OLD JOHN PLANKINTON.

SKETCH OF ONE OF MILWAUKEE'S MANY MILLIONAIRES.

Peculiar in His Appearance, and Notable Anywhere—Now Enjoying the Wealth For Which he has Worked Hard—A Gift to a Great City.

(Special Correspondence.) CHICAGO, March 31.

Not very long ago a very distinguished party left this city en route for Mexico and the Pacific coast, going by way of New Orleans and the Southern Pacific railroad.

It was made up of Philip D. Armour and family of this city, H. O. Armour of New York and John Plankinton and wife of Milwaukee. They travel in regal style, occupying the $60,000 private car of Alex. Mitchell, president of the St. Paul railway, and are accompanied by a chef and a retinue of servants. They were paid many attentions as they journeyed through the south, and were tendered formal receptions in Atlanta, New Orleans and other places.

JOHN PLANKINTON.

It is a curious fact that this is the first time in his life that one important member of the party has been paid any public attention. John Plankinton is the member I refer to. Newspaper readers everywhere are familiar with the portraits and careers of the Armours. Phil Armour, the pork packer, is the most conspicuous man in the west. He is just now being boycotted by the entire order of the Knights of Labor and his name, and his meats, too, have been in the mouths of the people from one end of the country to the other.

His wealth is counted by the millions and he employs an army of 20,000 workmen. And yet John Plankinton, the man who gave him his start in life, who backed his daring speculations and was his business partner for so many years, is not known by sight outside of Milwaukee, except by his personal friends and business acquaintances, and he has lived for sixty odd years so quietly and unostentatiously that a sketch of his remarkable career has never been printed. He is easily worth $10,000,000, and until he turned the bulk of his business over to the Armours was the head of the largest pork and provision packing house in the world—Plankinton, Armour & Co. As long ago as 1880 his house was doing a business of $15,000,000 a year. Mr. Plankinton is a self made man. He began at the bottom of the ladder and long ago reached the top round. He is about 66 years of age and is as homely as he is honest.

In personal appearance he is fully six feet in height, as straight as an arrow and as active and full of life as a man of 30. His face is smooth, and its most marked characteristic is a very long nose. A Cincinnati reporter, who interviewed the party as they passed through that city on the way south, said he saw Mr. Plankinton's nose long before he saw the rest of his body. His hair is worn moderately long and is rapidly silvering. He wears good clothes and is scrupulously neat. This man has had a most remarkable career. He was born in Newcastle county, Del., March 18, 1830, and came west in 1844. That year he left Pittsburg and landed in Milwaukee. The place was a mere village. The young man leased ground and opened a butcher shop. He killed the "critters" himself, waited upon his customers and lived over his shop. He was industrious, frugal, honest and obliging. He made friends and money from the start and he saved what he made. He ran his little shop until 1849, when he commenced the slaughtering and packing business. In 1863 Phil Armour, then a ruddy faced young Scotchman, was taken into partnership and the business from that time on fairly boomed. Branch packing houses were started in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati and other places, and business offices opened in New York, Liverpool and London. The firm did an immense business. They speculated like fury, cornered the markets time and time again and made millions. The great corners were supposed to be Armour's, but Plankinton was really the power behind the throne.

THE PLANKINTON MANSION. A year or two ago Plankinton disposed of his interests in the great packing firm, merely retaining the Milwaukee house. He publicly announced that he had all the money he cared for and didn't want the bother of the business any longer. Since that time he has taken life comparatively easy. His interests are wholly local, but his methodical way of living keeps his grasp on him. He leaves his home at 7 o'clock every morning and does not return until 6 in the evening. He is the most public spirited man in the Cream City. His residence on Grand avenue is palatial. It is said to be the best furnished house in the west. By its side is another stately mansion occupied by his son. Across the broad avenue a $100,000 house is just being completed for his unmarried daughter. This rich man has a peculiar hobby. It is a hotel. He don't care for fast horses, fine dogs, paintings or "such truck," but he is ambitious to own the finest hotel in the west. It is the Plankinton house, covers a whole block, represents an investment of $1,000,000 and is said to be one of the best kept in the country. While he is not a fancier of works of art, his house is a museum of fine paintings, costly statuary and rare bric a brac. They were mostly collected by his daughter, who is now and has been abroad many times. When an exposition was started Plankinton fairly fished it. After investing thousands in it he ended by presenting the association with $50,000. A dozen of the finest blocks in Milwaukee have been erected and are owned by him. Last summer when the Sangerfest met in this city, he donated $1,000 for a prize competition. He is foremost in all public enterprises. A year ago his daughter presented the city with a statue of Washington, which cost $25,000. These are the salient points of his career, and Milwaukeeans, when they come to Chicago, never tire of telling new stories of John Plankinton's prodigious generosity and enterprise.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

A quartet of Seneca Indians are giving concerts in New York. Many cattle are dying in the cattle ranches of Victoria, B. C. Reno, Nev., complains that the sawdust in Truckee river has produced much disease in that town. A woman at Santa Cruz, Cal., has sued her husband for divorce, the chief ground of complaint being that he neglected to say grace at his meals.

