THE ST. PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRA-TION AND CONCERT.

A Musical Event of More Than Average Merit - The Various Features of the Programme Richly Eajoyed-Rev. Fr. McGrath Upon the Aspect of the Home Rule Question.

St. Patrick's day was fittingly closed by the holding of a concert in the opera hou se. The affair was gotten up by the members of the I.C.B.U. branch, No. 483, and was probably the best entertainment of the kind given in the city this season. The excellence of the programme, the arranging of which devolved upon several members of the society, reflected great credit upon them. Sons of Ireland, accompanied by their wives and sweethearts, graced the building. The turn out was unusually large, and every seat, even to the gallery, the haven of the gods was occupied before eight o'clock. Many people were, to their great discomfort, forced to stand during the evening. Mr. J. J. Behan was master of ceremonies, and a better man for that position could not have been chosen. He was afavourite with all, and especially with the ladies.

The first part of the entertainment was given by a band of young men, a purely amateur organization, styled on the programme the "Irish Minstrels." They furnished singers and musicians. The opening piece was an overture, "Moore's Centennial." The music was so inspiring that everybody was delighted with it, and was sorry when it finished. Charles Greaza sang, "Take Me Back Again, Mavourneen;" R. Tomminy, "Gathering the Myrtle with Mary," and "John Malone;" Charles Kane, "Norah of Cahircivean; John Andrien, "The Grand Old Man Again." The singers were assisted in the choruses by the minstrels. All the songs were well presented and rapturously applauded. Mr. R. Tomminy, late of Kingston, now located in the west, took the house by storm. He has a sweet and well cultivated voice. A quartette, "The Last Rose of Summer," was excellently given by Messrs. Andrien, Behan, Phalen and Kane. "St. Patrick's Day" was played by the band and then the curtain dropped.

Miss Letitia Bateson was delegated to open the last half of the first part of the programme, and captivated the affections of her audience when she presented "You'll Soon Forget Kathleen." At a later stage she even outrivalled herself in rendering "The Dear Little Shamrock." Sommerville Bros. are first-class guitar players, and proved by their rendering of the Mikado selections that they have spared no pains in the cultivation of their abilities. M. J. Neville, who has won considerable distinction, struck the right key when he submitted "Old Ireland, You're Me Darling." He raised the enthusiasm to a terrible pitch, and of course won an encore. Mr. J Byrnes, on the violin, executed cleverly number of Irish airs. "No Hope Beyond, a duet by Messrs. Tomminy and Andrien, was very fine. The house applauded the effort.

Music was now laid aside whilst Morgans and McGrath exercised their muscles in an excellent exhibition of club swinging. J McGrath also swung illuminated clubs, and the performance was loudly applauded. The Kingston Serenade Club gave a musical selection, which was cordially received, and then Miss M. Hogan charmed the audience by rendering the song, "The Dear Little Colleen." The piece was very popular. Songs were given by Mr. R. Tomminy, "The Light House by the Sea;" Miss M. Dolan, "Norah Asthore;" Charles Kane, "Ireland will be Happy Ireland Again;" and Miss Sophia Andrien, "The Love of the Shamrock." These pieces were delightfully presented. The rendering of a cornet solo by Mr. W. Jacobs, and a flute solo by Mr. C. Jones, proved that these gentlemen were thorough experts on their instruments. Sergt. Major Morgans repeated the exhibition of sword feats which he gave at the roller rink some time ago. It was skilfully done and as interesting as ever. The accompanists during the evening were

Mrs. M. J. Neville, Miss Brannigan, A. Smith, W. Jacobs and James Brady.

Prospects of Home Rule.

About 10 o'clock Rev. J. J. McGrath was called upon to make a few remarks about home rule. He delivered a very inspiring address, lasting about twenty five minutes. He commenced by stating that it was a late hour at which to speak on a subject of such great importance. He considered it persumptious to undertake the address at all, considering that they had had it treated during the past year by two gentlemen of large experience in Irish affairs. One of these, Mr. Davitt, was a vice-president of the Irish political party, and the founder of the land league. He was also the establisher of the Irish national movement. Twelve months ago that day they listened to an eloquent address on the Irish national cause from Hon. T. Angliu, an able statesman of Canada. At that time affairs indicated as far as they regarded Ireland, that at the next St. Patrick's Day Irishmen would have to hold their peace. It was very strange that, notwithstanding all the talking that has been done by Irish statesmen, Englishmen continued to say that the Irish had no grievances. He wanted to speak about the prospects Ireland had of obtaining self government. Twelve months ago there were no signs that a measure for home rule for Ireland would be asked in the British parliament. Mr. Gladstone had said that on a certain day he would bring into parliament special Irish legislation. He meant to do something for Ireland which none of the Englishmen had ever heard of. He told the members of the house that they had two ways of governing Ireland, by dragooning the people or by conciliating them. He had tried the dragooning system and found it a failure. He thought the proper and only way to satisfy them was to give them home rule, that Ireland should have a government of her own for the conduct of purely Irish affairs; otherwise it would be continually the seat of rebellion and revolt. He introduced his home rule bill, but all knew that it had been rejected. The speaker then reviewed the methods previously taken to get reforms such as the abolition of slavery, the passage of the corn laws, and better representation in parliament. It was many years before they had been carried. He contended that the home rule bill was no more defeated than the measures he had alluded to. Perseverance and energy would yet have their reward. Irishmen should not, therefore, relax their energies on the home rule question because it was rejected once or twice by the house. They would get their rights in time. The men who are opposed to home rule for Ireland are leaving parliament. Peter Rilance retired during abandoned the government. Sir Michael

