Expense of the Egyptian Army.
LONDON, Feb. 15.—A panic has been caused in financial and military circles at Cairo by the withdrawal of the annual subvention of $1,200,000 for the expenses of the Egyptian army.

Agreeing to a Consolidation.
BOSTON, Feb. 15.—It is stated that the Metropolitan and Cambridge street car lines have agreed to consolidate. This will place 150 miles of car track and 2,300 employees under one management.

In a Rebellious Mood.
DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—Some 50 men made a raid this evening upon the houses in Ballyvourney and Kilmichael county, Cork, and seized all the firearms they could find. They successfully evaded the police.

The Ructions Go On.
DUBLIN, Feb. 14.—A body of police at Loughrea to-day broke into a tavern and stole a quantity of liquor. They afterwards made an unprovoked attack upon several citizens, wounding several with their batons.

A Remarkable Experiment.
NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—There has just been tried in this city for the first time the experiment of transferring the eye of a living rabbit to the head of a living human being, viz., Charles A. Williams, city editor of the Minneapolis Tribune.

Going in for Coast Defences.
BOSTON, Feb. 15.—The legislature has adopted resolutions urging upon congress the appropriations of liberal sums for the purpose of coast defence, and for the building of a navy that will command the confidence of our people and the respect of other nations.

Mr. Gladstone's Reasons.
LONDON, Feb. 14.—Mr. Gladstone did not vote on Mr. Parnell's amendment because he was opposed to dividing the house on this question, being in favor of bringing in Home Rule bill, and basing on that the critical vote of the house of commons, and not on a mere amendment to the address.

Asking for Votes of Credit.
VIENNA, Feb. 15.—A council of ministers has decided that delegations shall meet on March 1st. The government will ask a credit of 25,000,000 florins to complete the military supplies, also an extra credit, not exceeding the former, which will only be utilized if the political situation continues threatening.

Trial of the Nationalists.
DUBLIN, Feb. 14.—The trial of Messrs. Dillon, Redmond, O'Brien, O'Reilly and others, on a charge of conspiracy, for agitating in favor of the plan of campaign, was formally opened to-day. Mr. Redmond was absent on account of illness. The travellers' counsel raised several technical points against the proceeding.

The Action of the Pope.
MUNICH, Feb. 15.—The Nachrichten publishes a letter from a Catholic authority stating that direct orders from the pope caused the publication of the Jacobini letters, which are now being officially circulated among all the bishops, and that should the centre maintain its opposition to the septennate a fresh and decisive step will be taken by the pope to prevent the positive vote of the centre against the septennate.

Thomas Edison's Condition.
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The World says Thomas A. Edison is a victim of consumption, and will probably never return from Florida. The same paper prints an interview with Mr. Edison, in which the inventor says that he has discovered a method of creating artificial food by an artificial process, thus dispensing with the necessity of raising grains, vegetables, cattle, &c., for food purposes.

An Earthquake in Japan.
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A letter from Rev. M. S. Vail, missionary teacher in Tokio, Japan, describes an earthquake which occurred there Jan. 15th, as one of the severest that had ever been experienced. Considerable damage was done though no lives were lost. This is the date of the earthquake at Hawaii, mentioned in the San Francisco dispatch of Friday last, when the volcano Mauna Loa became active. The peculiarities of the earth vibrations in two remote places at the same moment were very similar.

The Abuse in Lotteries.
PARIS, Feb. 15.—In the chamber of Deputies last night Mr. Dorano questioned the government with reference to the abuses in legalized lotteries. He said the bulk of the proceeds of these lotteries went to the promoters instead of being devoted to charities. Premier Goblet admitted that such abuses existed, but he affirms that they could only be prevented by the passing of a law absolutely prohibiting lotteries. He would, however, endeavor as far as possible to remedy the evil. Mr. Dorano accepted the promise.

UNTRUE TO KINGSTON.

SIR JOHN'S SPEECH BEFORE THE PEOPLE OF CARLTON.

HE TAKES CREDIT FOR HIS DESERTION OF THIS CITY.

He Says Ottawa has the Parliament Buildings Owing to his Persistence in Having Them Put There—Not a Matter for Which Some Men Would Take Credit—The Government Has Not Done Anything for the Poor of This City—The Facts in Brief.

At a time when Kingston is asking a science school from the Mowat government and its premier, whom she once rejected in favour of Sir John A. Macdonald, it is in order to enquire what Sir John himself has ever done for the city to which he owes his political life and successful career. Kingston first returned John A. Macdonald to parliament in the year 1844; for a period of 34 years, and on a dozen different occasions she renewed the misplaced confidence he now again wishes her to bestow. During over 20 years of that period, as the real head of the government, he had unlimited opportunities to advance Kingston's interests. Did he ever trouble himself to secure her even simply justice? Has he not rather, time and again, sacrificed her interests—as he has ever remorselessly sacrificed the friends to whom he owed the most to his own personal interests and selfish ambition? Take as a signal instance, but one of many, his treason in securing the seat of government for Ottawa instead of Kingston—the first, the best, the most natural position, and which, if only he had so willed it, had been to-day the national capital. Read these words, fresh from his own lips at Manotick, on Thursday last, as reported by his own personal organ, the Ottawa Citizen, not yet repudiated:

As a candidate for the suffrages of the county of Carlton he had good claims. He claimed their support as being INSTRUMENTAL IN HAVING OTTAWA ESTABLISHED AS THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, thereby ensuring its development from a lumbering village to a large and prosperous metropolis of the great dominion. (Cheers and applause.) He then referred to the great advantages which the farmers of the surrounding district derived in having so valuable a home market for the produce of their farms. He also claimed their suffrages on the ground of having LOCATED THE DOMINION EXPERIMENTAL FARM IN THE COUNTY OF CARLETON, and described the great advantages which such an institution would confer upon the agricultural industries of the dominion, and particularly those of the county of Carleton.