Five hundred gallons of wine have just been received in Chicago from Jerusalem. It has been more than two months on the way. It will be used for Passover purposes.

Minister (at baptismal font)—Name, please? Mother—Philip Ferdinand Chesterfield Randolph Livingstone. Minister (aside to assistant)—Mr. Kneeler, a little more water, please.

There is a great demand for Mexican mats to paint upon. The material is used for panels in screens, for wall panels, also as an adjustable door panel in rustic summer furnishing.

Rabbit hunting by moonlight is now indulged in by ranchers in the vicinity of Lexington, Ore. The destructive animals pay nocturnal visits to haystacks in large droves, where the hunters lie in wait for them.

The Japanese will soon permit foreigners to dwell and do business in any part of the empire. When this occurs a foreign language will be necessary to supplant the native language for official purposes, and it is said that the Mikado and the leading statesmen favor the English, which has long been used in the Orient.

Six miles from Mackinac, Ill., is a bit of ground about eighty feet square that is always so warm that snow melts as soon as it falls upon it. It is said that when the earth there is disturbed it flashes like burning powder, and that a peculiar gas comes up from the ground which so far has shattered every vessel in which an effort has been made to confine it.

A ball was given by deaf mutes in Baltimore recently. The Baltimore American says it was a curious affair. They danced very well and generally kept time with the music. Waltzing gave them more trouble than the square dances, though some showed themselves to be expert and graceful in the many whirl. A little girl danced the fisher's hornpipe, which was unexpected, and several couples arose and danced a slow waltz to the lively music of a hornpipe.

The salaries paid New York teachers are scarcely princely, when one considers the cost of living here. The salaries of the male assistant teachers range from $2,016 to $1,080. The salaries of the female assistants range from $1,116 to $633 in male grammar schools, from $1,086 to $633 in mixed grammar schools, from $1,056 to $603 in female grammar schools and from $900 to $504 in primary departments and schools. Principals' salaries run up as high as $3,500 or $4,000. All male assistant teachers of less than one year's experience receive $720 the first year and females $408.

The apprehensions of war have afforded three English officers of the Salvation army in Paris an opportunity which they availed themselves of in their own manner. One afternoon recently three men, dressed in the uniform by this time familiar to everybody, were walking along the Rue de Rivoli, carrying big placards on which were written: "War is Declared." An indignant crowd gathered around them, tore up the placards, and would have ill treated the officers but for the timely arrival of policemen, who dispersed the mob and marched these salvationists off to the station.

Dreamt in Five Seconds.

I was sitting with a police official at his office, and we were discussing some fantastic story, when an employe came in and sat down beside us, leaning with his elbows on the table. I looked up, and said to him: "You have forgotten to make the soup." "No, no; come with me." We went out together, going across long corridors. I walking behind him, at the college where I had been brought up. He went into a wing of the house which I knew well, and which led to the class rooms. Under the stairs he showed me a stove on which stood an oyster shell with a little white paint in it (I had been mixing water colors the evening before). "But you have forgotten the vegetables. Go to the porter at the other end of the courtyard: you will find them there on a table." I waited for a long time; at last I saw him making signs at me that he had found nothing. "It is at the left hand side," I shouted, and saw him cross the yard, coming back with an immense cabbage. I took a knife from my pocket, which I always kept there, and at the moment when I was going to cut the vegetable I was awakened by the noise of a bowl of soup being put heavily on the marble top of the table next to my bed.

It appears to me that the idea of soup was suggested to me by the smell at the moment when the door was opened by the servant bringing in the soup while I was asleep, and it takes five seconds at the most to walk from the door to the bed.—Revue Scientifique.

Dyspepsia.

Much will necessarily depend upon the care exercised in the selection of food, which is all important to the dyspeptic. Hamilton's Pills may be used with the greatest benefit in cases where liver and bowel complications are produced by, or are the result of, dyspepsia. Commence with one pill every second day immediately after dinner, and reduce dose gradually until one-quarter of a pill only is taken, which will be found sufficient to stimulate the liver and assist in the more perfect assimilation of food in the stomach. Dyspeptics, try Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Mrs. Agnes Black, of Orton, Ont., says, "For five years I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion. I tried one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was getting better; I then bought three more and it has cured me."

Lame back and nervous debility, associated with rheumatism, is sometimes met with in every day life, but as a rule we find not more than two of these complaints in the same party. Be this as it may, the only sure and perfect cure is electricity and the best form of administering it is by Norman's electric belts and insoles. W. J. Wilson is my agent and from him you can procure testimonials and circulars relating to any of your complaints. Try and be cured. W. J. Wilson, sole agent for Kingston.

Remarkable.

There have been many remarkable cures of deafness reported from the use of Yellow Oil. The proprietors of this medicine have a large number of such testimonials. It is the great household remedy for pain, inflammation, lameness, and soreness of every description, and can be used internally and externally.