Hicks Beach has resigned, it is said, because of a cataract in one of his eyes, but the speaker thought the greater cataract was Ireland. Lord Salisbury is in dispair ; he is afraid to give Irelandher rights. There was a danger that the liberal party might make certain concessions on the home rule bill in order to conciliate the unionists. the rank and file were, however, whipped into a line, the liberal party will succeed in getting the bill passed. The reverend gentleman concluded his remarks by stating that he would be guilty of ingratitude if he did not lay a tribute at the feet of the grand old man, Mr. Gladstone. No English man had ever done so much for Ireland, and received so little reward. He was deserving of a vote of thanks of Irishmen all over the world. He hoped that it might yet be the bright privilege of Mr. Gladstone to see Ireland have a government of her own. May he be successful in getting Ireland

THE SCOTT ACT CASES.

The Objections Put in by Mr. Snook-They Have the Desired Effect.

The Scott act cases at Gananoque yesterday created quite a sensation. The court room was packed with people. The first and most important case was that of Robert R. Phillips, inspector, against Mrs. P. M. Bogart, hotel proprietress. The information was that she sold or gave away, between the 20th day of February and 8th day of March, by herself, servant, agent or clerk, intoxicating liquor, contrary to the provisions of the Canadian Temperance act, 1878, and amending acts. Mr. T. L. Snook appeared for defendant and took several objections to the proceedings, those most relied on being that the information was illegal, as it contained three specified charges. It was contrary to the provisions of 32-33 vic., ch. 31, sec. 25, which expressly declares that "every information shall be for one offence only and not for two or more offences;" also that one of the bench being a stipendiary police magistrate in the county he could not divest himself of the higher office and act conjointly as justice with another justice, and hence the proceedings were unwarranted. He also referred to 41 vic., ch. 16, sec. 104 (D), which says: "If the prosecution is brought before any such stipendiary magistrate, recorder, judge of the sessions of the peace, sheriff, police magistrate, sitting magistrate. commissioner or mayor, no other justice shall sit or take part therein." Subject to these objections the case was proceeded with and after the examination of about a dozen witnesses for the prosecution by Mr. Judd Brockville, Mr. Snook announced that he would call no witness, but rely on his previous objections, and take the further objection that there was a want of jurisdiction, the evidence being insufficient to make out a

After argument by counsel, on both sides, the case was dismissed with costs. The other cases were withdrawn.

Some of the witnesses in the case mentioned a number of funny names for drinks which had been adopted since the Scott act came into force. They drank such beverages as Moxley, Hop Bitters, Blue Ribbon, Smashes, etc.

END OF A BUSY LIFE.

Some Details in Regard to the Late H. J Crevolin-A Wealthy Man. Cape Vincent Eagle.

Mr. Crevolin, by the death of his mother, inherited an estate worth $60,000 very little encumbered by debts or mortgages. The fire in 1883 and the loss of the St. Lawrence hotel and adjacent stores, was a severe blow to him. In 1884 he commenced the erection of the new St. Lawrence hotel, which will stand a lasting monument to his memory. Because of embarrassed circumstances he was obliged to mortgage nearly all of his real estate and personal property; it prov ed so unremunerative that the Agricultural Insurance company of Watertown foreclosed mortgages to the amount of $43,000, and deceased was left in straightened circumstan-

By his first wife, a daughter of the late D. D. Calvin, of Garden Island, there were six children; Mrs. John Sibbald, East Saginaw, Mich; Mrs. E. D. Fox, Mrs. L. W. Soule, Mrs. Frank Dezengremel, Miss Marie Crevolin, Cape Vincent, and Mrs. Lanie Higgs, New York. Mrs. Crevolin died about eighteen years ago, and Mr. Crevolin remained single until last fall.

For the relief and cure of the inflammation and congestion called a "cold in the head" there is more potency in Ely's Cream Balm than in anything else it is possible to prescribe. This preparation has for years past been making a brilliant success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh, and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of these complaints Cream Balm prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of radical cures of chronic catarrh and hay fever after all other modes of treatment have proved of no avail.

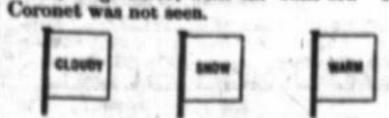

They Must be Produced.

Mr. Betts, of London, formerly of Kingston, sued the G. T. R. company for injuries received in 1884 at Pickering, and got a decision in his favor for the production of evidence taken by Mr. Hannaford immediately after the accident occurred. The company strenuously opposed the demand for the documents.
