THE MAN WHO STOPS THE BUTTLE. If you notice, there is sure to be one man the table who is always stopping the bettle.

The Battle-Stopper is generally a poor inani-

Let the conversation be ever so brisk, he never are out of the room. The jokes may fly about in all directions, but he is following a blue-bottle along the ceiling, or else building a red but castle in the coals. He is only awakened from his studies by a powerful entreaty to " pass the bottle;" when he rubs his eyes to see where he is.

Mr. Stanford, M.P. -- Most Profound -- of Rending, opposes reduction in the army; as he conceives that Manchester. Biriningham, and Liver- | places, namely :pool, have especial need of well-filled barracks. If foreign laurels are not to be gathered, there may be a good home crop won upon English soil. At Liverpool for instance, there is the financial reform Association, that requires military watchfulness. With a hundred pen-kn wes whetted to the par of 1094, sta ing the sets in which the THE CREOLE; or Siege of New Orleans, scrate tout certain items in the civil list, such as Bills will be required, and to be marked on thousands per annum for Hereditary Falconers the envelope "Tender for Bills." nets contitually fixed to overawe and repress the revolutionary movement.

At Birmingham there is Joseph Sturge with many disciples, preaching Universal Peace, advocating pestilent doctrines that will render the finest parks of artillery only so much old iron; -Joseph and his associates alone demand the vigilance of a few battalions

Then, again, there is the great freehold Movement. Every man treasonably bent upon purchasing as much earth as will grow him a vote, is a social enemy—a hater of the fraochise as it is —and requires at least a couple of red-coats to have an eye upon him. More: let us consider the helpless condition of the judges without the aid favorably known by the above name—will be favorably known by the above name—will be of the military: " The sentences of the judges ready for Visitors early in May, under the could not be put into execution merely by a small Management of the Subscriber, who assures police force."
