CHAPTER XXV.

I STRIKE THE JOLLY ROGER. I had scarce gained a position on the bowsprit, when the flying jib flapped and filled upon the other tack, with a report like a gun. The schooner trembled to her keel under the reverse; but next moment, the other sails still drawing, the jib flapped back again, and hung idle. This had nearly tossed me off into the sea; and now I lost no time, crawled back along the bowsprit, and tumbled head foremost on the deck.

I was on the lee side of the forecastle, and the mainsail, which was still drawing, concealed from me a certain portion of the after-deck. Not a soul was to be seen. The planks, which had not been swabbed since the mutiny, bore the print of many feet; and an empty bottle, broken by the neck, tumbled to and fro like a live thing in the scup-

Suddenly the Hispaniola came right into the wind. The jibs behind me cracked aloud; the rudder slammed to; the whole ship gave a sickening heave and shudder, and at the same moment the main-boom swung inboard, the sheet groaning in the blocks, and showed me the lee after-deck.

There were the two watchmen, sure enough; red-cap on his back, as stiff as a handspike, with his arms stretched out like those of a crucifix, and his teeth showing through his open lips; Israel Hands propped against the bulwarks, his chin on his chest, his hands lying open before him on the deck, his face as white, under its tan, as a tallow candle.

For awhile the ship kept bucking and sidling like a vicious horse, the sails filling, now on one tack, now on another, and the boom swinging to and fro till the mast groaned aloud under the strain. Now and again, too, there would come a cloud of light sprays over the bulwark, and a heavy blow of the ship's bows against the swell-so much heavier weather was made of it by this great rigged ship than by my home-made, lop-sided coracle, now gone to the bottom of the sea.

At every jump of the schooner, red-cap slipped to and fro; but-what was ghastly to behold-neither his attitude nor his fixed teeth-disclosing grin was anyway disturbed by this rough usage. At every jump, too, Hands appeared still more to sink into himself and settle down upon the deck, his feet sliding ever the further out, and the whole body canting toward the stern, so that his face became, little by little, hid from me; and at last I could see nothing beyond his ear and the frayed ringlet of one whisker.

At the same time, I observed, around both of them, splashes of dark blood upon the planks, and began to feel sure that they had killed each other in their drunken wrath.

While I was thus looking and wondering, in a calm moment, when the ship was still, Israel Hands turned partly round, and, with a low moan, writhed himself back to the position in which I had seen him first. The moan, which told of pain and deadly weakness and the way in which his jaw hung open, went right to my heart. But when 1 remembered the talk I had overheard from the apple barrel, all pity left me. I walked aft until I reached the main-

"Come aboard, Mr. Hands," I said, ironi-

He rolled his eyes round heavily; but he was too far gone to express surprise. All he could do was to utter one word, "Brandy." It occurred to me there was no time to lose; and, dodging the boom as it once more lurched across the deck, I slipped aft, and down the companion stairs into the cabin. It was such a scene of confusion as you can hardly fancy. All the lockfast places had been broken open in quest of the chart. The floor was thick with mud, where ruffians had sat down to drink or consult after wading in the marshes round their camp. The bulkheads, all painted in clear white, and beaded round with gilt, bore a pattern of dirty hands. Dozens of empty bottles elinked together in corners to the rolling of the ship. One of the doctor's medical books la yopen on the table, half of the leaves gutted out, I suppose, for pipelights. In the midst of all this the lamp still cast a smoky glow, obscure and brown as umber.

I went into the cellar; all the barrels were gone, and of the bottles a most surprising number had been drank out and thrown away. Certainly, since the mutiny began, not a man of them could ever have been Foraging about, I found a bottle with some brandy left, for Hands; and for myself I routed out some biscuit, some pickled fruits, a great bunch of raisins, and a piece of cheese. With these I came on deck, put down my own stock behind the rudder head, and well out of the coxswain's reach, went forward to the water-breaker, and had a good, deep drink of water, and then, and not till then, gave Hands the brandy.

He must have drank a gill before he took the bottle from his mouth.

"Ah," said he, "by thunder, but I wanted some o' that!" I had sat down already in my own corner and began to eat.

"Much hurt!" I asked him. He grunted, or rather, I might say, he barked.

