A HARD NIGHT'S WORK.

Prof. Reynolds Perspires in His Fruitless Attempts to Secure Good Subjects.

Prof. Reynolds had very hard work last night. There was a very large audience in attendance, and so far as the exhibition went the people were well satisfied. In beginning Prof. Reynolds intimated that when about nine years of age he became aware that he was a mesmerist. A clergyman had been giving exhibitions in his native town, and when young Reynolds went home he declared he could do all the experiments he had seen. His sister's lover was impressed and the family sat up until midnight enjoying the fun. Next morning he mesmerized a baker who was carrying bread to a grocery, and made him retrace his steps to the bake house. Then the nine year old lad had his ears unmercifully pulled, while his father, when he heard of his son's action, became quite angry and told him to "look out for himself." The warning was sufficient and only one person since that day had ever been mesmerized in the street, and that was a painter working on a sign with paint brushes in each hand. He sent a swarm of mosquitoes about the man's head, and it was amusing to witness the fuss he created. The professor afterwards asked for volunteers, and twenty-three readily responded. Three were impressed, but on further investigations were found to be able to resist the magnetic influences. Again the stage was filled and one young man was found susceptible, but not to any remarkable degree. Another sitting was held and the effort to mesmerize these persons was fruitless. The hour of ten o'clock was reached and the professor was wearied with his work. He was in despair. He drew Durrey from the audience, vainly tried to attract the attention of two other subjects, and finally begged them to assist him under the unfortunate circumstances. They positively declined, and whenever a shaft of electricity was sent towards them they closed their eyes or fled from the building. The professor was discomfited. He had not been in such a predicament in thirty years. As a last resort he gave experiments with the one subject. He sent him out gathering flowers, which he distributed amongst the ladies, had him nursing a walking stick transformed into a baby, took him on a balloon voyage over the continent and to Europe, showed him Queenstown (a place he had seen before and in which he was interested) and London, and brought him home by the St. Lawrence, when the balloon burst, leaving him helpless in the water. He vigorously swam for shore. The chief experiment was transforming Durrey into a dead man, placing him on two chairs several feet apart, then the professor stood for a time on his breast. There was a horse race and a number of other amusing acts accomplished. To-night Prof. Reynolds makes his last appearance.

CANADIAN MARINE ASSOCIATION

Reduction of Tolls and Improvement of Navigation Discussed.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Marine Association was held in Toronto on Thursday afternoon, members being present from Kingston, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Collingwood and Toronto. A resolution was passed asking the dominion government for an immediate announcement that reduction of canal tolls on grain to two cents per ton will be continued this year, so that arrangements can be made for the coming season's business, and paying for a similar reduction on lumber. A resolution was passed that the association considers that the law in Canada, requiring barges in tow of steamers to carry certified mates, is oppressive to the trade, as this is not required in the same class of vessels running on the lakes under the American flag. A deputation, consisting of Captain Cragle, J. H. Hagarty, W. Hall, Captain Neelon, Captain Gaskin, Captain Fairgrieve, and the secretary was appointed to proceed to Ottawa to lay before the proper department the resolutions adopted, and the representation made last season of the urgent necessity to complete the St. Lawrence canals to the same capacity as the Welland canal, and that pending completion of this work expenditure be made whereby ten feet of water may be obtained in the Cornwall and Beauharnois canals. The co-operation of the boards of trade of Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and Port Arthur was asked by the passing of resolutions and sending of deputations to act in conjunction with the association's deputation. The government will be petitioned to erect a storm signal station at Tbermory, Georgian Bay, with a telegraph station attached, and to dredge out the mouth of Windfield basin, and have the Georgian Bay between Collingwood and Cabot's Head surveyed by Commander Boulton. The following officers were elected: President, W. Hall, Toronto; vice-president, Capt. Gaskin, Kingston; secretary-treasurer, W. A. Geddes, Toronto.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For consumptions, throat affections and bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thos. Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

There will be good skating at the Dix rink to-night. The ice is in capital condition.

EUROPEAN CABLEGRAMS.

CONFERENCE BETWEEN UNIONIST AND LIBERAL LEADERS.

The Position of Politics on the Home Rule Question—The War Feeling Increasing—Bismarck's Speech Still Disturbing—Mr. Goschen's Appeal to the Electors of Liverpool.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The round table conference adjourned in order to allow each side to discuss its affairs at leisure. In a letter Mr. Jesse Collings writes giving one side of Chamberlain's view of the situation. He says: "My own opinion is that the question of home rule in Mr. Gladstone's scheme has receded rather than advanced during the last few months, and if the liberals fought the election battle on that platform they would be hopelessly defeated. On the other hand, should the battle be fought on the land question, on decentralization and extension of local government, and on the other questions on which we are all agreed, the liberals would have a fair chance of coming back to power."

