BASE BALL WORLD.

Change in Rules—Matches of Local Interest—Ottawa College Club.

Chicago, having sold some of its best players, had better sell out itself or get a few clubs occasionally to sell games to it.

An offer of $2,500 from the Chicago base ball club, for the release of Galvin, Pittsburgh's pitcher, was declined. President Spalding then telegraphed to Pittsburgh, raising the bid to $5,000. The answer was another refusal.

The Elks' base ball club, Portsmouth, is flourishing. The players will wear very gay suits this season—red stockings, white shirts and pants, and belts. The first match occurs on May 24th, when the Wolfe Island nine will the opposing team.

A special meeting of the American base ball association was held at Cincinnati on Saturday. The scoring rule giving a man a base hit on five balls was condemned, and the committee were instructed to confer with the league in having the four strikes changed to three.

The base ball match between the Park Nine, of Kingston, and the College club, set down to be played at the college grounds, Ottawa, on Saturday next, has not been definitely settled. The manager of the Park Nine wired manager Sheehan yesterday morning that he would take on his team for Saturday, provided a return match would be played in Kingston in three weeks. The management of the College club cannot comply with this condition, and the match is as far off as ever.

Great Forest Fires.
OTTAWA, Ont., May 17.—Forest fires are doing very serious damage on the limits in the Mississippi district. They have, during the past ten days, done incalculable damage, and nothing but a spell of rain will check their spread.

GLAD OF THE RACKET

MR. O'BRIEN GLORIFYING IN THE PUFFS HE'S GETTING.

The Row Promised at Toronto to the Best Thing That Could Happen—Advertising Them More Than He Expected—His Opinion of Goldwin Smith.

MONTREAL, May 16.—Speaking of the Orange meeting at Toronto, on Saturday, Editor O'Brien said to-day that it was the best thing that could have happened. "Why," said he, "with Lansdowne now it is a case of 'deliver me from my friends.' Haven't the Orangemen got him and his cause into the very same slough that bigoted little tory, Charles E. Lewis, got the government into the other day in relation to the charges of the London Times, the editors of which, he insisted, should be summoned to the bar of the house of commons, and which to his astonishment and consternation the government voted down, and was supported by the whole force of the Irish party? Personally, I am delighted at their most extravagant utterances, and personally I am fearless. I predicted that Professor Goldwin Smith would at last find his level, which prediction was fulfilled, as I see he was one of the most blatant speakers at the Orange meeting. If any differences existed among the nationalists in Toronto, the publication of Archbishop Creeke's letter has swept them away and caused them to unite as one man." Mr. O'Brien says that a riot during this time would give such a tremendous lift to the Irish cause generally that he fears that it will not take place. As great as the Orange riots at Belfast served the cause of home rule, far greater, he believes, would Orange riots at Toronto serve the cause of the Lansdowne tenantry. He is of the opinion that Lansdowne knows this, and Mayor Howland, too, and that both consequently will work hard to preserve the peace.

Arrival in Toronto.

TORONTO, May 17.—William O'Brien and Dennis Kilbride arrived here from Montreal at 11 o'clock this morning. They were received by the executive committee of the local branch of the Irish National League. Over one thousand people were at the station. The visitors were greeted with lusty cheers mingled with groans. They were escorted to the Rossin house. Here a large crowd had assembled on the street, and the corridors were crowded. When O'Brien made his appearance cheers were called for Lansdowne and given heartily. Cheers were then called for O'Brien and given as heartily. When O'Brien entered the hotel those in the corridor again called for cheers for Lansdowne, followed by cheers for O'Brien, and groaning. O'Brien took up a position on the bottom step of the stairway, and his friends were introduced to him, among them being a few ladies.

Mr. Cahill, secretary of the local branch of the land league, then stepped forward and read the address, welcoming him to Toronto, and stating that the activity and earnestness with which he had always aided the great Irish leader, had placed his name among those most revered by Irishmen throughout the world. The strong and earnest manner in which he had advocated the rights of the evicted tenants of Ireland, and brought to light the cruelty and oppression of their arrogant landlords deserved the praise and sympathy of all liberal-minded men. In the Irish national party, and in members of it such as himself, the peasants and working classes of Ireland, and of the world had the best advocates of their rights and liberties. The Irish nationalists of Toronto extended to him their best wishes for the success of his present undertaking, feeling certain that the motives which impelled him to appeal to the people of Canada were motives deserving of our warmest sympathy and support. "Your present campaign," it said, "is the safety of the Irish tenantry, and your advocacy of that plan has endeared you to the hearts of your race all over the world."

