

THE DAILY WHIG.

VOL. LVI.

KINGSTON, CANADA, SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 26, 1887.

NO. 72.

REMINDERS.

MONDAY.

AUCTION SALE of the Stock of John Hempton at Sharbot Lake at 12 o'clock.
UNDERWRITER'S SALE at Maunce & Minnes at 10 a.m.

BORN.

COWAN.—At Leeds, 25th March, wife of J. B. Cowan, of a daughter.

MARRIED.

HUTCHENS-BURLEY.—On March 16th, Arthur Hutchens, Ernestown, to Miss Eliza Burley, Colborne.

DIED.

WILSON.—In Kingston, on Friday morning, March 25th, Mary Nesbitt, beloved wife of Joseph Wilson.

Funeral will take place from her late residence, corner Rideau and Bay Streets, on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend.

LOCKES.—At Napanee, March 21st, a child of Sanford Loucks, aged 3 years.

AULL.—At Deseronto, 18th March, Joseph Aull, aged 87 years.

WANTED.

IMMEDIATELY—A COOK. Apply to MRS. A. S. OLIVER, 351 King Street.

A COOK AND HOUSEMAID: must be well recommended. Apply to MISS GARDINER, 151 Earl St.

AGENTS, male and female; $3 a day. Send stamp for particulars. Samples, 25 cents. C. KOWDY, 46 and 48 Front St. E., Toronto.

GOOD HAND SEWING SHOEMAKER, to whom constant employment and highest Toronto wages will be paid. Apply to JAMES ROBINSON, Rossin House Block, Toronto.

LADIES to work for us at their own homes; $7 to $10 per week can be quietly made. No photo, painting, or canvassing. For full particulars please address at once, CRESCENT ART Co., 19 Central Street, Boston, Mass., Box 5,170

FOR SALE OR TO RENT.

THE BOWLING ALLEY on Wellington St., with residence overhead, and the fixtures and fittings of the Alley. Possession at any time. Apply to GEORGE RICHARDSON & SONS, foot of Princess Street. Aug. 31.

THE NEW BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, situated on the south side of Princess Street, west of Chatham; contains fifteen rooms, including bath room and all modern improvements. Apply at the residence of the undersigned, GEORGE NEWLANDS, Princess St.

TO-LET.

A HOUSE IN WADE'S LANE, Union St., containing 5 rooms. For further particulars apply to ALBERT PIPER, on the premises.

A SHOP, WITH DWELLING ATTACHED, corner of Division and Ellice Streets; also a COMFORTABLE HOUSE adjoining. Possession at any time. Apply to J. WADDELL, on the premises.

THE PREMISES ON EARL ST., "Mozart Place," at present occupied by F. McNab, Esq. The house is commodious, in good order, and fitted with modern improvements. Possession 1st May. Apply to A. McCORMACK, Princess Street.

THAT DESIRABLE HOUSE on corner of Colborne and Sydenham Streets, formerly occupied by C. Birmingham, Esq., and now in the occupation of Major Fraser, containing 9 rooms, with bath room, hot and cold water. Possession 1st May next. Apply to J. H. McIVY, 343 King Street, or 4 Colborne Street.

A STORE, WITH DWELLING and a large workshop attached, suitable for a tinmith or general business; also a SHOP AND DWELLING, both situated on Wellington Street, near Princess; good business stand. For particulars apply on premises. S. E. ALLEN, 197 Wellington Street.

FOR SALE.

HOTEL, well furnished; central location; doing a good business. Apply at this office.

THE ROUGH CAST HOUSE and COTTAGE on south side of Brock Street, immediately above Barrie Street, known as the Mostyn property. For terms apply to MRS. McNEIL, on the premises.

THE SUBSCRIBE offers for sale his House and Lot on Albert Street. The house contains seven commodious rooms, with pantry, clothes closets, large cellar, well drained, and outbuildings. The lot, 50x132, is stocked with choice fruit and ornamental trees and small fruits, etc. EDWARD MORHAM.

FINE CITY HOME. The undersigned offers for sale that DESIRABLE HOUSE AND LOT now occupied by him on Earl Street. The whole is offered in one block, having about one hundred and twenty feet frontage on Earl Street, and the Upper Lot runs through to West Street. The BUILDINGS on the property are almost new, and the garden is planted with the choicest fruits. For terms apply to THOS. MOORE.

SPECIAL MENTION.

FOR GOOD VALUE in Woolen Underclothing go to REEVES.

FOUND AT LAST—A remedy warranted to cure hard and soft Corns, Bunions, Callouses, etc. Hanson's Magic Corn Salve, in boxes, 50c. at Wade's Drug Store.

TO PORK PACKERS—Highest Cash Price paid for pork blade bones, tankage, and fertilizing materials delivered at our works, Hamilton. ROWLINS & Co., Fertilizers, Hamilton.

BUTCHERS AND SAUSAGE MAKERS—prime new small hog casings; by tierce, 500 lbs. 15c. per lb.; kegs, 100 lbs. 25c. per lb.; half kegs, 50 lbs. 30c. per lb.; prime new English soap casings, kegs, 50 large bundles, 25c.; smaller quantities 50c. per bundle. ROWLINS & Co., Hamilton.

