The Telegraph says justice must be done to the earnestness of those who took part in the demonstration, but a closer examination of the question could not fail to convince them that the government is not trying to tyrannize over anybody, but is trying to emancipate the honest farmers and tradesmen from a subtle and cowardly form of | 5. tyranny.

RAILWAY COMMISSION.

THE FARMERS' PRESENTING THEIR MANY GRIEVANCES.

The Rallway Crossings a Great Danger-The Loss of Life Upon Them-A Delegate Who Wanted to Know too Much-The Commissioners Snuffed Him Out and Adjourned.

There was not a large representation of merchants at the afternoon session of the railway commissioners Monday. Mr. A. White appeared in the interest of the G.T.R. line, and adjusted a number of grievances.

John Henderson, Collinsby, complained that the crossing of the Grand Trunk railway, on his farm, was not properly graded. The commissioners said they could put no remedy.

Mr. Henry Wilmot, M.P.P., complained of the railway crossings near the city. For the past seven years they had been stained with human blood and yet nothing had been done. He called attention to the Cataraqui, Collinsby and depot crossings, of the G.T.R., and the crossing of the K. & P. R. at Tete du Pont barracks. The removal of the station at the latter point would minimize the danger. He suggested the appointment of men to signal the public at all dan-gerous points. He believed in equality in regard to the carrying of freights, and was favorable to a permanent board of commissioners, as by it the public would know who to appeal to when they had grievances.

Mr. Henry Bawden, representing the Farmers' union, complained of the railway crossings in this vicinity. He read the report of the meeting of farmers, held on Saturday, which report was ordered to be published. It was suggested that gates be erected at the many crossings. It was also recommended that the barrack gate projection be removed or placed back on a line with the balance of the wall. Farmers tried to secure a carload of salt for fertilization at Seaforth, but were asked $30 for it. Other men could get it for $24, and less. The witness was opposed to special rates, and favourable to a permanent board of commissioners. He believed in a stipulated tariff for passengers and freight throughout Can-

J. M. Fair confined his remarks to the condition of the crossings at the G.T.R. depot. Many persons had been killed and injured, and a great deal of property had been destroyed at it. He did not think the railway company or the government had been communicated with in regard to the matter. There was too much expense already in connection with the government, hence he saw no necessity for a permanent board of railway commissioners.

Mr. R. J. Carson used the railway lines extensively and knew that American roads carried freight cheaper than the Canadian lines. He was offered no discrimination in regard to salt. He approved of special rates and claimed that though the Interstate Commerce law was in force in the states he could get coal oil from Buffalo via American roads to Cape Vincent for a cent a gallon cheaper than through Canadian territory. Consumers were benefitted by the large shippers getting special rates. He endorsed, under certain circumstances, the carrying of freight for long distances for lower rates than for short distances. He did not think justice had been done to the Kingston merchants in the matter of local rates. Better rates were given to the Montrealers sending goods west than to the Kingstonians sending goods east. He did not approve of a board of commissioners.

Mr. Joseph Franklin approved of the granting of special rates under certain circumstances, such as in case of over production, and for the benefit of non-competing points, and of the establishment of a permanent board of commissioners.

Mr. James McCallum was willing to answer any questions if they were put to him square. He thought the railway companies discriminated in favor of the butchers. He created amusement by demanding that he be given the rates offered to such persons. He came in to get information. The commissioners said they did not have it to give him, and peremptorily adjourned the enquiry until 11 o'clock on Tuesday.

Tuesday Morning's Session. The members of the royal commission resumed its sessions this morning.

W. G. Craig said his firm had occasion to use the railways of Canada a great deal, and found their rates satisfactory. It had no difficulty with regard to losses or delays. The rates from Seaforth to Kingston, on certain goods, were the same as others firms paid. They were allowed no rates which were not available by other houses. He thought there were times when special railroad rates should be allowed. Generally speaking the rates from Great Britain to Kingston were firm. In regard to ocean freights, however, Kingston was not treated as well as some of the western cities. He thought that Kingston should not be charged higher freights than these places. As for the establishing of a permanent board of railway commissioners, to look after the commercial interests of Canada, he could not give a definite answer. He was satisfied with the present treatment of his firm by the railway companies.

Mr. Hewton, manager of the knitting mill, said that he had generally received satisfaction from the railway companies. He had no cause for complaint respecting rates, but there was considerable variation in their rates on certain goods between St. Albans and Boston. In one case the rates were 30c, and in the other 60c. With regard to long and short hauls he could not speak decidedly until he had carefully studied the matter. He observed that considerable delay was caused in the transhipment of new cottons from the south to Canada. The railway system as it is, however, meets the requirements of the people.

The commission adjourned at noon to meet to-morrow at Toronto at 11 o'clock.

DETESTED RUSSIAN OFFICIAL

The Czar's Powerful Supporters Against Liberalism-Sentenced to Death.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—M. de Giers has resigned the Prussian foreign portfolio in consequence of M. Katkoff having resumed his attacks.

M. Katkoff, described as Autocrat No. 2, has received a death warrant from the revolutionary executive committee at St. Petersburg, and is thus equally distinguished as an object of moral hatred, with his imperial master. This is the latest news from Russia concerning the powerful editor of the Moscow Gazette, whose utterances are the voice of despotism against liberalism, constitutionalism parliamentarism, and things foreign; in fact, against everything that does not tend to complete centralization and crushing autocratic prohibition of all individual liberty and initiative. In recognition of this service the czar has presented him with the cross and decoration of St. Vladimir. The Moscow Gazette is the leading newspaper of Russia. It has a style of its own, and differs, in its antique appearance, from any other newspaper in that country. The uncompromising supporter of unrelieved despotism, it is the only prominent literary enterprise in Russia favored with the imperial smile. The czar is its god and Katkoff is its prophet.

At the present time Katkoff is the object of intense hatred and abuse by the German press. At the time when the semblance of perfect cordiality between Russia and Germany is maintained in every other respect Katkoff's paper is consistently emphatic in its anti-German tone. The official North German Gazette remarks that the editor cannot be regarded as such an unexampled fool as to oppose the czar. One of the chjects of Katkoff's wrath is M. de Giers, foreign minister in Russia, whom he has not yet succeeded in displacing, as he did M. Bunge, ex minister of finance. The death of Alexander III. by assassination might occur at any time, when the Grand Duke Nicholas, born in 1868, would succeed to the throne. Should a regency be necessary, the influence of M. Katkoff would be given, with that of Ignatieff and other anti-German statesmen, against M. de Giers, who would support the Grand-Duke Vladimir, a pre-German prince, for the regency.

It is stated that the meaning of the controversy between M. Katkoff and M. de Giers is virtually a struggle over the body of the Czar Alexander III., whose assassination at an early date is counted upon with certainty. In the light of the latest news from Russia, it appears, however, that Katkoff's schemes are likely to be ended by his own death. Meanwhile the history of Russia is largely that of the mouthpiece of imperial tyrrany and Slavonic exclusiveness.
