LATEST ELECTRIC SPARKS.

A Defeat of the Afghans. CALCUTTA, Jan. 17.—The Ghizais have attacked and defeated a regiment of troops of the Ameer of Afghanistan.

Parliament Dissolved.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—Official announcement is made to-day of the dissolution of the House of Commons. The nominations occur on Feb. 15th, and the polling of votes on Feb. 22nd.

Poisoned by Carbolic Acid.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 17.—Lottie Woodward, daughter of John Woodward, time-keeper on the G.T.R., suffering from toothache, applied carbolic acid to stop the pain, but on Friday she drank it and died shortly afterwards. She said she took it by mistake.

The "Mail's" Independent Situation.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—The Mail, in an article on the election, hopes the time is not far distant when parliament will definitely fix the term of its own life, and when cabinets shall be compelled to act within certain stringent limits in the matter of appealing to the people.

An Agreement with the Vatican.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Baron Von Scholzer, Prussian representative at the Vatican, has received despatches from the Prussian government, expressing a desire for a prompt agreement with the Vatican on religious questions at issue, and intimating Prussia's readiness to make important decisions in order to secure the agreement.

An Urgent Summons.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—W. H. Smith, first lord of the treasury, and conservative leader in the house of commons, has sent a circular to supporters of the government, asking them to make every effort to attend the opening of parliament, as they will be invited to proceed directly to the consideration of questions of grave importance.

The Unionist Liberal Union.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Mr. Gladstone is said to have written expressing his willingness to postpone the question of home rule proper for a year if his representatives and Mr. Chamberlain can come to an agreement about the Irish land bill. This latter is quoted with all reserve, as it conflicts with everything else learned about Mr. Gladstone's state of mind.

Slugging vs. Bowing.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Peter Kemp, Neil Matterson, Stansbury and others, competed in a sculling handicap on the Gouldburn river, Australia, on Saturday. A foul occurred, after which there was a scuffle, and Matterson's boat was swamped. When Kemp and Matterson reached the shore the former smashed Matterson's nose. The stakes were withheld. Stansbury went over the course, finishing first.

Boulogne's Latest Idea.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Gen. Boulanger has ordered that all the civil and military employees and officials of the war office shall have their photographs taken and affixed to pocket books in which shall be inscribed the names and qualifications of the owners. These will be distributed wherever the order is given to mobilize the troops, and the officials will be required to produce them whenever they present themselves at the war office, so as to prevent ingress of strangers.

He Was the Peacemaker.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Rev. Walter Stafford Northcote, son of the late Earl of Iddesleigh, in an interview to-day denied that his father had any quarrel with Churchill, and declared that no animosity existed between them. Northcote confirmed the statement that the Earl of Iddesleigh had acted as a peacemaker between Churchill and Salisbury, and said that for the intervention of his father Lord Randolph would not have remained in the cabinet as long as he did. Northcote said he had received a very kind letter of condolence from Churchill.

Refuse to Recognize Him.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Rev. Father Donnelly has been appointed pastor of St. Stephen's church. The people on Saturday night refused him admission to the church. On Sunday Father McGlynn was present at the masses, occupying a pew among the communicants. Father Donnelly made a tour of the church slowly, as if looking for recognition from his new parishioners. No one paid the slightest attention to him, or inclined their heads for his blessing. There is great sympathy for Dr. McGlynn.

A Curious Casualty.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16.—The schr. Parnell, for Astoria, and compelled to return owing to strong winds, was swept ashore inside the famous seal rocks opposite the Cliff house. The vessel drifted into a small cove, where she pounded against the rocks and caused the powder to ignite and nearly 100,000 lbs. exploded. The effect was frightful. The signal station was demolished, the life station was wrecked, and the west side of the Cliff house blown out and every window pane was broken.

Three members of the life-saving crew were hurled into the air and severely injured. The limbs of Horace Smith were frightfully disjuncted. The others escaped with less serious injuries.

(Special Correspondence.)

BROOKLYN, Jan. 14.—Art circles in New York have felt no sensation like that experienced for the past few days, by the exhibition of "Rembrandt's Gilder," those who have lingered in the magnificent galleries of the Louvre, Antwerp, Vienna, Berlin and London, will need no reminder of him of whose imperial genius this canvas was one of the brightest gems. Who was he whose features the great painter has thus enshrined in immortality? No man knoweth; neither can any man tell, why it is called the Gilder. Some 247 years have passed since this grand face was painted, and saving the fact that the colors are mellowed and softened by time, it might have come from the easel a year ago. The picture is not for the million, but for those who love art for art's self, and such a man is William Schaus, the fortunate owner of this treasure; and, such a man is Herman Schaus, his nephew, in whose custody this priceless canvas is placed. What is it worth? I don't know. You have often heard of a thing being worth its weight in gold. You would have to pile your double eagles very high on the gilder to get it from William Schaus. What is its great merit? It lies in the fact, that this is the absolute perfection of human portraiture. The face is the personification of absolute honesty. As Hamlet says: "I'd take the ghost's word for a thousand pounds." Walk about the room wherever you will, the eyes follow you with a kindly gaze, and, as your attention becomes more fixed on the face, it seems as if the old Dutchman might step down from the canvas to bid you a pleasant good-mornin'. William Schaus and his nephew, Herman Schaus, have done much for art in the United States, but nothing they have done, can equal the present obligation, under which they have laid all lovers of the true and beautiful in art.