FOR COUGHS AND COLDS.—Grasp a Bottle of the DIAMOND COUGH REMEDY. The first dose frequently stops a cough. Composed of Wild Cherry, Horsebalm, Eucalyptus and other valuable ingredients. Pleasant to take. In bottles, 25c. and 50c., at WADE'S DRUG STORE.

WADE'S MANDRAKE LIVER PILLS are purely a vegetable Cathartic, being entirely free from Calomel or any Metallic substance. In case of Liver Complaints, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Headache, &c., they give universal satisfaction. They are Sugar coated. One in a dose. In bottles 25c. at WADE'S DRUG STORE.

TUITION.

MRS. W. L. BAXTER and daughter have returned to Kingston and are prepared to give instruction on the Pianoforte. Miss Maud Baxter will give lessons at the pupils' residence or her own if preferred. Apply to 163 Princess Street.

BOARD.

THREE OR FOUR GENTLEMEN can be accommodated with good board or furnished rooms in respectability and desirable locality by applying at 311 Johnson Street, City.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY

Have a few 30x40 Barn Frames, 16 foot posts 8x3 Sawn Timber, shingled with XXX Best Shingles, and 1x10 Merchantable Pine Siding All for $131.50. Terms easy.

Nov. 8. A. HOPPINS, Agent.

THE THOUSAND ISLAND ROUTE BY

Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R.R.

To Utica, Albany, New York, Philadel'a.

Washington, Baltimore and all Points in North-western New York, via G.T.R. and N.Y.C. Rys.

T. HANLEY, Gen. Ticket Agent.

GENERAL TICKET AGENCY.

For cheap tickets to all points, and information pertaining to all Routes, apply to

F. A. FOLGER, General Ticket Agent.

Ferry Wharf, Foot of Brock Street.

KINGSTON, ONT.

"British Whig's" telephone number 128.

PARLIAMENTARY CRITICISM.

It is Not What Sensible People Expect—

Married Women's Claims.

KINGSTON, March 25.—(To the Editor) Most edifying, if unpleasant, reading your liberal readers will find in the report of the debate in the local legislature last Wednesday on the married women's franchise. The bill which Mr. Waters moved for a second reading was, it will be admitted, an important one. It demanded for married women, who possessed the qualification in their own right and paid taxes, the right of vote in municipal affairs. Mr. Waters argued for the measure on the ground of justice and of expediency. He drew the attention of the house to the rapid spread of the movement for woman franchise. It was engaging the attention of nearly every state in the American union as well as of England. He showed that wherever and to whatever extent it had been tried it had been a success. Its influence had in every case been on the side of morality. He then begged that the very moderate measure of woman suffrage which he advocated might receive the serious consideration of the house.

It was surely not too much to expect that a demand thus soberly and reasonably made on behalf of an important section of the community and in the name of municipal reform, should be at least soberly if not candidly considered. We have not perhaps been too careful in choosing our representatives, to have men of solid, historical and economical and logical training, men upon whose unclouded judgment in every most trifling concern of our country we might implicitly trust. About these innermost needful qualifications we may not indeed have been too solicitous, but the appearance, at least the outward show of dignity, we have congratulated ourselves on securing. Gravity, kindly humour, graceful wit, any becoming superfluity would, we feel, maintain our credit before our neighbours. By being elegantly ornamental our representatives would be indirectly useful.

And yet, "cheers," "laughter," "roars of laughter!" So much for the gravity.

"Then the women with their wiles and blandishments would secure all the votes, and the men would have to mind the children. If the women had votes they would have to be canvassed, and it would not be pleasant to go home to one's dinner and find a good-looking canvasser with one's wife."

So much for the graceful wit we bargained for!

Since the bulk of the debate seems, by the report, to have been conducted with a similar gravity and graceful wit, serious reflections suggest themselves to the thoughtful citizens. Are a glib tongue and intermittent respectability qualifications sufficient for a member of parliament in these times? Is this caricature of legislative deliberation altogether creditable to our taste as proprietors of the whole exhibition? Are men of wide learning gifted with fair reasoning faculty and an abiding sense of their responsibility, not at all obtainable?

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important interests. Let us hope that the unworthy levity of our honorable representatives in discussing serious issues will be safely lost to history.—Yours, etc., R. BALMER.

What delusion were we under that we ever thought to content ourselves with anything less? The veriest tramp amongst us, who can call no foot of land his own, would yet find his truest interest served by having in the nation's councils none but the wisest and truest men. How, then, is it that we, with so many dearer interests than his, and with the means in our hands to secure them, have been so careless and so witless? It is, perhaps, not too late in the day to remind our representatives in the present parliament that while not requiring of them any profound economical knowledge or exact logical training we do insist upon a natural and uncompromising appearance of dignity. A display of school boy sportiveness and superficiality will not promote our credit much, and may not a little prejudice important