THE LAND OF ORANGES.

orange s il, and this is worth in a wild state, I am told, $. o per agre. The river is salt water, and it abounds in game and fish. We saw hundreds of ducks in our sail up to Rockledge, and at times these were so tame that they could have been shot from the steamer's deck. The best of this land here is already taken, and we found prosperous groves and big winter hotels everywhere. It seems strange here, 1,000 miles from New York, to find hotels as good as those at Saratoga or Long Branch, and stranger still to find them filled with well dressed men and women who have come here for comfort during the winter just as they would go to the seashore for the summer. Here at the Indian river I found rooms heated by steam, great parlors carpeted and elegantly furnished, wide veranuas, billiard rooms, and all the comforts of the great American hotel. It is the same everywhere we have gone. Our palates have been tickled with French cookery, and we have been waited upon by waiters who have had their training at the north.

This Indian river country produces the best oranges in the world, and the senatorial party have feasted-upon luscious fruit which they have picked themselves from the trees. The flesh of these oranges is solid. They are heavy and sweet, and they bring big prices in the markets of the north. Even in Florida they are in great demand, and they are worth $5 a box at Jacksonville. Many of the growers sell them here on the trees, and I understand that most of the product of Florida is disposed of in this way. The greater part of the California orange crop is bought by Italians on the trees, and Italians, it is said, control the orange market of California as they do that of Italy.

But I started this letter with the growth of Florida. It is growing rapidly, and its population in 1885 was nearly twice that of 1870. It built more railway track in 1885 than any other state of the Union, and settlements are springing up all along the lines of the new roads. We found be tween Sandford and Titusville, to which point we came to take the boat up the Indian river, much cultivated and cleared land, and I am told that south Florida is beginning to be developed by the Cubans. This part of Florida contains a great grazing country, and in ten years $2,500,000 worth of cattle have been exported from it. Great quantities of it are under water, and millions of acres can never be used. Other millions are being reclaimed, and of these I will tell you in a future letter. These regions are to be the great sugar producing regions of the United States, and Florida men tell me that most of our cocoanuts will in the near future be produced here. We now import many millions of cocoanuts yearly, and the value of these runs into the millions of dollars. One firm in New Orleans imported in 1885 over 5,000,000 cocoanuts, and 2,000, 000 are used in the St. Louis manufactories an-

Pineapples and bananas are also raised in south Florida, and the future progress of this part of the state is only a matter of time.

Add to the oranges and this great tropical production of south Florida the vegetable products, amounting to many thonsands of dollars yearly, the strawberries, which bring here now twenty five cents a quart, and of which the state produced in 1885 200,000 quarts, the vast timber interests of north Florida, and remembering that the state is bigger than New York, with a climate as pleasant as that of the south of France, without the earthquakes of the Riviera, and you will feel that Florida is worth investigation as a place for emigration and residence.

Everywhere we have gone so far we have found a preponderance of northerners, and the senators of the party have met old friends at nearly every landing. Senator Palmer has found Michigan men on every boat, and, so far, the Ohio men who have shaken the hands of Senators Sherman and Manderson, their name has been legion. Gen. McCook has found several of the old soldiers of his command among the men about the hotels and on the trains, and one farmerlike man watched him curiously a long time at Jacksonville and only learned that it was the general after he had gone out for a drive. 'And is that Gen. McCook?" said he with an injured air. "I thought so, but I was afraid I was mistaken. I fought under him, and I want to see him when he comes back."

There were numerous funny incidents connected with the trip, and we met queer characters at every station. One was the postmaster of the town, and a black mustached, black eyed young fellow of 30 accosted Senator Manderson with a hearty greeting and said: "Senator, I admire you greatly. I have read all your speeches and I have a -tack of them at home as big as a Bible. The Nobraska senator blushed and was the more surpresed when he found, from the young man queting some of his remarks in the senate, that he was telling the truth. FRANK G. CARPENTER.

Electrical Heating Stoves. Electrical heating stoves are being introduced in France, a peculiar feature of their construction being that the wires are let through apertures formed in plates of refractory clay and plumbago. These plates are not incrosed, but are left exposed, so that the can circulate very freely through the aperture, where it comes in contact with the red hot wires. Wire bobbins are inserted in the apertures, each bobbin forming part of the electric circuit, and all being connected for quantity; the bobbins are heated by the passage of the current, and serve to heat the air as it passes to and fro over them. -Chicago Times. Antidote for Snake Bites.

The use of the gall of rattlesnakes is warmly urged by M. Koscicky, of Austria, as an antidote for snake bites. M. Koscicki, who became acquainted with the antidote at Veneguela, declares it to be both inexpensive and effective, as well as instantaneous in its operation, crows and dogs in the last stage of the poison recovering immediately on the medicine being administered to them.-Chicago Times. A Flat Magnifying Glass.

A scientific novelty is a lens which magnifies yet is perfectly flat on both sides. It is made at Jena by the manufacturers of Profemor Abbe's new optical glass. The lens consists of a single disc whose density varies so that its refractive power decreases regularly from the surface inward.—Arkansav Traveler.

An Itinerant Button Adjuster. San Francisco has a novelty in an itinerant female button adjuster, who stands at the street corner with her box of buttons (the mechanical self fastening kind) ready to repair the per 'ents of the day.

Cure for Croup.

Prompt relief to prevent suffocation from the accumulation of tough mucous-the formation of false membrane-and the constriction of the air passages, is necessary in case of a sudden attack of croup. Hagyard's Yellow Oil should be used at once, afterwards Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

The Blending of Life.

And death is one of the mysterious functions of the human organism. There are constantly battling two rival elements : the one throwing off waste and effete matter, death, the other to supply living atoms to build up and sustain, life. It is when the system grows sluggish, when the effete and dead particles are not eliminated and remain to clog life's channels, that Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Bitternut render greatest service. They cleanse the system, restore the liver to a healthy action, correct morbid secretions, renew the springs of life by making digestion more perfect, and proved by use the most perfect family medicine in existence. Accept no substitute for Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. At druggists, and dealers in medicine.
