POLITICAL JOTTINGS.

An Adjournment Occurs Until After the 24th of May—A Hit at Tupper.

OTTAWA, May 19.—Nicholas Flood Davin made another rambling speech on the duties on agricultural implements yesterday. He made a grand patriotic tirade against what he called "the saucy American flag."

Motions have been made in the senate by Hon. Messrs. Power and Macdonald (B.C.) that in the opinion of the house it was the duty of the government to see that in the event of any arrangements concerning our fisheries, the American fishermen would be made to comply with the same regulations as Canadian fishermen, and that British Columbia should get the benefit of any arrangements between the routes, to allow its products of fish and oil to be admitted into the United States on the same terms as from the other provinces.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie got in a good hit at the expense of Sir Charles Tupper. The latter said he would increase the tariff on purses, when Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said: "After taking all our money he now proposes to take our purses. He should put a tax on portfolios." Mr. Mills said they would tax those who held the portfolios.

It is likely that cruisers will be sent out this summer to the fishing banks to protect the interest of the Canadian fishermen. In reply to a question by Mr. Jones, Hon. Mr. Foster stated there was no foundation for the report that no more cruisers were to be sent out to protect the fisheries. It will be some time, however, before the fishing fleets will leave for their annual cruises.

The house was slily attended to-day, did not sit long, and adjourned early and until after the celebration of the 24th of May. Hon. Peter Mitchell stated his reasons in the house for supporting the national policy when it was first proposed. He said the present system of the government was entirely different from their first plans, and the poor were ground to oppression by the ever-increasing duties on articles required by them. It was, he said, an outrage, and instead of Sir John getting his hobby, "imperial federation," he would find Canadians looking to the south of our border for relief by some commercial arrangements.

The maritime members, together with those from British Columbia, are now busily engaged attending to the many lobbyists who have been waiting for the vacancy to press their claims.

The receipt of the Dublin corporation's resolutions by the members, re the O'Brien visit, caused a little ruffle on the political horizon. Most of the members consigned the disloyal documents to the waste-baskets.

Great preparations are going on for the reception to be given to Lord Lansdowne. Nearly three thousand school children will take part, each one with a union jack in his hand. The governor's way will be strewn with flowers, and immense triumphal arches will add beauty to the scene. His Excellency will be escorted through the city by hundreds of mounted citizens and half a dozen brass bands. There is no doubt of the success of the demonstration, and it promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted in the capital.

An Election of Officers.

At the regular annual convocation of Ancient Frontenac and Catarqui chapter R. A. M. No. 1, G. R. C., held in Masonic hall, King street, Kingston, May 18th, 1887, the following officers were installed for the ensuing year by Rt.-Ex. Comp. G. M. Wilkinson:

- Ex.-Comp. S. Angrove, L.
- " J. Hewton, H.
- " R. T. Walkem, J.
- " W. S. Smyth, S.E.
- " W. H. Carnovsky, S.N.
- Rt.-Ex. G. M. Wilkinson, T.
- G. Somerville, P.S.
- " J. Adams, S.S.
- " T. Boyle, J.S.
- " W. Wilson, M. 1st V.
- " E. Law, M. 2nd V.
- " W. Pugh, M. 3rd V.
- " E. Ball, Janitor.

Abolishing the Fee.

At the meeting of the teachers' association of Frontenac to-day there was a small attendance. Mr. Leonard, of Batteries, filled the chair. Mr. Henstridge gave notice that he would move to abolish the annual membership fee, thus making all qualified teachers members of the association. The secretary was voted $15 for his services during last year.

Showing Itself Off.

The 14th P. W. O. Rifles was out for a march last evening. It swung through the streets in good style, and to the rattling music of the re-organized band. The corps will be in fine shape for the review on May 24th. Another battalion parade occurs on Friday night.

The Eighty Club Stand.

LONDON, May 18.—At the meeting of the Eighty Club, to-day, to determine the attitude of the club toward Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy, 143 members voted in approval of some rule and against coercion, and 35 voted in favor of coercion and against home rule.

EDITOR O'BRIEN MOBBED.

THE CROWD PELT HIM AND HIS FRIENDS WITH STONES.

He Takes Refuge in a Locksmith's Shop and Makes His Escape—Two of His Friends and Others Injured—Exciting Scenes on the Streets.

TORONTO, May 18.—At the banquet to Mr. O'Brien last night, the toast of "The Queen" was not drunk and every mention of name of Lord Lansdowne called for biases. Father J. F. McBride told a correspondent that the archbishop had gone to Montreal. "Does Archbishop Croke's letter change Archbishop Lynch's views?" Father McBride was asked. "Not at all," he replied; "Archbishop Croke is a good man, but he knows nothing at all about Canada, and his interference in our affairs would be just as much out of place as O'Brien's. O'Brien's visit will throw the cause of Ireland in Canada back for years."

Colonel Grassett thinks O'Brien had better have stayed away from Toronto.

Mayor Howland looked upon the whole affair as a huge joke. O'Brien ought to be thankful he got away so easily.

The most touching incident since Mr. O'Brien's arrival in Toronto was a deputation of newboys, who presented him with a bouquet of flowers, a bunch of moss, and a little address, which said: "Kindly excuse the audacity of those holding such lowly positions. May God aid your mission to Canada."

The English detective has turned up here again and is shadowing Mr. O'Brien.

A deputation came from St. Catharines and pressed the editor very hard to attend a meeting there. Mr. O'Brien said he would try to do so. He has added Hamilton May 23rd to his list.

Mr. O'Brien spent the day in visiting, in company with Kilbride, the catholic institutions of the city.

He is resolved to attend the meeting at St. Catharines on Tuesday, the 24th inst. will make other engagements and prolong his tour as long as the slightest attempt at riot is shown.

