JUBILEE OF SOULS.

whirr or their wings as they pass. So to-day we see a great flock coming into the kingdom. It is not a straggler, trying to catch up with his regiment; it is solid phalanx, taking the kingdom. It is not a drop on your hand or cheek that leaves you in doubt whether it rains or not, but the rush of an unmistakable shower.

There are all ages in this flock. Some of them are young, and the very first use they make of their wings is to fly into the kingdom. Some of them are old, and their wings have been torn with shot and ruffled with the tempest, and they had almost dropped into tne sea. Some of them have been making a very crooked course. They dipped their wings in fountains of sin-they wandered near the gulf of perdition; but they saw their dangerthey changed their course. They have come at last "as doves to the windows."

I thank God that I have lived to see this day; to my dying hour I shall not cease to praise Him for this manifestation of His grace. Praise to Him, sun and moon and stars! Praise Him, church militant on earth! Praise Him, church triumphant in heaven! Let the church beneath raise up its right hand of gratulation, and the church above reach down its right hand of joy, and while the two are clasped let the elders of the church put to our lips the wine of earthly celebration, and the cupbearers of heaven bring up out of the vaults of eternity the oldest wine, prepared by Him who trod the wine press alone, and so let two world's at once keep jubilee!

Who are these who come to us to-day? Many are young. Until Robert Raikes came there was no organized effort for saving the young. We spent all of our strength trying to bend old trees, when a little pressure would have been sufficient for the sapling. We let men go'down to the very bottom of sin before we try to lift them up. It is a greal deal easier to keep a train on the track than to get it on when it is off. The experienced reinsman checks the fiery steep at the first jump, for when he gets full swing, the swift hoofs clicking fire from the pavement and the bit between his teeth, his momentum is irresistible. It is said that the young must be allowed to sow their "wild oats." I have noticed that those who sow their wild oats seldom try to raise any other kind of crop.

I went through the heaviest snowstorm I have ever known to see a dying girl. Her cheek on the pillow was white as the snow on the casement. Her large round eye had not lost any of its luster. Loved ones stood all around the bed trying to hold her back. Her mother could not give her up, her father could not give her up, and one nearer to her than either father or mother was frantic with grief. I said: "Fanny, how do you feel?" "Oh," she says, "happy, happy, Mr. Talmage; tell all the young folks that religion will make them happy." As I came out of the room, louder than all the sobs and wailings of grief, I heard the clear, sweet, glad voice of the dying girl: "Good night; we shall meet again on the other side of the river." The next Sabbath we buried her. We brought white flowers and laid them on the coffin. There was in all that crowded church but one really happy and delighted face, and that was the face of Fanny. O! I wish that to-day my Lord Jesus would go through this audience and take all these flowers of youth and garland them on his brow.

But while a great flock this day comes to the dove cot of mercy, the largest flock is going the other way. It is a very easy thing to tame doves. Go out with a handful o' corn to feed pigeons and they will fly on your shoulders and your hands, so tame are they. God has fed those who are before me with "the finest of wheat," and yet you have flown from Him all your lives long. You have taken your clothes out of His wardrobe and your bread out of His hands. God's spirit will not always strive. In the morning, after a severe night, you have gone out and seen the birds dead on the snow; so, after awhile, God's mercy will cease, and the earth will be covered with the bodies of those who perished in the storm. That storm is coming. It will shiver the mast of pride -it will drive into the white reefs of death every cargo of sin. The cedars of the mountain will split in the hurricane, and the islands shall be moved out of their places, and the continents shall be rent asunder, and the hemisphere shall whirl like a top in the fury of that day. The mountains will be blasted and the beasts, in affright, be pitched from the cliffs in an avalanche of terror. The dead shall rush forth from their sepulchres to see what is the matter, and all those who despise God shall horribly perish.

Now do you suppose that I can stand here and know that that day is coming without telling you about it? My last resting place will probably be near yours. What if, when I get up in the resurrection day, I should see you rushing at me across the lots of the cemetery, and here you cry: "Why" did you not tell me of this? If it had not been for your neglect I should have been on the way to glory." I cannot prepare myself for such a consternation.

"Can you tell me how far it is to hell?" said a young man as, on Sunday, on horseback, he dashed past a good Christian deacon. At the next turn in the road the horse threw the scoffing rider, and he was dead. He wanted to know how far it was to hell and found out without the deacon's telling him.

So thou art mounted on a swift steed, whose hoofs strike fire from the pavement as he dashes past, and you cry out: "How far is it to ruin?" I answer: "Near, very near!"

Perhaps this very day Thy last accepted time may be; Oh! shouldst thou grieve Him now away,

Then hope may never beam on thee. Oh that my Lord God would bring you now to see your sin and to fly from it; and your duty, and help you to do it, so that when the last great terror of earth shall spread its two black wings, and clutch with its bloody talons for thy soul, it cannot hurt thee, for that thou art safe in the warm dove cot of a Saviour's mercy!

Come in! come in! Eternal glory shalt thou win.

Cartoons in Colored Chalk. There are perhaps a dozen men in this city est. A leading politician is represented before and after lunching at such and such a restaurant, of in the act of executing a war coloring are rude and faulty. The class of men who do this kind of work are often very well paid and find regular employment. They are usually broken down artists or those who have made a failure in the legitimate branches of art and still have a hankering to use a pencil and color. In the holiday

A Harvest Experiment.

Sonoma, Cal., farmers have experimented with white men and Indians during the harvest season, to the exclasion of Chinamen, and are well satisfied with the result. The cost to the farmers amounted to considerable more, but the crops were harvested so much better that they are satisfied the increased expense pays them in the end.-Chicago

Oldest Person in France.

The oldest person in France, perhaps in the world, is said to be a woman who lives in the village of Auberive, in Royans. She was born March 6, 1761, and is therefore 125 years old. The authentic record of her birth is to be found in the parish register of St. Just de Claix, in the department of the Isere. -Scientific American.