"If that doctor was aboard," he said, "I'd be right enough in a couple of turns; but I don't have no manner of luck, you see, and that's what's the matter with me. As for that swab, he's good and dead, he is," he added, indicating the man with the red cap. "He warn't no seaman, anyhow. And where mought you have come from?"

"Well," said I, "I've come aboard to take possession of this ship, Mr. Hands; and you'll please regard me as your captain until further notice."

He looked at me sourly enough, but said nothing. Some of the color had come back into his cheeks, though he still looked very sick, and still continued to slip out and settle down as the ship banged about.

"By the bye," I continued," "I can't have these colors, Mr. Hands; and, by your leave, I'll strike 'em, Better none than

And, again dodging the boom, I ran to the color lines, hauled down their cursed black flag, and chucked it overboard. "God save the king!" said I, waving my cap; "and there's an end to Captain Silver," He watched me keenly and slyly, his chin all the while on his breast. "I reckon," he said at last-"I reckon, Cap'n Hawkin's, you'll kind of want to get ashore, now. S'pose we talks." "Why, yes," says I, "with all my heart, Mr. Hands. Say on." And I went back to my meal with a good appetite. "This man," he began, nodding feebly at the corpse-"O'Brien was his name-a rank Irelander-this man and me got the canvas on her, meaning for to sall her bank. Well, he's dead now, he is-as dead as brige; and who's to sail this ship. I don't see, Without I give you a hint, you ain't that man, as far as I can toil. Now, look here, you gives me food and drink, and a old seart or an-kerener to the my wound up, you do; and I'll tell you how to sail her; and that's" about square all round, I take it." "I'll tell you one thing," says I; "I'm not going back to Captain Kidd's anchorage. I mean to get into North Inlet, and beach her quietly there." "To be sure you did," he cried. "Why, I ain't sich an infernal lubber, after all. I can see can't 1? I've tried my fling, I have, and I've lost, and it's you has the wind for me. North Inlet? Why, I haven't no ch'ice, not I! I'd help you sail her up to Execution

Dock, by thunder! so I would," Well, as it seemed to me, there was some sense in this. We struck our bargain on the spot. In three minutes I had the Hispaniola sailing easily before the wind along the coast of Treasure Island, with good hopes of turning the northern point ere noon, and beating do en again as far as North Inlet before high water, when we might beach her safely, and wait till the subsiding tide permitted us to land.

Then I lashed the tiller and went below to my own chest, where I got a soft silk handkerchief of my mother's. With this, and with my aid, Hands bound up the great bleeding stab he had received in the thigh, and after he had eaten a little and had a swallow or two more of the brandy, he began to pick up visibly, sat straighter up, spoke louder and clearer, and looked in every way another man. The breeze servel us admirably. We skimmed before it like a bird, the coast of the island flashing by, and the view changing every minute. Soon we were past the high lands and bowling beside low, sandy country, sparsely dotted with dwarf pines, and soon we were beyond that again, and had turned the corner of the rocky hill that ends the island on the north.

I was greatly elated with my new command, and pleased with the bright, sunshiny weather and the different prospect of the coast. I had now plenty of water and good things to eat, and my conscience, which had smitten me hard for my desertion, was quieted by the great conquest I had made. I should, I think, have had nothing left me to desire but for the eyes of the coxswain as they followed me densively about the deck and the odd simile that appeared continually on his face. It was a smile that had in it something both of pain and weakness-a haggard, old man's smile; but there was besides that, a grain of derision, a shadow of treachery, in his expression as he craftily watched, and watched, and watched me at my work.

THE SCHEME ENDORSED.

The Fresbyterians May Yet Be Froud of the Stand Cucen's Has Takeu.

