CARDINAL JACOBINI.

Career of the Prelate Who Helped Bismarck Win His Last Victory.

Ludovico Jacobini, who died a few days ago at Rome and to whom Bismarck's success at the late elections is so largely due, was born at Albano, middle Italy, May 6, 1832, and was therefore not quite 55 years old at the time of his death. He was early distinguished for learning, and after graduating at the Collegio Romano received in rapid succession the degrees of doctor of theology and doctor of civil and canon law. In 1862, when but 30 years of age, Pope Pius IX appointed him one of the domestic prelates, and soon after he was made a censor of the Roman Theological academy, a very high honor indeed, only

During all these years he was chiefly known as a scholar and ardent controversialist. specia!": familiar with the history of local branches of the church and particularly the eastern and German branches. But in 1874 he was suddenly called to an entirely new field. in which he won those honors by which he is best known to Americans,

In that year Mgr. Jacobini was named as papal nuncio to the court of Vienna on the ground that he had all the knowledge of eastern affairs to fit him for the place, combined with the courtesy of a diplomat, the skill of a politician and a loyal devotion to the church. The highest encomiums were justified by his success. He reached Vienna when the party in power there was bringing forward laws relating to the confessional and other matters. severely restricting what were claimed as the rights of the church; yet he succeeded in extracting all their hardies features from these laws, securing the good wall of all he met and placing the Vatica-I American court on the most friendly food

INGERSOLL'S ELOQUENCE.

Col. Bob Paroled for Fear He Would Steal the Confederate Army.

"I served in Col. Bob Ingersoil's command," said a veteran of the Ociviltree club at the panorama of Bull Run this morning, "and whenever I want to have a good laugh I recall to my mind the incidents connected with his capture in Tenrosee. I have seen Headquarters for Clover and Timothy Seed, | somewhere a cruel.par.raph to the effect Seed Grain, Choice Family Flour, Pressed Hay. | that the colonel surrendered very willingly and I want to brand that falsehood for juwhat it is. A binver man I never saw is five that of service. We were scattered over a good deal of territory surrounding village at the time the colonel was taken in and cared for by the Contederates. We were in a skiftinish at the time, and the colonel was trying to get to a demoralized wing of his command. As he was pass ng through a serie. of cattle pens he was surrounded by a lot o. Confer's rates and commanded to surrender but he idn't do it worth a cent. He kept right on, this tiling at breaknes k speed. He was not so stout then as now, and as a periestrian he was no slouch. The bullets were flying about him thick as hail. If he could get to another branch of his command he felt that he could rally the boys and win the fight. A number of his men saw that he was in imminent peril, and that if he didn't surrender he would be killed, and they yelled at him at the top of their voices to stop and surrender. He beeded, but I could see that he did so with regret and disgust. Here is where the humor began. When the colonel stopped he threw up his hands and screamed out: 'Stop firing! I'll acknowledge your - old Confederacy!" The colonel was taken over to a store for safe keeping, and he proved to be a great curiosity. People flocked around him, listened to his stories, laughed and declared that they were having more fun than they ever had in all their lives. That night the colonel sat around the store till a goodly number of the Confederates came in, and he began to treat and tell yarns. Finally the crowd overflowed the place and blocked up the entrance to it. Then the colonel went outside. The boys were all feeling well under the potency of words and drinks, and every man, woman and child | 18c per II. Jas. Crawford. within the sound of his voice loved him. Directly the colonel was asked to make a This was what he was working for, nici a minute later be was on a box and addressing the crowd-and it was a right rough crowd, too. No lecture that great orator has ever delivered contained so much that was good in it. It fairly bubbled over with good will and the milk of buman kindness. He pictured how regretfully the north took up arms against the south, reminding his hearers IN THE DULL SEASON HOME that they had fired the first shot in their assault upon Fort Sumter. If anything clogs the waste pipes in the house we become alarmed, for sewer gas is apt to generate disease. The children, then, are removed to their grandparents, or kept out of doors as much as possible, until the defect is remedied. But the waste-pipes of the human system are often allowed to clog, and the sufferer, who cannot get away from the poison, becomes unfit for work or pleasure. In such cases Dr. Pierre's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" will gently remove the cause, and the effect will vanish of itself. Sold by all druggists.
