THE ORNITHOLOGICAL PUZZLE

Death of a Thousand Pollar Bird-Startling Conversational Powers.

Jack, the nondescript, one that has sorely puzzled the greatest ornithologists of America, and for which the sum of $1,000 has frequently been offered and refused, died on Thursday at the residence of its owner, Capt. Frederic Perkins, Brooklyn. He was a remarkable linguist, and, although of Oriental nativity, spoke English with great fluency. A Christian Chinaman, one of thousands of people that visited the bird, said that he was of a genus rare in the Celestin' envire, but that specimens had been infrequently seen within about ten miles of Canton, and he attributed to it many of the characteristics of the American starling. His breast and back was of a beautiful drab or dove color, the wings and tail of rich velvety ble had pped with white, the head surmounted with a suft of black hair like feathers; legs and a seclow; long, sharp telens, live there for hards, and a small, victous gray eye or proming shape. He was the size of a hinglisher. Many fancied that he was a Pagoda not the menuchus pagodarum), but the best a ties repudiated the suggestion. Capit. 15 and 3 received the following from Professo J. B. Holden, of the Central park z ological cellection, after forwarding a minute de et ; tion of the bird and asking for its tribe:

DEAR SIR-I have looked over a veril werks that we have and find nothing concerning the creature. Wood's Natural History of Divis I thought would contain the most particular account, but find that it only repeats what we all know about mynahs. It says that the mynah is thought to be equally intelligent with the gray parrot, that is equally able to talk with any other bird. I don't know of a work to recommend to you. General works on birds are not common. I wish that I could direct you further, but I doubt any one's ability to find a book with a reference to the subject matter of your inquiry.

Chinamen believe that because of the startling intelligence and apparent conversational (not merely verbal) powers of the bird it was possessed of evil spirits. His knowledge of Chinese was unbounded. Among his mimetic powers were accurate imitations of coughing, sneezing, crying, laughing, sharpening of knife, drawing nails, grating nutmegs, sawing wood, filing a saw, barking of a dog and other sounds, given with wonderful precision. It actually conversed with Capt. Perkins, and apparently was made aware of the approach of his master by instinct. So soon as the captain came near his home the bird would screech a welcome of "Hello, Cap, dinner is all ready!" or, "This way for Rockaway, Cap!" He whistled an air like a human being, and the house dog would respond to his call. He understood everything that was said to him. The captain, in pleasant weather, would take Jack into the street perched upon his shoulder, but his affection for his master was so strong and so wonderfully manifested that the latter had no fear of his elopement. "Ah!" said the captain to the writer, "I almost feel as if I had lost a child. Talk about his value-no one could name his price to me!"-New York Times.

He Admires His Picture.

A singular story was told me of the way in which a great mastiff who had never been in the city manifested his opposition to being "taken." After some little trouble he was placed in position facing the instrument, and remained quiet till the photographer pulled the cloth from in front of his lens and let the big glass eye stare at the huge dog. This was two much for the mastiff, who at once sprang at the machine and pulled it down before his owner could interfere to prevent his doing any further damage. Then, after quieting the animal and letting him see what was wanted of him, he submitted calmly to being "taken," and was so pleased with his photograph that a copy is kept in his kennel firmly fastened by a frame and covered by a glass, which prevents him from exercising his propensity to lick it with his tongue. - Boston Post.

Two Little Executioners.

The Werld tells a story of two youthful Bostonians of "good families," aged 8 and 9 years, who were so impressed by that famous work, "Fox's Book of Martyrs," that they determined to imitate the events therein narrated. Did they, then, proceed to sit upon gridirons, or to twist each other's noses with pincers? Not much. It was not the martyrs but the executioners they wanted to emulate. They accordingly captured two pet pullets belonging to a neighbor, and, "tying them to a stake, built a fire and roasted them to death." It is not stated, but it is most sincerely to be hoped, that the parents of these youths treated them to a little martyrdam on their own account.-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Signs of the Summer Exodus.

"Travel to Europe will be very heavy this summer," said a trunk manu acturer. "I am sure of this, because there is such a big demand for stateroom trunks, steamer chairs, traveling rugs and all the other paraphernalia common to fashfonable and wealthy tourists. Young women particularly are evidently going abroad quite numerously. They come in here every day for small trunks, hand sachels and steamer chairs. The demand for these latter articles has grown so great that every trunk store nowadays has a few of them setting around for sale."-New York Sun.

Miss Wolfe's Kindness.

It would be of interest to know how many young women Miss Catherine Wolfe assisted through Vassar, and how many of her beneficiaries were as ignorant of the source of their belp as a girl student whom the writer ran across the other day. A petite little senior just home for her Easter vacation, o only learned on the day of Miss West's meral how it came about that her aunt had meetcriously been able to give beca colle reducation and meet the constantly recurred taition bills.-New York Mail and Lagrange

Selected for Policemen.

The police department of New York is not prejudiced evidently in the matter of selecto the ranks were made recently on probation. Four of the number were machinists, four were clerks, ten were conductors or drivers of cars or trucks, three were teamsters, two were blacksmiths, two were agents, one a printer, one a butcher, one a rigger, one a watchman, one a newsman, one a gateman, one a bookkeeper, one an undertaker, one a fireman, one a milkman, or a cutter, and one a stairbuilder.-Chicago ...nics.

The "New England" Colony.

It seems rather a pity to draw off some of the best and most enterprising clements of our population to western colonies, but the formation of such colonies continues at more or less regular intervals. There is now forming one which is now called the New England colony, and which proposes to found, in western Dakota, a town to be named New England City, where the streets will be called after the names of New England states and our public men.-Boston Transcript.

With Spring

Comes to many a feeling of lassitude and weakness; the appetite grows fitful and exacting, and in consequence the nutritive balance is ill-preserved. Neglect only increases the trouble, weakness grows apace and with the advent of the hot season the system impoverished and debilitated affords but slight protection against the inroads of more serious diseases. The tonic and nutritive properties of wine, beef and iron, with quinine, make it of great value in all forms of debility, loss of appetite, lassitude, weakness, etc. Wine, beef and iron with quinine sold at Polson's drug store, 50c and $1

Since last October I have suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head. For a week at a time I could not see. have used no end of remedies, also employ ed a doctor, who said it was impure blood but I got no help. I used Ely's Cream Balm on the recommendation of a friend. I was faithless, but in a few days was cured. My nose now, and also my eyes are well. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. -Mrs. GEORGIE S. JUDSON, Hartford, Conn.

Wind the Clock.

The best clock needs regulating and wind ing up when the main-spring runs down. So, too, when the human machinery gives out, it needs regulating and the main-spring (pure blood) needs toning. Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate and tone all broken down conditions of the system. In purchasing B.B.B. beware of counterfeits.