The Daily News, referring to the Gladstonian unionist conference, says: "The parties to the round table conference have been animated by a sincere desire for the reunion of the liberal party, and have been altogether free from a tendency to secure anything like knocking under from one side or the other."

The extraordinary rumour was in circulation last night that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is leaning toward home rule for Ireland.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The conference of Gladstonian and liberal unionists, begun at Sir William Vernon Harcourt's residence yesterday, has been adjourned until parliament meets. This was done because various conferees have engagements to address political meetings in different parts of the country and cannot spare the time to continue the discussion of the differences in the party.

ROME, Jan. 14.—The pope has instructed the Irish episcopate to act with strict legality in dealing with the agrarian question in its present state.

The eviction of tenants on the Winn estates at Glenburg were continued to-day. In some cases the bailiffs were stoutly resisted. The wife of a tenant was carried out of the house by the officers in a fainting condition. She was afterwards left dying in the yard. The people are maddened at the brutality of the officers.

In the bankruptcy court today, in the case of Farmer Moroney, who sold his cattle at auction, turned over a portion of the proceeds to the "plan of campaign" fund, and went into bankruptcy in order to escape paying rent, Judge Boyd rendered a decision finding Moroney guilty of fraud.

Mr. Parnell announces that steps have not yet been taken to select a candidate for the vacant parliament seat of Donegal.

The statement that Mr. Gladstone is confined to the house is not true. He is in robust health.

Mr. Goschen's Manifesto.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mr. Goschen, in his address to the electors of the exchange division of Liverpool, said: "The unionists have been able to avert separation and catastrophe, but unwearied patience and unflinching courage are necessary to maintain the victory. The defence of the union is the supreme consideration. Still we must look to our national interests. The country cannot allow the discount of 3,000,000 inhabitants of the kingdom to reduce to impotence over 30,000,000. We cannot allow that discount to either paralyze our power abroad or destroy our capacity for legislation at home. The separatist party deluded themselves with the idea that surrender to sedition would secure tranquility to Great Britain. On the contrary such a surrender would be the first step in a downward course of disintegration and decay. I yield to no one in a desire to promote the welfare of the Irish, but I utterly repudiate the idea that a popular government is not competent to maintain the law and to cope with lawless agitation, which, if unchecked, would bring free institutions into disrepute. I have broken lifelong ties in joining Lord Salisbury's cabinet, but I am glad to state that I remain in cordial concurrence with Lord Hartington and a majority of the liberal-unionist party." He asks electors differing with him on some points to make a similar sacrifice for the sake of union, their common watchword.

The contest at Liverpool promises to be close. Mr. T. P. O'Connor and Henry Brodhurst will endeavor to arouse the Irish and workmen against Goschen.

War Feeling in Europe.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The government has decided to purchase 40,000 additional horses and 500,000 Mannlicher repeating rifles, which are to be ready by March 1st.

PESTH, Jan. 15.—The Pester Lloyd, in an article supposed to have been inspired, says the Russo-French alliance was recently on the point of conclusion when Bismarck, with a quick and clever move, thwarted the design. Since which time he has been occupied in mediating between Russia and Austria. The Lloyd continues: "Whatever he may have said we know for certain that in case things are pushed to extremes Austria is as sure of Germany's assistance as Germany in case of need would be of Austria's help."

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Temps protests against the idea that the defensive preparations of France are being made with a view to an aggressive movement. La Liberté doubts whether Bismarck will gain anything by dissolving the Reichstag. It says the vote on the army bill shows that the German people have an ardent desire for real peace, and are sick of the excessive military demands of Prussia.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—Prof. Laband, the well-known liberal jurist, supports Bismarck's contention that the emperor is empowered to give the peace effective of the army.

All on Account of a Girl.

HAMILTON, Jan. 15.—In November Emil Schelberg, Simcoe, was shot in the back. A number of young men were arrested, but McCafferty, the man who did the shooting, escaped. Schelberg and Miss McCafferty had been keeping company against the wishes of the family of the girl. Schelberg recovered, and attempts were made to settle the case. Schelberg was determined to wed Miss McCafferty, and she favored the suit. He was paid $1000 not to prosecute, and yesterday left the vicinity with his bride and pockets lined with bank bills.

Entertaining Marine Railway Men.

An oyster supper was given by the foreman of the Portsmouth marine railway to the employees on Wednesday evening last. It was in recognition of the successful manner in which they docked the str. Hero during the cold weather. All the culinary attachments of the railway were brought into play, and about ten gallons of oysters were served up, all hot, to about forty persons, besides dessert. Songs and speeches were given, and all made a move for home about 11 o'clock.

Another Socialist Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A large number of unemployed workmen held a meeting at Norwich to-day, and, after listening to the speeches of two socialists, commenced an attack on the shops. THE AMYOT-CARON LIBEL

SOME CURIOUS DEVELOPMENTS OF THE CASE ARE MADE.

