SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

IMPORTANT PROBLEM OF AN-THROPOLOGY.

Successful Experiment with a Nickel Plated Lightning Rod-A Peculiar Combination of Bridge, Cable Car and Ferry Boat, Known as the Traveling Bridge.

In the harbor of St. Malo, France, a peculiar combination of bridge, cable car and ferry boat has been for fifteen years successfully used to convey passengers and vehicles across to the town of Saint-Servan.

A TRAVELING BRIDGE.

The illustration here given represents this traveling bridge, as it is termed in Popular Science News. At high tide the water reaches nearly to the top, and the bridge presents a strange-appearance us it travels across the water like some gigantic insect. The structure is about thirty-three feet high, and moves upon rails laid on the bottom of the harbor. It is built as lightly as is consistent with safety, so as to avoid friction in passing through the water. The motive power is applied by wire cables, connected with a stationary engine. The distance traversed is about 275 feet, and the trip is made in a minute and a half. No accident has ever occurred, and communication has never been interrupted by wind or weather. This system of transportation is specially adapted to small harbors or streams, where an ordinary bridge is impracticable on account of expense or interference with navigation; and there are doubtless many localities in this country where a similar institution would be a public convenience and paying investment.

Book Worms and Their Food.

The book worms-that is, the larva that eats book and binding-is named, according to Mr. Sydney Klein, tenebrio mollitor, and is a coleopter. It is attracted by the gluten in the paste employed in binding the books. The tenebrio find rich pastures in the books of today, when these are not medicated.

Light is afforded on the subject of medication by Mr. Russel Gabbins. His tenebrios showed a decided preference for dark colored paper, while light yellow paper, almost without exception, escaped. One of the papers that escaped was a light green—an arsenical paper. Popular Science, commenting on the above, suggests that the light yellow paper was probably colored with chrome yellow, chromite of lead. So it appears that the insect may be fought by exercising judgment in coloring the papers which are to receive the Abnormal Growth of Hair.

The abnormal growth of hair over the entire body of individuals of the human race, of which instances are not rare, is caused, according to the statement of Professor Mason, by the persistence of the prenatal, downy hair, or rather the non-development of the hair follicles. This persistence of the embryonal covering is shown, as a normal condition, in the ostrich, apteryx and penguin, where the feather follicles produce through life the soft downy plumage of the chick.

ADRIEN TESTICHEW.

A correspondent in Science recalls the case of Adrien Testichew, the Russion "dog man," whose picture is here given, as a remarkable illustration of this abnormal growth of the hair, and explains that this hair is not always soft and downy but may, through pathological conditions, be coarse like that of the adult. The animal or doglike appearance of Testichew is also probably as striking as any ever observed. A family of the Six' conth century, however, presented a very sunilar aspect. In this family, the father, son and daughter were all covered, according to descriptions now extant, over the entire body with long hair, with the exception of a space below the eyes.

The notable case of Julia Pastrana, of Mexico, may also be cited. She was a most repulsive looking person, the hair of the head, forehead and face being coarse like ordinary hair, and her cheeks and nose nearly bare. Another point of interest in these abnormal cases is the tendency shown to heredity. Thrice has the anomaly been developed in the second generation, and once, in the Birman family, in the third.

Tunnel in the Rocky Mountains.

A tunnel is projected to be bored under Gray's peak, in the Rocky mountains. It will be placed 4,441 feet below the summit of the mountain, will be 25,000 feet long and will give direct communication between the valleys in the Atlantic slope and those of the Pacfic side, with a shortening of some 300. miles in the transmontane distances.

A Nickel Lightning Rod.

It is reported that the experiment of placing a nickel plated lightning rod on a building has been successfully tried in Dresden. The advantages claimed by advocates of this metal are that, being non-corrodible, it will last longer than fron, and will also keep bright at the points, which latter is very essential to the efficiency of rods as conductors of electricity.

How to Determine Death,

M. Peyrand affirms that one of the best means of determining the death of an individual is cauterization by Vienna paste. If the eschar forms slowly, and is of a yellow color or transparent, death may be positively declared, while if it is red, brown or black, life still exists.

RUSSELL SAGE'S NEW CLOCK.

How It Came to Be Left in His Office, and Other Paragraphs of Interest.

A brand new clock stands on the top of Russell-Sage's desk in Russell Sage's office in the Manhattan building, at Broadway and Rector street. It is one of those handsome French affairs, tooled with gold lines, and bears up into prominence a bronze figure, which in this particular case is a reproduction of the Statue of Liberty. Now if there is one thing Mr. Sage does not need in his office it is a clock. As he sits at his work he can look straight out of the window and find the clock of Old Trinity looking right at him, although, of course, the hands of the clock partially cover the face. But it looks down and tells the time with silent eloquence. And I know that Mr. Sage consults it, so J mentioned the fact of the new clock with a little surprise.

"Oh, it was left here," said Mr. Sage with a smile. "A chap down on the street insisted on leaving it."

"Not as collateral?" This was intended for

"No, no. I helped him a little. He had 100 shares of Western Union when that excitement of last month was developed. He was about wiped out, and the brokers were hounding him for more margin, which he did not have to put up. He came to me, and I told him to have the brokers send the stock to my office-that I would take care of it. Well, I carried it for him, and when the stock jumped up he sold out at a profit. He told me that I had saved him from ruin, and he wanted to give me something to mark his gratitude."-New York Mail and Express.

