WERE'NT AFTER BOODLE.

THE PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES NOT WEALTHY.

They Don't Seem to Have Made Money Out of Their Public Offices - The "Sun's" Summary of the Riches They Had When Death Overtook Them and Removed Them.

Of the earlier presidents Washington was the wealthiest. When he died his estate at a moderate valuation was worth $300,000. Adams was a poor man, but independent in his last years, thanks to the good management, of his wife. Jefferson was wealthy when he became president, but lost his property and died insolvent. His home was sold, and his daughter was saved from want by the generosity of South Carolina, which gave her $30,000. Congress bought his library, and with the proceeds his debts were paid. All of his descendants are poor. Madison left a handsome property, and was wealthy when president. Congress bought his manuscript papers, paying $30,000 for them. Mrs. Madison's son, Payne Todd, squandered her property, and in a few years after her husband's death she was poor. His estate was valued at $280,000 in 1816.

James Monroe died insolvent. He sold his Virginia estate after the death of his wife, and died in New York.

James K. Polk left about half this amount, and, as he had no children to make use of it, his widow has enjoyed it since his death.

John Tyler was not a rich man, though he owned a fine farm in Virginia and a number of slaves. He had a large family and was so long in public life that be went to the White House poor. What he saved in office enabled him to live in comfort afterward. His second wife had means, and their eight children were well educated.

Mr. Fillmore, by a second marriage, became a wealthy man.

Franklin Pierce left no child to inherit his property, which was valued at $50,000.

President Buchanan was worth $250,000, which he gave to his nephews and nieces. Abraham Lincoln's estate was valued at $75,000. Andrew Johnson had $150,000 when he left the White House. A part of this amount was lost by the failure of the Freedman's

President Grant never had money until be became lieutenant general. His salary and the generous gifts of his friends made him a millionaire. All of his property was lost in the Grant-Ward failure. His wife is independent again through the sale of his book.

Hayes is very wealthy. The gifts to Mrs. Garfield made her rich. Her husband left a small property, worth not more than $40,000. Ex-President Arthur is worth about $100,000. Cleveland has about the same amount .-New York Sun.

What Blakely Hall Says.

Of all the silly, weak, namby-pamby, wearisome and obnoxious beings on earth, commend me to the wearer of the chestnut bell. The town has gone daft with it. Everywhere a radiant ass, with open mouth and eager eye, stands guard with his little bell to interrupt and annoy men who do not descend to his level of taciturn imbecility. In the theatre, as well as on the street-everywhere, in fact -one hears the tinkle of the bell, and observes the face of the fool grow luminous with delight as his insolence cuts short a good story or brings a clever talker to an abashed and irritated stop.

To one who has been away from New York and returns to encounter the puerile imbecility of this latest craze at the full tide, the effect is enervating and morose. Since my return I have known solemn boors, who can neither talk, think nor sing, bring famous comedians to a standstill by their little bells, and then roar loudly at their own exhibition of ill-bred and clownish impertinence; I have seen a timid but capable soubrette assailed by the turbulent tinkling of currish idiocy until she became speechless from stage fright, while the grinning apes in the orchestra chairs sent up peals of laughter at her discomfiture. It is the triumph of shallow-brained insolence over good breeding and decency. The fool is abroad-the yawping, noisy tedious, feeble and offensive fool-and he wears the chestnut bell.—Blakely Hall in San Francisco Argonaut.

English vs. American Iron Work. There is no sentiment in business. We should prefer to do business with you, but you must not ask us to take badly finished, old fashioned goods, which, no matter how well they satisfied our fathers, will not do for us. Would you be surprised to hear that no carpenter in New Zealand will use from choice an English hammer, saw, brace or anger bit! No buggy builder will use English coach bolts or tire bolts if American ones can be had even at 10 per cent, more money than the English, because he can pick up the Yankee bolt and apply it immediately to his work, and with its nice square cut thread there is less chance of nuts coming loose. What is the case with the English bolt! He will look a gross over and find every nut "jammed" so hard on the bolt that it will have to be taken to the vise and oiled and eased. This takes time, and as time is money he can't be blamed for preferring the Yankee article.-New Zealand Cor. London Ironmongers.

The Dictum of the Dancing Masters.

The dancing masters of the country who met in New York adopted three new dances two "round dances," to be called the "American Gavotte," and the "Columbia" respectively, and one square dance, the "Octagon," The "American Gavotte" will be danced to gavotte or 4-4 time, is very easy to learn, is smoother than the ordinary dances, starts sideways, then a turn and a hop and polka, and a slide afterwards and is slower than a waltz. The "Columbia" is slower than a waltz, but more vivacious than the "American Cavotte," and comprehends several varieties of hops. In the "Ostagon" eight couples dance at once and all the couples are in motion at the same time, except in one movement. It may be danced in any lancers music. There is no waltzing. The music is in 6-3 time. The dance is similar to the lancers in movement and figures, but differs from it is couples passing under each other's raised arms. - Detroit Free Press.

