AN ESTIMATE OF GREATNESS.

Who Are the Twelve Living Greatest Men to Be Found in the World? Our esteemed contemporary, The Albany Argus, has been carrying on an election to determine, after the manner of certain English examples, who are the twelve greatest living men, or twelve living greatest men. The vote cast was pretty small, Albany being too familiar with great men to take any special interest in the subject.

The result of the election, however, is rather interesting. Bismarck stands at the head of the list, with sixteen votes, beating Mr. Gladstone by one vote. Ferdinand de Lesseps has fourteen. Mr. Conkling and Mr. Parnell tie with nine. Grover Cleveland and Henry M. Stanley have seven each. George Bancroft, von Moltke and Leo XIII come next, with six each. Allen Granbery Thurman and W. Tecumseh Sherman get five. Mr. Jay Gould, the Hon. George F. Edmunds, James G. Blaine and Gen. Boulanger make up a big four.

The Hon. David Bennett Hill is in the three with three of the greatest and one of the best advertised men living. His associates are Cardinal Manning, Herbert Spencer, John Ruskin and M. Bartholdi.

But the list of men who got one vote is the most interesting and the funniest. It shows, too, how even mighty men are shabbily treated by fame. Here is the list of ones:

"Daniel Manning, John Sherman, James Gordon Bennett, John G. Whittier, Cardinal Newman, Henry George, William M. Everts, Gen. Sheridan, Abram S. Hewitt, Cyrus W. Field, Lawson Tait, James Russell Lowell, John L. Sullivan, Jefferson Davis, T. De Witt Talmage, Munkacsy, John G. Sherman, Dr. McCosh, Joseph Pulitzer, Daniel W. Voorhees, Herr Krupp, Francis Kernan, G. I. Tucker, Mark Hopkins, Meissonier, A. C. Coivin, Castelar."

Some names in this list are dear as well as famous, and some are obscure. On the whole, it is impossible to praise the discrimination of the Albany special voters.—New York Sun.

The Noted Orchestra Leader.

Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore made a flying professional trip to Boston recently, and as usual on these visits met many of his old cronies and enjoyed a social time with them. Patrick is a rare specimen of his rollicking race, his emotional nature and magnetic personality always making him a welcome companion, whether among his professional or non-professional acquaintances. He is all music, from the crown of his head to the tips of his toes, and his generalship in conducting an immense band or orchestra is quite equal to that of Gen. Sherman in handling an army. Many of our musical citizens will remember the enthusiasm and vim which he displayed in conducting the army of musicians at the Jubilee concert given at the Coliseum on the Lake bay. One evening, while conducting the combined bands in giving the overture to "William Tell," he became so inspired with the glorious music that he was almost frantic, and when the grand climax at the termination of the piece was reached he continued after the playing had ceased to beat time with his head, arms and baton for a full minute, to the good natured amusement of the audience and orchestra. It reminded some of the facetiously disposed of the old song of the "Cork Leg."—Boston Budget.

New Process of Treating Steel.

Two Kentuckians, one of them a blacksmith, recently called at the navy department and announced that they had discovered a process of treating steel, which, if their claims are borne out by the facts will practically revolutionize the art of steel tool making. They asserted that by their method of treatment the commonest grades of metal, such as shear or cast steel, could be so tempered in the matter of hardness and toughness as to fully equal the best grades of tool steel. An experiment was made on the blade of Secretary Whitney's pocket knife, with the result that it was possible to whittle an ordinary steel key without apparent injury to the blade. So impressed was the secretary by the claims of the inventors that he decided to permit the process to be tested experimentally at the Washington navy yard, and the experiments have already been begun.—New York Sun.

Publisher of Graham's Magazine.

George R. Graham, once the owner of Graham's Magazine, and for many years the leading publisher of Philadelphia, who gave employment in their early days to men and women who have become the shining lights of American literature, is now a poor, infirm old man, and but for the kindness of a philanthropic Philadelphian would be in the poorhouse. He is lying, a hopeless and practically friendless invalid, in a New York hospital. Among the regular contributors to Graham's Magazine were Henry W. Longfellow, William Cullen Bryant, J. Fenimore Cooper, Richard Henry Dana, Nathaniel P. Willis, James Russell Lowell, Lydia H. Sigourney, Francis Sargent Osgood and Ann S. Stevens. Some of the earliest and best productions of these now famous writers first appeared in this publication. Edgar A. Poe was long employed upon it and put some of his best work in its pages.—Chicago Tribune.

A Precious Corpse.

The extraordinary mortality in the family of the Baron Durand excited the suspicions of the French customs police after that gentleman had crossed the Belgian boundary four times in as many months, traveling each time with a hermetically sealed coffin and bathed in tears over the demise of some near relative. The last time they opened the coffin against his tearful remonstrances and found in it, instead of a corpse, a mass of fine cigars and expensive smoking tobacco, upon which no duty had been paid. The baron mourns now in the jail at Lille.—New York Sun.

The Blue Glass Craze.

The blue glass craze of several years ago numbered among its victims Mrs. Ruth Smith, a wealthy lady of Bridgeport, Conn. She caused to be built on the southeast corner of her house a room composed entirely of blue glass, into which the sun streams the entire day. Mrs. Smith wears blue glass spectacles, dresses in blue silk and has her meals brought to this novel room on dishes of blue glass, where she eats, sleeps and lives. It is stated that she has not been out of her glass home more than ten minutes at a time in eight years, during which period she has never felt a pain or an ache of the slightest description.—Chicago Times.

Dom Pedro as an Astronomer.

Dom Pedro, the emperor of Brazil, has been elected an associate member of the Liverpool Astronomical society. He is an enthusiastic amateur astronomer, and when the great comet of 1883 was blazing in the morning sky he used to tumble out of bed at 4 o'clock in the morning and ply the telescope and spectroscopic upon the comet and measure the length of its tail until the rising sun blotted it out of sight.—Chicago Tribune.

Earthquakes and Sea Waves.

Out of 15,000 earthquakes observed on coast lines, the German seismologist, Kluge, found that only 134 were accompanied by sea waves, although a very large proportion of the sixths had probably originated under the sea.
