesdays and Saturdays from Kingston upwards.

> ON HEARING The Instrument of "Wood and Straw," played upon by Herr Stæpel the Hungarian, at the Corinthian Hall, Rochester, February, Know ye how the striving spirit, Can conquer all material things; And the Living Universe The eternal changes brings. From the dead and inert mass; Making all which come to pass ?

Know ye how the human soul. Burning with a living thought, Fires each other, inert creature, Whereupon its flame is brought; Till the sluggish mas entire. Gloweth with that thought of fire ?

Know ye how the mind of man, Yearning ever to create. Conscious of an innate power, Which demands an active state; Seizes rubbish waste and loose, Forcing all things to its use?

Thus by Hungary's murmering rivers. As a youthful shepherd strayed: Waving trees and sighing zephyrs. With the stream in concert played, And each sound melodious thrilled To a soul with music filled.

And the "things that were the nearest," Common straw and blocks of wood: Seized he then and bound together, And behold the "work was good," And the numbers of his soul Through this new creation roll

Now it is the zephyr's whisper: Now the tinkling of the rill: Now the wind's sonorous sounding. Coming from the distant hill; Now a streamlet's shouts aw aken, Now a forest tempest shaken.

Now the roaring of a torrent, Sweeping onward to the main: Now the crashing of the thunder, And the rushing of the rain : Till all nature's tones obey. And mingle in the orchestra.

But if from this thing of wonder You the living soul withdraw, Of its maker and its master, What remains save "wood and straw?" Thus through all where spirit reignet Take it hence, and what remaineth?

How did he the noble Kossuth, Glorious Shepherd of the Free, Pour his living soul of valor And his love of liberty, Through each fiery hearted Hun. Till their burning souls were one. But when others stept between him And she offspring of his soul. Treason burnt the straws asunder, Discord grated o'er the whole: Till the Russ and Austrians draw. Nothing hence but-"Wood and Straw." | comes up.)

Lord return their Master to them ! He alone can concord bring; He can make the Hymn of Freedom, Thunderon each new knit string; Till the nationrs anthems roll, With the music of his soul.

VIENNA, March II. sentence has rouse public feeling, both here martial as the ground of condemnation, nothing more henious is adduced against this Hungarian prelate than that he joined in an address of homage to 'Kossuth, that he took part in a few sittings of the Diet at Debreczin, and administrated his diocese in obedience to the de facto government of the time. A punishment so disproportionate to the offence has revolted all minds not lost to the sense of common humanity and justice. But in Hungary, where the bishops are regarded with with fetters, and immured 20 years in a horrible prison, must fall among the people with a stunning effect. Among other numerous condemnations, that of Louis Haux, who, as you know, has just been hanged at Arad, in despite of the solemn promise from the Emperor that no more political offenders should be executed, has naturally drawn a painful share of the public attention, the more so, as Hauk was a Vienna man, and formerly editor of a paper called the Constitutional.

VIENNA, March 16 .- To any one at all conversant with the present state of things in Vienna, the slightest attempt to celebrate in a public way the three eventful days of March 1848, the 13th, 14th, and 15th, would have appeared little short of madness. REASON FOR WEARING A BEARD. - There is a

QUICE RETURNS AND NO PROFITS .- Mr Hudson has re-appeared " in his place" (where we should have thought he would have been somewhat " out of his place") in the House of Commone. We are not aware whether the ex-Railway-King is supplied with a motto for his armorial bearings, whatever they may be, but if not, we would suggest to him as appropriate to his re-apprarance is Parliament, the well known phrase of " Cut and come again."

MAKING AWAY WITH HIMSELF .- It appears that the Earl of Clarendon nimeelf supports the project for abilishing his own office of Lord Lieute nant of Ireland It would certainly be very difficult to replace so excellent a Viceroy, and it is therefore prudent to give up the attempt, when i is quite clear that any one selected would inevi-