Americaniets at Delmonico's.

I really saw two of these Americanleis meet in Delmonico's cafe the other night. They were in evening clothes, with light topcoats weighing down two limp arms. They surveyed each other's tollets with interest and admiration, each intent upon inding some flaw in the other's get up. At last a faint smile of triumph physd over one varied face as it bent toward the other ass's ear, and I heard the whisper: "Beg pardon, old man, but the bottom button of your waistcoat is unbuttoned."-Cor. New York Star.

A Missionary in Burmah. A missionary, writing from Burmah, says he sleeps every night with a pistol under his head, and he never ventures into the Sabbath school without a revolver in his hip pocket. He says it is very finny when the superintendent gives out the bymn "Come, ye sinners," when one reflects that he has his weapon ready in case they should come too suddenly. - Boston Transcript.

THE AFTER DINNER NAP.

A Luxury About Which Opinions Differ. Concerning Sleeplessness.

There is much difference of opinion concerning the desirability of an after diruer nap. Those who advocate it cite the example of animals, but these gorge themselves with food whenever opportunity offers, and are heavy and drowsy in consequence. A short rest, however, is different from lethargic sleep, and often appears to do good. Brain work should certainly be forbidden after dinner; the interval between it and bedtime should be devoted to recreation and amusement. In the case of elderly people a short napafter a late dinner often helps digestion, but as a general rule it is better for such persons to make their principal meal at 2 p. m. The digestive powers of most elderly people are at a low ebb in the evening.

When sleeplessness is troublesome relief should ! sought for in 'the discovery and removal o. the cause whenever possible. The condition is often due to indigestion, and when this is the case the ordinary remedies for inducing sleep are worse than useless. The nervous relations between the brain and the stomach are so intimate that disorder of the one organ is almost certain to affect the other. Excitement, worry and anxiety, which have their seat in the brain, interfere with the functions of the stomach, and in like manner anything that unduly taxes the power of or irritates the stomach disorders the circulation and nutrition of the brain. The sleeplessness often complained of by gouty persons is due to the poisonous effect of the morbid material upon the nervous system. Excessive smoking, too much alcohol, tea and coffee, often resorted to by overworked persons, are frequent causes of sleeplessness. In all these cases the cause is removable, while the effect may be counteracted by appropriate treatment. Nothing is more mischievous, however, than to continue the habits and to have recourse to drugs to combat the effects. A due amount of exercise tends to induce normal sleep, and such exercise need not be of a violent character. A walk of two or three miles daily is sufficient, and is, perhaps, as much as a busy man can find time for. A ride on horseback, the Palmerstonian cure for gout, is probably the best form of exercise for those whose minds are constantly at work. It has been well said that a man must come out of himself when in the saddle; he is forced to attend to his horse and to notice the objects he meets. Walking may be a merely automatic process, and affords little, if any relief to the mind, and carriage exercise may be practically valueless if the mind is not diverted from what had previously occupied it. - Fortnightly Review.

The Sikhs of West Africa.

Following my companion's outstretched finger I espy something which at the first glance looks like a yellow-headed African whose hair has grown down to his waist. But the next moment I see that the supposed Esau is wearing an enormous hat of dried grass, the long, straggling ends of which completely hide his upper figure and make him appear as if carrying a bage truss of straw. He has scarcely passed when up come four or five stalwart blacks in dark blue uniforms and searlet facings, who carry their rifles in a smart, soldier-like fashion suggestive of long discipline. These are the famous Houssas, the Sikhs of West Africa, who form a kind of armed constabulary along the whole Guinea coast. Though almost unknown to the civilized world they have done many a deed of valor as heroic as any which has been famed in story and song. Only the other day one of their English officers was telling me, with a glow of honest admiration on his handsome face, how thirty of his negro warriors made good their ground again it ten times their number of savage Awoonas till their ammunition was spent and then charged home with the bayonet, sweeping away their swarming enimies like chaff. -Accra Cor. New York

An Ingenious Dancing Shoe.

Mrs. James Brown Potter, that social queen of whom so much has been heard since she startled the good people of Washington last winter by reading "'Ostler Joe," has endeared herself to the feminine world by the invention of an ingenious dancing shoe. The shoe is warranted by the inventor to unlace six times every hour. In the invention of this valuable addition to the feminme ball toilet the force of the lady's genius was spent not upon the shoe itself, but upon the lacing, in which more destiny may be said to be involved. A series of trials demonstrated to the fair inventor's satisfaction that a shoe tied with a stiff ribbon would become unfastened the requisite number of time, and after much judicious shopping a ribbon of the proper stiffness was found. As soon as the muscles of the instep are exerted the ribbons give way, then untie, and the next moment trail upon the floor. This, of course, necessitates a kneeling knight at beauty's feet a provokingly triumphant number of times. In a crowded ball room the effect is said to be superb.-Chicago Times.