Senator Stanford Does Not Insure. Manning Logar has secured the agency for a company whose business it is to insure the lives of horses, and is doing pretty well with it. There is a good deal of fine stock in Washington, but the man who has the most and the best never insures. This is Senator Stanford. He does not even insure his houses, and hasn't such a thing as an insurance policy among all his papers. He says that he would patronize a company that would agree to replace what is lost or destroyed, but he does not want money guarantees. Everything he has is of more value to him than to any one else, and if money can replace what he loses, he has it. If a lost article cannot be replaced he wants no one to compensate him for its loss.

Too Much Art for the Dog.

The poor little dog which had strayed from its owner went dodging down State street the other afternoon. The rush of travel bewildered the little beast, and he was almost frantic with terror, when he chanced to stop in front of one of the big iron lions that stand in front of a dry goods house. The little cur glanced upward and saw the lion scowling down at him. With a yelp of terror he dodged across the sidewalk. Then the stopped a moment, glanced over his shoulder, as if to assure himself that what he saw was not an apparition conjured up by a disordered dog intellect, became satisfied that the lion was really there, and then ran howling down the street. Art was too much for him-Chicago News.

ROCKPORT.

Feb. 1.—There is much talk in Alexandria Bay of a railroad being built in that place and across the Thousand Isles to Rockport and connect to the C.P.R.-S. Pattison has gone to the natural bridge, in York State, to build skifts. - Miss Peters, of Victoria, is visiting friends here.

FOOT OF THE ISLAND.

Jan. 29. - William Piller and Herbert Orser, from Glenvale, have been visiting here. -Business dull; no travel on the ice. Our worthy customs officer, tired of this enforced state of doing nothing, while gazing across the ice saw a couple of boys with a hand sled coming from the American side: he followed and seized a part of their load, five gallons of coal oil; he needed no assistant nor did he lose any sleep; it was in broad day light. We are expecting a public sale of oil.

GODERICH.

Feb. 2.-Last week a number of accidents occurred. Mr. Drew, an employer in Ogilvie & Hutchinson's big mill, had his arm badly mangled while oiling the machinery. It is hoped that he will not lose the arm. -George Elliott, a young farmer, was kicked in the chest by a colt he was leading, by which the heart received a wound and death was instantoneous. - Mr. Lacey, milkman, slipped while taking a can from his sleigh and fell, injuring his spine.

ODESSA. Feb. 2. - Monday and Tuesday were occupied by Rev. Fr. McWilliams and Rev. Fr. Miller, missionary priests, with the mission services of the Roman Catholic church. There was a good attendance throughout and many Protestants heard Rev. Fr. Miller's eloquence and expressed admiration. This is evidence of commendable liberality. - An enjoyable time was spent last evening at Mr. Hanlan's. - Uncle Joseph Sproule has returned from Uncle Sam's domains, well pleased with Yankee hospitality.

CATARAQUI.

Feb. 2. - Apples keeping very poorly. They will be very scarce before spring .-The people of Cataraqui, and the travelling community, find the little fountain and watering trough placed by the side of the road near the town hall by Mr. Nicol a great accommodation. - Mr. and Mrs. Herr are spending a few weeks with friends at Verona, and will spend a few days here on their way to Montreal. - Judging from the large quantity of draining tile leaving Mr. Martin's establishment he must make a good article at a reasonable rate.

PARHAM.

Jan. 31. - The proceeds of the concert and oyster supper at the dedication of the English church on Tuesday, 22nd., amounted to $43. - Martin Beattie is dangerously ill. -J. A. Griffith is slightly better, but still confined to his room. -Jas. Black has made an amateur tobogganing slide on which the boys have great fun. - W. Bertrim is taking the pride out of all the trotting fraternity with his new horse (Miracle.) - Snow fell to the depth of two inches on Sunday evening, and the wind was very boisterous. - H. T. Shibley will address the electors in the school house on Thursday evening.

WILTON.

Feb. 1. - There was a mistake about the Telumann family concert, as it is to be Saturday, Feb. 5th. - Master B. Simmons has been seriously ill. Drs. Beman and Meacham have hopes of his recovery. - Mrs. R. Lapum has been suffering from bronchitis, but is improving under the skilful treat. ment of Dr. Day. Two weddings are on the tapis. Mr. Rattray, of Queen's college, delivered an excellent discours on Sunday evening. The congregation was small owing to the severe snow storm. - Mr. Thompson, of Montreal, is visiting friends in Wilton. - Mrs. Harriet Shibley, sister of the late Sidney Warner, died on Jan. 30th, at the residence of her daughter, wife of Rev. Mr. Gibson, of Metcalfe. Her remains were put in the vault here.

ELGIN.

Jan. 31. - Mr. Sexton re-opened the school on the 3rd. - Unknown parties attempted to break into the yault a few nights ago. They left behind them a rubber and driving glove. -Rev. Mr. McAmmond has purchased the late Canada Methodist church, which he purposes to convert into a dwelling house. -Our merchants are doing a flourishing business. - This is becoming onite a tewn, a goodly number of residences having been erected in the past year, and prospects of as many in the coming season. - Miss Pennock is doing a good business in the millinery work. Her new shop presents a fine appearance. - Mr. Grey, our reeve, is attend. ing council at Brockville. - Mr. Ruthven, cheesemaker, is erecting a factory in Storrington. - Mr. Taylor, M.P., will speak in is attending the Dominion business college. - Miss Edgers is teaching at No. 6.