Another Enoch Arden turned up in Brooklyn the other night, after an absence of thirty years. One night in 1856 Mr. P. Davis, a rich broker, had a quarrel with his wife. He walked out of the house, and she never set eyes on him again till she found him the other day a ragged tramp in a charitable institution in Brooklyn. When he left that city thirty years ago he was young and handsome, a member of all the swell clubs, with a comfortable bank account and everything prosperous about him. When he returned one bitter night last week he knocked at the door of a charitable institution. The good Samaritan, had on a light alpaca coat, ragged pants, one india rubber and one leather shoe, neither socks nor shirt, and was as miserable a specimen of humanity as one could be conceived. His children are married, and his wife is in the enjoyment of a comfortable fortune. What disposition they may make of Enoch remains to be seen, but, as yet, they have prepared no fatted calves to welcome his return.

No need to travel any more; everything is brought wholesale to our doors. On one street an entire Japanese city; on another a Pueblo from Central Mexico, no sham; on Broadway, rapidly hastening to completion, is the counterpart of the cripple gate, as it stood in London for over seven hundred years, and with it we are to have beef-eaters, halberdiers, crossbow men, and all the accessories of yore old time. When his friend remarked to Sir Charles Coldstream, "But you must acknowledge that you've nothing like St. Peter's in London," he replies, "We don't want it, my boy, we don't want it; if we did, we'd have the confounded thing tixed up and sent over."

A season or two ago thousands of our fashionable, and some not so fashionable, made a scrub race for Montreal to see tobogganing and the ice palace. Bless your heart we've got 'em all right here now—ice palace, toboggans, snow-shoes, curling irons—and now we talk of turning a few white bears loose in Central park, just to give the winter scene a sort of polar flavor. It would be so nice to see a real genuine polar bear walking around the obelisk with a pair of snow-shoes slung over his back and a toboggan in his mouth. Speaking of snow-shoes—the bravest and the best of the Montreal club dropped down on us last week. The authorities gave them the freedom of the city, and placed Central park at their disposal. There was not much snow to speak of, but what little we had, they turned to the best account, and a common New Yorker could hardly get a wink, or a smile, from a pretty girl as long as those fascinating Canadians, with their gorgeous blankets and winning ways remained in town. They were welcomed everywhere, and the only fault we had to find with them was that they did not stay long enough. No large body of men, who have ever visited this city, have left more pleasant memories behind them.

Tobogganing is our craze, and we've got it bad. When the time was first talked of, early in the winter, a young gentleman addressing a young lady said: "Miss Jenkins, do you indulge in tobogganing?" Later in December it was, "Miss Jenkins, do you tobogg?" Now, with advent of the new year, it's "Miss Jenkins, will you bog?" or "I'm going a bogging, and don't you wish you could bog?" Rough blanket coats and sleds without runners, are now all the go; and the fellow who kants tobog is no fellow at all, ye know. So, of course, every fellow wants to tobog with a lot of pretty girls on the tobog with him, half-a-dozen or so. 'Tis fun I tell you. If you don't believe it, try it. It may take your breath away at first; but, if the slide is good and the girls fat and pretty, and they hug you tight because they're afraid, you feel as if you wouldn't care if you ran into a snow bank or turned a somersault ever the north pole. Hurrah for a tobog!

The death of the Rev. Halstead Carroll, in Minnesota, closes sorrowfully a long and stormy life. A few years ago Mr. Carroll was pastor of the first reformed church in Brooklyn, and during his pastorate his name was mixed up with a number of scandals, which led to his expulsion from the pulpit. He went to Newburg, and while there again got into trouble, and was forced to pack his satchel and leave. In the west he was equally unfortunate, till he was driven from the ministry, but afterwards succeeded in getting a church in Minnesota, and died estranged from all of his former friends.

Doctor Carroll was blessed with a most engaging presence, splendid talents, and a magnetic manner, which won him friends wherever he went; but he was cursed with an overweening vanity and self-conceit which eventually led him to ruin. The son of an eminent clergyman, a favorite of fortune, with a brilliant and promising start in life, he became a moral wreck, drifted hither and thither by his own merciless passion, and instead of being borne to an honored grave, by hundreds of weeping friends, he is now only remembered with humiliating sorrow by the church he disgraced and the people he betrayed.