Col. Amyot a Kind of Private Councillor to the Minister of Militia—Acting in that Capacity by Request of Sir A. P. Caron—Middleton's Management of the Troops Censured.

QUEBEC, Jan. 14.—On the resumption of the Amyot-Tarte libel case the plaintiff was examined. He denied that he had ever received letters from Lieut. Col. Duchesnay, General Middleton, or anyone else, demanding explanations of his conduct in the north-west, but he had received letters from Lt. Col. Duchesnay asking him to reply to a memorandum from General Middleton, calling for an official report relative to the distribution of the cigars sent to the battalion by Davis & Co., of Montreal, and to certain horses, saddles, etc., which had been brought back to Quebec with the battalion. Of the cigars he said he had received five boxes, addressed to himself personally and without instructions, but he distributed them, and others which he purchased, among his men. As for the saddles and bridles, when the battalion left for Quebec he gave orders to deliver them up to the mounted police from whom they had been procured. His horse he had brought back, and the price he had obtained for the animal, $80, he returned to the department after the institution of the present action. He denied that he had carried on any traffic in liquor among his men. In cross-examination Col. Amyot said that at Swift Current he had met Gen. Laurie. At the general's suggestion, and in compliance with a previously expressed desire on the part of Sir A. P. Caron to keep him posted on everything, he wrote to that effect to the minister of militia. Witness then added: The magistrate at Calgary and others apprehended a Black-foot rising. The danger was all the greater because the 9th battalion had been split up in detachments. The English regiments had similarly suffered, but their colonels complained and the matter was remedied by sending the French battalion to take their place. If the Indian revolt had occurred not a member of the 9th would have returned alive. Gen. Middleton seemed to have completely forgotten it. It was thus the French-Canadian troops were taken.

Sir A. P. Caron's evidence, taken on Saturday, was read to the jury, after which Gen. Middleton was examined. He said he commanded the north-west expedition. The 9th battalion had not been under his immediate control, but under Gen. Strange's. It was the latter who had divided the battalion in detachments. He had censured Col. Amyot because that officer had complained of the division into detachments. He had never received letters complaining of plaintiff's conduct from one or more officers of the 9th battalion, or others. Major Guy, paymaster of the north-west expedition, gave evidence respecting the allowance made officers for horses during the campaign. Officers who furnished their own horses received $1 per day, but where the animal was furnished by the government only 35 cents were allowed for his keep. Col. Amyot drew $1.35 per day during one month for his horse and four other officers drew a like amount. Eight horses were furnished to the battalion, but he could only find trace of six.

QUEBEC, Jan. 15.—The following are copies of the telegrams, admitted to court by Col. Amyot as having been sent by him to Sir A. P. Caron, from the north-west:

SWIFT CURRENT, April 25, 1885.—Arrived here all right; found General Laurie a perfect soldier; advance of Middleton's troops too hurried, consequence being immense useless expense; volunteers should be used for garrison and the protection of place and ammunition; American scouts and Indians and half-breeds, doing the same kind of fight as the rebels, should do the fighting and attacking part. Middleton's force is exposed to be slaughtered. The troops hearty; rely upon the 9th.

CALGARY, May 14, 1885.—Will you authorize Major Dowling, or any one else, to engage at least twenty scouts for Edmonton, Crowfoot, and Gleichen? I warn the government, for I am responsible here as senior and commanding officer. For your private information I add that I persist in saying that this war should be made by men fighting in the same way as the rebels. Volunteers are specially adapted for the protection of the forts and provisions. Our volunteers are being slaughtered. Five hundred scouts are worth 2,000 volunteers for the actual fight of that kind. The men cheerful.

Most of yesterday was occupied with the further examination of Major Guy, of the militia department, Ottawa, who produced a large number of pay rolls. He said it was true that Col. Amyot had presented an account for 113 days' rations at $100 per day, giving credit for rations delivered on board the cars and claiming in all for this item $64. Similar accounts had been presented by Col. Evanturel and Messrs. Fages, Garneau, Frenette, Levasseur, Dugas and Pinault. Witness said that he had documents in his possession, proving that an investigation was asked into the statement that the officers of the 9th had retained the saddles and other objects furnished by the government.

The Reichstag is Dissolved.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—The fate of the army bill was settled to-day by the Reichstag adversely to the government, and action was immediately taken to dissolve the chambers. On the reassembling of the Reichstag, Herr Von Stauffenberg's amendment, limiting the duration of the bill to three years, was voted upon. The amendment was carried, the vote being 186 to 154. The conservatives, imperialists and national liberals voted with the socialists, and most of the Alsatian members abstained from voting. Bismarck immediately read an imperial message dissolving the Reichstag. February 21st is fixed for holding the elections.