Or this, from the report of the same speech in the Toronto Mail, the subsidized organ whose inconvenient utterances he now pretends to repudiate, but whose "independent" support he says he is still glad to receive:

He (Sir John) was seeking re-election in Carleton, and thought he had some claims on the constituency. He recited the events which led to the SELECTION OF OTTAWA AS THE DOMINION CAPITAL OF THE DOMINION and said, when defeated in the house because he had held that the Queen's choice should be accepted, he had refused to continue the government or accept a vote of confidence under any other circumstances. BY SOME SECOND SIGHT a quality which it was said Scotchmen possessed (laughter) HE HAD IT IN HIS MIND THAT AT SOME FUTURE DAY HE WOULD REPRESENT CARLETON IN PARLIAMENT. (Renewed laughter.) OTTAWA WAS FINALLY AGREED UPON, THROUGH HIS PERSISTENT ADVOCACY, and to-day, instead of being a mere backwoods lumbering village every inhabitant of Carleton and of the Ottawa Valley generally owed the prosperity of that section of the country to the fidelity with which the CONSERVATIVE PARTY, LED BY HIMSELF, FORCED THE UNWILLING LEGISLATORS OF CANADA to stand by the honor of the country and by the selection of the Queen. (Applause.) A great experimental farm had been located in Carleton, so that he thought, even if he were not a member for the county, HE HAD A PRETTY GOOD CLAIM UPON THEIR SUFFRAGE.

This language was used by him not far from the place where, according to his Montreal organ La Minerve, at a Catholic picnic last July, he thrice denied that "he had ever set foot in an Orange lodge." On Thursday last, however, for once at all events he told the simple truth, for on referring to the journals of the house the name of Macdonald, (J.A.) M.P. for Kingston, is found in the division lists again and again voting in favor of Ottawa and against Kingston as "the permanent seat of government."

Every schoolboy knows that under our constitution the Queen has no more to say than the man in the moon, but is guided entirely by the governor, acting under his responsible advisers, of whom Sir John was chief. It is not the only time that the "right honourable and gallant knight" has taken shelter behind the throne and sought to cast the odium of his own doings upon the sovereign he had sworn to honour and defend. No quibbling ingenuity can efface the damning fact that Kingston has to thank the man she trusted for this base and heartless betrayal of her trust. What has he done for her since? Can he even claim that his policy has developed her local industries, from the cotton mill to the smelting works, with its tall but smokeless chimney? Years before Sir John turned his celebrated somersault from free trade to protection, landing him on his feet in office, Canada had her cotton and woollen factories paying both their owners and their hands better than ours have ever done in Kingston. Such as they are would either they or the locomotive works be running to-day but for reformers' capital and energy? Who holds the bulk of their stock? Who is the largest individual shareholder? Is it not Alexander Gunn? Has Sir John invested in Kingston's enterprises any of the thousands he wrung under the pleasant make-believe of "testimonials," from the civil servants, the contractors, and the companies? Too knowing a bird for that was our guileless old man. Salted away in Liverpool docks, and other safe and lucrative foreign bonds and securities, are his substantial tokens of the bootlers' gratitude for "favours to come." Not a dollar of his capital is invested in Kingston.

Sir John does not it is to be hoped, expect his hearers to take him seriously when he claims credit for the "prosperity of the country." Dare he or any one pretend that times are not harder and work scarcer to-day than they were even in 1877 or 1878? Let him ask the officers of St. Vincent de Paul and the other relief societies, Protestant as well as Catholic, visit the Houses of Providence and Industry. It is no exaggeration to say that spite of the drainage expressly commenced to furnish work there are at this moment more workingmen, sober, deserving and anxious to be employed, seeking work and finding none than ever before in Kingston's history. What has Sir John ever contributed to the relief of their distress? Nay, we forget. Has he not taken the taxes levied on our fuel and our food to bring out by "assisted passages" the pauper labour of Europe to take the bread already too scant from the mouths of our people? Is there the slightest ground to hope that Sir John Macdonald, without a single interest—without even a vote in Kingston, would, if elected, serve her more loyally in the future than he has done in the past? Can he once more succeed in pulling the wool over Kingstonian's eyes by his patriotic appeal for the support of his "old friends?"

Until the present election how often has he even visited his "old friends" within the last dozen years? How much was he thinking of his "old friends" when, for one of the "best local offices" he preferred his namesake from Glangarry? Sir John sometimes affects a knowledge of Shakespeare, not always strictly accurate, as he does of constitutional law and some other things. Referring him, therefore, to the "Merchant of Venice," might not his "old friends" thus fitly answer his appeal:

"Well then it now appears, you need our help. Go to then, you come to us and you say, 'Old friends, I want your votes.' . . . Shall we bend low and in a bondman's key, With bated breath and whispering humbleness, Say this: Fair sir, you spat on us on Thursday last, You spurned us such a day; another time You called us dogs, and for these courtesies, We shall vote for GUNN."