Mr. O'Brien said his heart was overflowing with gratitude for the way his countrymen had received him. It was the recognition of the risks they incurred in siding with him against the powerful lord he had come to arraign. He wouldn't forget it if he lived a hundred years. He did not refer to personal threats, but to the fact that no citizen of Canada would be intimidated by having revolvers thrust in their faces or by threats of violence. Summer friends were easy to obtain, but the present case was one in which the test was made of their loyalty to the cause. "God bless," said he, "the whole Canadian people for the fair play shown unto me, and insisted upon by them." At the conclusion of the speech cheers were again called for Lansdowne and O'Brien. This closed the proceedings till the meeting in the park this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. There is a large number of strangers in the city, and fears gain ground of rioting. All the police force will, however, be there to preserve order.

The banquet tendered to Mr. O'Brien will be held in the Rossin this evening, commencing at 7 o'clock.

O'Brien at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, May 17.—There is a strong feeling here over O'Brien's coming to the capital. The Orangemen, of whom there are several thousands, declare if he comes they will mob him, while the friends of home rule, equally strong, declare they will protect him, if need be, at the point of the pistol.

OTTAWA, May 16.—Great preparations are being made for the reception of the governor-general when he arrives back from the west. The display promises to be the largest ever seen in the capital. To refute the statement made, that Lord Lansdowne never had a welcome given him except by the military, the procession will be composed solely of civilians and national and benevolent societies. There will be a civic holiday, and the children of the united schools will sing "Ode of welcome specially composed for the occasion. The city will be elaborately decorated, and an address of welcome from the people read. Hundreds of mounted civilians will compose the guard of honor. Intense indignation exists over the intended visit of O'Brien, and trouble will no doubt take place if there is any outside display in his favor. The feeling is not confined to one sect or class, but equally alike among all religions and creeds. The Gossip, a new paper published, calls O'Brien a fenian and a dynamiter, and says he deserves mobbing. The Sons of England here, a very strong body, have passed the following resolution: "That this society, as a body of loyal British subjects, denounce the proposed visit to the capital of Wm. O'Brien, who has determined to come to stir up strike, and as he says, 'bound her majesty's representative day and night,' and that we show our loyalty and undivided obedience to her majesty, and her representatives in the land of our adoption, by joining in a body the proposed demonstration to welcome the governor-general on his return to the capital."

An Important Proceeding.

OTTAWA, May 16.—Every member of the house who voted against the Curran resolutions received to-day, from the clerk of the city of Dublin, copies of a resolution passed by the Dublin city council, which, after denouncing Lord Lansdowne in round terms, closes with the following words:

"That we hereby call upon the Canadian people to vindicate the cause of the oppressed tenants by marking their sense of the conduct of the governor-general of their Dominion by giving an enthusiastic welcome to the tenants' advocate, William O'Brien, and making his visit to Canada a triumphant success."

The idea of O'Brien's "triumphant success" throughout Canada created a great deal of amusement. The member for North Bruce returned his copy to the Dublin council with the following curt note:

"House of Commons, Ottawa, May 14.
"Sir,—I beg to return your extraordinary and dialogal communication. Your obedient servant, ALEX McNEILL."

The Governor Speaks.

Lord Lansdowne, acknowledging the resolutions passed by the Toronto meeting, on Saturday, and sent to him by Mayor Howland, says:

"I have done nothing to forfeit, respect or to justify a withdrawal of the good-will which has hitherto been shown towards me. It has been a source of the deepest regret to me that those who have sought for political purpose to stir up strife between me and the tenants, on a part of my Irish estates, should have been for a time successful. I desire sincerely that the differences which have thus arisen may not prove to be permanent, and that the kind relations which until recently existed between those tenants and myself may be ere long completely restored."

PARLIAMENTARY NOTES.

Civil Service Appointments—Budget Debate Resumed—Mr. Blake Absent.

Mr. Blake will not enter the house again until after the 25th May.

An exciting time is expected when returning officer Dunn appears before the bar of the house.

The budget debate was resumed yesterday afternoon, the opposition disputing the contemplated changes clause by clause.

A few of Mr. Mackintosh's friends are still pressing his claims to the position of lieutenant-governor of the North-west Territories.

Sir Charles Tupper has intimated that he will have some provisions made in regard to the duty placed on iron for contracts entered into before the change in the tariff.

Deputations representing the iron industries have waited upon the ministers of finance and customs regarding the tariff changes. It is expected that temporary concessions will be made.

In discussing Mr. McNeill's amendment to the Civil Service act Mr. Casey made some remarkable statements of persons who had passed their examinations years ago, yet they never had a chance of entering the service. He believed no record was kept of seniority in qualified graduates, but favorites were put in over the heads of those who had qualified.

The house was occupied for nearly two hours discussing patent insides and outside stereotype plates and bases, etc., and the high duties about to be imposed on the importation of this class of printers' supplies from the United States. Nicholas Flood Davin gave his experience as an editor and publisher at Pile-o-Bones.