The Presbyterian Review editorially remarks: "Queen's university, while wishing the provincial university the largest possible success, has not seen her way open to enter into the university confederation. Her authorities and her alumni with one consent decided, almost at the inception of the scheme, that if sharing in state aid implied removal to Toronto she must remain in Kingston. Removal to Toronto implied absorption and effacement, and to this Queen's naturally would not consent. It is claimed that in rejecting the confederation scheme everything that has occurred in the past two years has convinced her friends that in the interests of the country, in the interests of university education, in the interests of Queen's herself, the authorities took the right position. As 'a dignified protest' against the refusal of the government to aid Queen's unless on conditions that her friends believe would only imperil her existence, it has been decided to make a supreme effort to place her by private liberality in such a position as to be completely indifferent to government favours. The scheme proposed, we have no doubt, will strike our readers as well considered, enterprising and feasible. Of itself it is sufficient to mark this year annus mirabilis in our educational annals. Without abating one jot of our locality to the provincial university and our gratification at seeing the basis of our national system of education broadened and deepened, we rejoice in the renewed tokens of progress vitality and success in Queen's, and note with the liveliest sympathy the courage and self-sacrificing devotion of her sons. We commend to the careful attention of all our readers the plan adopted for best fitting her to discharge the great work she feels called upon to perform. It is not impossible the day may come when the Presbyterian church in Canada may have special reason to be thankful that Queen's university, at a critical juncture in her history, decided to preserve her indentity and to go forward untrammelled by state connection.

Enjoy Life. What a truly beautiful world we live in ! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof that Green's August Flow. er will make them as free from disease as when born. Dyspepsia and liver complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as biliousness, indigestion, sick headache, costiveness, nervous prostration, dizziness of the head, palpitation of the heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it.

In a Bad Condition.

"I was so bad with dyspepsia that I could not take food of any kind without distress, and could not take a drink of water for a month at a time. I have been a great sufferer from liver complaint and dyspepsia for many years," says Mrs. Nelson W. White head, of Nixon, Ont., whom two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured.

What 10 Cents Will Do.

A tencent bottle of Polson's Nerviline will cure neuralgia or headache. A ten cent bottle of Nerviline will cure toothache or faceache. A ten cent sample bottle of Nerviline is sufficient to cure colds, diarrhoea, spasms, dysentery, &c. Nerviline is just the thing to cure all pains, whether internal or external. Buy at your drugget a 10 cent sample of Nerviline, "the great pain cure." Safe, prompt and always effectual. Large bottles at any drug store, only 25 cents.

Wind the Clocks

The best clock needs regulating and winding up when the main-spring runs down. So, too, when the human machinery gives out, it needs regulating and the main-spring (pure blood) needs toning. Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate and tone all broken down conditions of the system. In purchasing R.B.B. beware of counterfeits.

In England and Wales there are 112 gasundertakings belonging to local authorities, representing a capital of £15,000,000, on which a net profit of £450,738 was distributed in the year 1885. Are you made miserable by indigestion,

MEDICAL.

Wonderful Popularity of the Renowned Medicine.

Greatest Curative Success of the Age-- A Voice from the People.

No medicine introduced to the public has ever met with the success accorded to Hop Bitters. It stands to-day the best known curative article in the world. Its marvellous renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It is the most powerful, speedy and effective agent known for the building up of debilitated systems. The following witnesses offered to prove this:

What it Did For an Old Lady.

Coshocton Station, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1884. Gents :- A number of people had been using your Bitters here, and with marked ef fect. In fact, one case, a lady of over seventy years, had been sick for years, and for the past ten years I have known her she has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so teeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty five miles, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It had such a very beneficial effect on her that one bottle improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use. - W. B. HATHAWAY, Agent U.S. Ex. Co.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

GORHAM, N. H., July 15, 1886. Gents :- Whoever you are, I don't know, but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago, I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters, I used one bottle but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they were as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellow men that was ever conferred on mankind. - Tim Burch.

A Husband's Testimony.

My wife was troubled for years with blotches, moth patches and pimples on her face, which nearly annoyed the life out of her. She spent many dollars on the thousand infallible (f) cures, with nothing but injurious effects. A lady of Syracuse, N.Y., who had had similar experi-ence, and had been cured with Hop Bitters, induced her to try it. One bottle has made her face as smooth, fair and soft as a child's, and given her such health that it seems almost a miracle.-A MEMBER OF CANADIAN PARLIA-

A Rich Lady's Experience.

I traveled all over Europe and other foreign countries at a cost of thousands of dollars, in search of health and found it not. I returned discouraged and disheartened, and was restored to real youthful health and spirits with less than two bottles of Hop Bitters. I hope others may profit by my experience and stay at home.
