POMEROY'S
PETROLINE
POROUS PLASTER
 Cures Backache, Lung Troubles, Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Etc.

A trial will convince the most skeptical that they are the best. They are medicated with capsicum and the active principle of petroleum, being far more powerful in their action than other plasters. Do not be induced to take others, but be sure and get the genuine "Petroline," which is always enclosed in an envelope with the signature of the proprietors, The P. W. P. Co., and directions in four languages: also seal on front and back of each plaster. Sold by first-class druggists, at 25 cents each.

PEDACURIA
CORN PLASTERS
 Are the best known remedy for hard and soft corns, and never fail to cure. Price 25 cents.

GETTING WAGNER'S DRAGON READY.

The Prodigious Monster Which Will Lash His Tail and Roar at Siegfried. The dragon in its early stage of development gives the unheroic idea of an immense bustle. The body and tail are of steel wire wound in spiral shape and tapering off from a diameter of three feet at the shoulders to a minimum at the tip of the tail thirty feet away. Over this framework a covering of green silesia has been placed to afford a chance for fastening of the scales. These will be some 5,000 in number and are made of leather in strips five inches or so in length and about three inches in width. These overlap each other and are tinged with iridescent colors which will give the beast a glittering and imposing aspect when he is completed and in working order beneath the electric light. The steel wires project about the shoulders and front part of the beast's body, so that when covered with scales the dragon has the appearance of a horny monster. The head and feet are of papier mache. The head is some three-feet in length and of about the same depth, with a lower jaw which is ominous in size. The feet are three-toed and cover a space two feet square. Yet head, feet and body are together so light that they will not weigh over fifty pounds all told. The feet are front feet, of course only two in number. The rear part of the body runs on two casters. A man will work the monster from the inside, his head extending up into a huge hummock just behind the dragon's head, his feet being encased in Wellington boots fitted into the feet of the animal. The manipulator will be enabled by a system of wires to turn the casters, swing them around and at the same time control the head movements and the lower jaw of his charge. Incandescent electric lights form the dragon's eyes, and the eyelids of these are moved by the inhabitant within. Steampipes will be introduced at the tail of the dragon and at the proper moment steam will be forced out of his nostrils. When the steam and the eyelids and the jaw and the head are working at their liveliest, men in the flies, with wires attached to the dragon's tail, will make that part of the beast thrash the air in fury, while in the wings a mighty trumpet will sound forth musical notes in which the dragon will express musical sentiments appropriate to the occasion, at least until Siegfried shall put an end to the tumult. Mr. Bradwell is proud of his progeny and thinks his initial appearance will be a great success. —New York Tribune.

Japanese Craze for European Dress. One stray crumb of comfort is that this crazy taste for European dress can not go very far. In a country where there are no chairs and people squat on the floor; where no table is more than six inches high; where boots must be removed outside the door lest they should soil the mats, which are tables, tablecloths, seats, couches, carpets, beds and bedding, all in one; where grooms speed along on foot and keep up with their masters on horseback; where the laborer toils half the year in the rice fields up to his middle in mud and water; where the artisans and handicraftsmen work at their vocations in a state of semi-nudity, and where the first impulse of every one, male and female, about to exert themselves, is to cast away the upper half of their garments—in such a country, happily, the unpicturesque, inconvenient Phylistine dress of the west can never be naturalized, unless the whole face of social life and manners, and even of nature herself, be changed. —Cor. London Times.

Origin of "Fred's Pouch." A new article is now seen hanging up in the caboose of freight trains, as well as in freight houses along many lines of road. It is a leather case or bag, labeled "Fred's Pouch," and contains a supply of the articles most needed when a man is injured, such as court plaster, bandages, splints, laudanum, arnica, ether, lint, twine, thread and needles.

"Fred" was a railroad man, who met with a terrible accident, and was obliged to lie upon the floor of the caboose for some hours with his wounds not dressed, and with nothing at hand to alleviate his intense sufferings. He could have been greatly relieved if there had been on the train a few of the articles now to be found in Fred's Pouch.

On returning to his post, after a long convalescence, he induced his company to provide freight trains and freight houses, all along their lines, with a repository to which Fred's grateful comrades promptly gave his own name. —Youth's Companion.

Men and Women as Travelers. "I saw a statement in a paper the other day to the effect that the number of women travelers is greater than that of the men in the proportion of two to one. This is a great mistake, and so obviously one that I wonder anybody should ever have printed so misleading an item. The facts are exactly to the contrary. The number of men travelers is twice as great as the number of women. In day coaches you will often find more women than men, but in the smoking cars—and they are generally full—few women are found. In the sleeping cars, too, the women are in the minority. I have made careful observations on this score, counting train after train of passengers, and my conclusion is that for every woman traveler there are two men." —Chicago Herald.

A Bogus Grant Medal. Something of a surprise has been occasioned at Washington by the discovery that the fine, large gold medal given to Gen. Grant for distinguished services in the Mexican war, which is among the medals placed in the National museum, is bogus. All the Grant medals have been weighed by the Smithsonian savants to test their value. The Mexican medal has a specific gravity of only 7, when it should weigh about 16. It isn't worth as much as copper even, which weighs 9. —Chicago Herald.

Pollster and the Queen. In his lately published memoirs, Count Brest tells this story of the brave but bluff and gruff Marshal Polissier, when the latter was in England. Sitting at dinner with the queen, the hero of the Malakoff found himself in the immediate vicinity of her majesty, and also of an open window. Hating draughts, the old warrior turned to the servants with a peremptory "Fermes les fenetres." The queen, who always humored him, burst out laughing, and repeated the order in English. —Foreign Letter.

A Working Girl's Mail. One of the girls working in the mills at Bliddeford, Me., gets more letters than any other woman in town. She is the youngest of thirty-two children born to the same parents, and twenty-three brothers and sisters who still live write to her every week. How she manages her share of the correspondence has not yet been printed. —New York Sun.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne
 THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
 ADVICE TO INVALIDS—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish to calm and assuage the weary aching of protracted disease, invigorating the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne, (late Army Medical Staff) to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
 CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis and Asthma.
 CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
 CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.
 CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Menstritis, &c.
 From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly-entitled medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility we must question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy that their sojourn there will be but transient. We could multiply instances "ad infinitum" of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhoea and Dysentery, Spasms, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhoea, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST, TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharmacy Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.
 CAUTION—Vice-Chancellor Sir Page Wood stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to. —See "Times," July 13, 1884.
 Sold in bottles at 1s. 1/4d., 2s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
 CAUTION—Beware of Piracy and Imitation.
 Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London Eng. Aug. 9.
