TAPPING THE CHINESE TRADE BY LAND. -Great Britain having secured a large slice of Birmah, including the Port of Ragoon, several years ago, that government is about to take steps for the construction of a firstclass highway or railroad from the valley of the Irrawaddy to the southwestern frontiers of China. Half its length, or 250 miles, would be constructed through British, the remainder through Birmese territory. The part of China thus made commercially subject to Rangoon contains about 80.000,000 of inhabitants, and the region is in the mai highly productive. Steam communication will also be shortly established between that city and England, by way of Calcutta, I Bombay and the Red Sea.