The correspondence laid before the house of commons, in reference to the seizure of British and Canadian vessels in Behring straits, shows a complete back down by the United States government from their original claims. British vessels can now enter the seal fishing districts until such time as a different treaty is formed with the United States.

Intelligence has been received from Batoche to the effect that the half-breeds have been refusing to accept the loan of seed grain offered by the government, and are neglecting cultivation of their lands, fearing that the nominal mortgages of their farms given as security for repayment will be suddenly foreclosed. The minister of the interior has telegraphed them, urging their cultivation of the lands and promising that the government will deal liberally with them in case there is a failure in the crops this season.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Late John McMillan.

John McMillan, customs officer, is dead. He was a popular citizen, and his demise is greatly regretted by a large circle of friends. His death was sudden, the result of an attack of apoplexy. Yesterday he was at his post all day. He seemed to be in good health and humour. When 4 o'clock came he went to his home at G.T.R. depot. After tea he intended to water some flowers. He took a pill and entered his cellar. Just as he was about to turn the water tap he was stricken with apoplexy and fell. He was lifted, unconscious, and in an hour had passed away.

Deceased was a native of Scotland, born in 1834. For a time he was engaged in the grocery business on Ontario street and was very successful. He entered the customs' department in December 1879. He leaves a wife and two children; both the son and daughter are married and in good circumstances. Deceased was at one time connected with the masonic and Orange orders, but it is stated that he had no relations with them at the time of his death.

Mr. McMillan was a member of the council for seven years, from 1866 to 1872. He represented Cataract Ward.

Late Joseph Connolly.

"Mr. Joseph Connolly, of Yarker, died to-day at noon. The funeral on Thursday, at noon." Such is the brief telegram which came to hand as we go to press. Mr. Connolly was one of Yarker's foremost men, and must be greatly missed.

A Master of the Platform.

Don't fail to hear Wendling in the City hall, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next. See advertisement on fourth page.

"I am awfully tired." These were the words of a woman who had been house-cleaning all day. "Never mind, Hannah, I shall go down to Crawford and order one dozen of Labatt's ale and that will brace you up." She smiled and was contented.

BRITISH LEGISLATION.

THE COERCION BILL WILL NOW BE RUSHED THROUGH.

Some Modifications in the Irish Land Act—Mr. Gladstone Made up With an Old Friend—The Whitsuntide Adjournment Very Near at Hand.

LONDON, May 17.—Lord Hartington to-day had a long conference with the Marquis of Salisbury, Hon. W. H. Smith and Mr. Goschen, with a view to hastening the passage of the Coercion bill.

The proposal of Mr. Smith, that the house of commons adjourn for the whitsuntide holidays, from May 24th to June 26th, leaves the house only four nights for debate on the Coercion bill before the adjournment, as all the others will be occupied with the estimates. It is doubtful whether the first clause of the Coercion bill can be passed before the adjournment.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt proposes an important amendment to the bill, exempting from secret inquiry all proceedings relating to public meetings or agrarian movements, including combinations to obtain reductions of rent. The Gladstonians will make this a test amendment. If the government accepts it the bill will be permitted to progress, but if the government refuses every possible device will be used to obstruct the measure.

The government will modify the Irish land bill in the house of lords. The original clauses enabled solvent tenants to apply for a reduction of rent under an appeal in bankruptcy. It is now proposed as a substitute that a joint application be made for a bankruptcy or by order of both landlord and tenant, and further that the court be empowered to stay an eviction, without declaring bankruptcy, by granting an extension of time for payment.

Mr. Gladstone will spend part of his Whitsuntide in Swansea, Wales, the guest of Sir Henry Hussey Vivian. Sir Henry was formerly a liberal. He wavered, however, in his loyalty to Mr. Gladstone when he introduced his Irish home rule bill, and acted with the liberal-unionists. Recently he became converted to the ex-premier's views on the Irish question. It is probable that the Welsh people will signalize Mr. Gladstone's visit by a series of demonstrations in his honour.

LONDON, May 17.—Sir George O. Trevelyan, speaking at the banquet of the Eighty club last night, strongly condemned the Coercion bill as unjust and exasperating to the Irish people. He believed there were not more than twenty liberal commoners who desired to exclude Irish members from Westminster, and that there was not one of those twenty who was not willing to give up the point in order to secure the return of Hartington to the liberal ranks. He taunted Lord Salisbury with having taken office with the help of the Parnellites, in the face of Forster's accusation against Parnell of complicity in crime, an accusation of equal gravity with the charges of the Times. He concluded by declaring that the liberals wanted the unionists to rejoin their old party, and would pay any honorable price to get them back. The speech created a sensation in the lobby of parliament. The home rulers regard it as a triumph for their cause.