The society for the prevention of cruelty to children has scored another victory in procuring the sentence of Mrs. Melville, the cruel Brooklyn woman, who kept her orphan niece tied to the floor for nine long months besides almost starving her to death. The wife got off with a year in the penitentiary, while the husband and son, who stood quietly by and witnessed the horrid atrocity, day after day, escaped any punishment at all. Still it is something to know that there is in this community an association of men and women, to whom the mute and suffering look of even a dumb animal will not appeal in vain.

The recent celebration of Cornelius Vanderbilt's branch of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association has stirred up a number of rich men in our sister city of Brooklyn, where I see they organized a Young Men's Hebrew association, modelled on the plan of the Y.M.C.A. A number of wealthy hebrews have taken hold of the work, and the chances are that within a few months Young Men's Hebrew Association will be formed in all the principal cities of the union. This will be an inestimable boon to the large army of young hebrew men who trafer mercantile houses. The Brooklyn branch which will be the mother association, will in due time have a magnificent building with lectures, library, entertainments, baths, gymnasium, and all the appliances of modern civilization. It is safe to say, from the gentlemen who have business in hand, that the hebrew Y.M.A. will not be a whit behind those of their christian brothers.—BROADBRIN.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

POLITICS HAVE BEEN INTRODUCED INTO THE SCHOOLS.

Everything now Run Upon the Caucus Plan—A Chairman Proposed Because He is Experienced, and Pleading for Support Because he is Unexperienced—Striking the Committees.

The council adjourned at 1 o'clock, and the members of the school board for 1887 took possession of the council chamber. There were present Messrs. Horn, Allen, McCammon, Williamson, Anglin, Brown, Savage, Wilson, Shaw, Tracey, and Fee. Inspector Kidd and Secretary Phippen were also in attendance.

The following trustees, elected at the last election, took oath of office before Mr. William Robinson, J.P.: Messrs. J. Gaskin, R. Shaw, H. B. Savage, W. Dunlop, A. Horn, F. Tracey, T. Conley.

The secretary announced as the next order of business the election of a chairman. It was moved by R. Shaw, seconded by J. Gaskin, that H. B. Savage be chairman. Mr. Shaw stated that Mr. Savage was amply qualified for the position because of his long and varied experience. He was sure Mr. Savage would be acceptable to the electors.

There were no other nominations. Mr. Shaw asked for the yeas and nays to show that the board was unanimous.

Mr. Wilson, Dr. Fee and Secretary Phippen thought that when the chairman was elected without opposition it was not necessary to call for the yeas and nays. Mr. Savage did not wish the yeas and nays taken. After some further discussion Secretary Phippen declared Mr. Savage duly elected the chairman of the board.

Mr. Savage took the chair and stated that he hoped the members of the board would assist him willingly in the work to come before them. He asked especially for the co-operation of the members who had filled the position of chairman before him, as he was young and inexperienced and would possibly require their aid.

The following members were elected to a committee to strike the standing committees for the year: Messrs. Dunlop, Williamson, McCammon, Tracy and Shaw.

The committee retired into the police court room and selected the standing committees.

Mr. Wilson here intimated that the committees had been selected previously. Dr. Fee and A. Horn were of the same opinion. The former stated that members, who were always opposed to caucusing, were now up to their elbows in the work. He stated that this was the first time he had known politics to be introduced into the school board. Mr. Brown said Fee was mistaken.

The members of the committee took thirty-five minutes to do their work. Mr. Dunlop presented the report as follows:

Finance—The chairman, Messrs. Gaskin, Horn, Wilson and Anglin.

School Management—Messrs. Shaw, Dunlop, McCammon, Brown and Conley.

School Property—Messrs. Tracey, Williamson, Gaskin, Allen and Fee.

Library—Messrs. Williamson, Tracey, Dunlop, Brown and Fee.

Reports—Messrs. McCammon, Shaw, Conley, Wilson and Horn.

Model School—Messrs. Dunlop, Williamson and Tracey.

Louise School—Messrs. McCammon, Shaw and Gaskin.

Queen Street School—Messrs. Brown, Williamson and Shaw.

Cataract School—Messrs. Anglin, Wilson and Gaskin.

Gordon Street School—Messrs. Tracey, Conley, and Dunlop.

Frontenac School—Messrs. Conley, McCammon, and Allen.

Williamsville school—Messrs. Horn, Brown, and Dr. Fee.

Orphan's Home—Messrs. Wilson, Horn, and Fee.

The chairman entertained the members of the board at the Union hotel. Messrs. Fee, Wilson and Allen refused to attend.

"Is It Lost Forever?"

The youthful bloom, the freshness of health, the buoyancy of spirits, and all that goes to give pleasure and contentment to a heart, are they happy by health? No; not lost forever. There is hope for all. For those whose lives have been a burden, and for those who are now grovelling in the very sloughs of despondency.