Lord Lansdowne, when asked what he thought of the charge Mr. O'Brien had made replied substantially: "Mr. O'Brien has been wrongly informed. I have always been disposed to treat my tenants with moderation and justice. I have investigated every complaint that has been made as far as I could. I should have continued to do so had not the land league interfered in my affairs."

It is also charged, your excellency, that you borrowed from the British government to lend your tenants at an exorbitant interest."

"So it has been said. And under the Land Improvement act of 1881 that allegation is untrue and without the slightest foundation. Furthermore, the charges that have been brought against my grandfather in 1847—charges of cruelty, injustice and oppression—are also false. His estates were depopulated, and his revenue affected seriously. Yet, notwithstanding the cause which led to the misery of that unhappy year, he paid the costs of the families who emigrated to America, and paid them out of his own pocket. Those who remained were supported nearly or wholly at his own expense."

O'Brien Pelt With Stones.

TORONTO, May 19.—An attempt was made to assault Mr. William O'Brien. He left the Rossin House about 7:30 p.m. in company with Mr. P. Cahill and Mr. J. Mulligan. When they reached the street several of their friends called for cheers for O'Brien. This attracted the attention of a gang of roughs. Cheers for Lord Lansdowne followed. Mr. O'Brien said to those nearest to him in the street, "Don't make any noise boys; we are only going for a little stroll." The three then walked up York street to King, the crowd following. Before they had gone a hundred feet they were closely pressed by the crowd. Mr. O'Brien several times turned and tried to get them to stop, but as the mob continued to crowd on he walked on to Bay with his friends. On King street they were joined by Mr. Wall, the correspondent of the New York Tribune and the American Associated Press; Mr. C. M. Ryan, of Detroit, and Mr. Mann, reporter, of Toronto. When he got to Bay street Mr. O'Brien thought he would turn down that street and get back to the hotel around the block. The crowd followed the small party, however, and began stone throwing. Sgt. Adair was struck twice on the helmet. A cry was raised by the mob of "To the bay with him! To the bay with him!" The stones and eggs began to fly here, and Mr. Mulligan was struck on the elbow with a stone and several eggs. When he was struck with the stone O'Brien, who was walking with his head up, grasped his arm tightly and said, "Keep your head up." Mr. O'Brien turned west along Wellington street with his friends. The crowd pressed closely upon them. The police on this corner made a determined effort to keep back the mob. The newly-laid macadam here lent itself exactly to the purposes of the crowd. Large stones flew thickly and furiously. Mr. Wall was struck over one of the eyes with a large stone and knocked senseless. Messrs. Mann and Ryan ran to his assistance, and with the aid of Detective Burrows, and subsequently Mr. Kilbride, whom they met, took him to Hooper's drug store. The crowd, seeing Wall badly hurt, and lying bleeding in the dust, was content to leave him and press on after Messrs. O'Brien, Cahill and Mulligan, who ran through Lawlor's machine shop and out into a lane leading north. In this lane they were again violently attacked with stones. Mr. Cahill was struck on the back of the head and received a bad wound. Mr. Mulligan was also struck with a stone, but not seriously injured. Mr. O'Brien was struck three places with stones, on the left shoulder, on the breast and on the right arm at the elbow. The mob last sight of Mr. O'Brien soon after he ran up the lane, and for an hour after only a few persons knew where he was. An effort was made to get him concealed in the Bilton's tailor shop before the mob caught sight of him. After remaining in Bilton's for some time Patrol Switzer and several others got him to the Rossin house. They were proceeding west along the lane in rear of the Rossin house thinking the crowd had dispersed and that there would not be another attempt to mob him, to their surprise they saw crowds of men begin pouring into the lane from the west and east entrance. There was no time to be lost, Switzer and his assistants hurried Mr. O'Brien along to the rear of the Rossin house, where four of them assisted him over a ten foot brick wall.

They were not a second too soon, for the mob came on after him hooting and jeering. Mr. Switzer said: "If there had been a delay of five seconds it would have been up with Mr. O'Brien." "You had a narrow escape," said a reporter to Mr. O'Brien afterwards. "Yes," said Mr. O'Brien, as he stopped a minute to listen to the angry crowd that had gathered in front of the hotel on King street. "It was a deliberate and vicious attempt to murder us." "Are you going away to-morrow?" was asked. Mr. O'Brien—"Oh, please God, yes; we will go to Ottawa on the morning train." Returning to the assault of the mob he said, "They made a furious attempt to murder me." "I suppose you will not carry away a very good impression of Toronto?" Mr. O'Brien—"By no means. If I get to Kingston alive I will exhibit the tall hat I wore. It never got a single dinge!" To a World reporter he said: "By ducking my head I escaped several hits and also saved my tall hat, which I shall preserve fondly as a memento of the occasion, that is if it is not destroyed at Kingston."

Off For Ottawa.

TORONTO, May 19.—Editor O'Brien and Denis Kilbride left this morning for Ottawa by the 8:30 o'clock C.P.R. train. They were driven from the Rossin house in a cab accompanied by President Mulligan and Secretary Cahill, of the local branch of the land league, the latter of whom by the way does not appear to have been much hurt during last night's riot. At the Union station about 100 persons were waiting for them. O'Brien stepped upon the platform of a parlour car and delivered a brief address. When he commenced to speak he was greeted with mingled groans and cheers, he said he cannot depart without expressing thanks to them for the reception they had accorded him. As for the occurrence last night he had not the slightest doubt it was a deliberate attempt to murder him, incited by those whose position in the city ought to have taught them better. He did not defy them, he did not dare them, but he did fear them. "It was a cowardly attempt to murder me," said he, "and I am willing to leave the verdict as between them and me to the fair judgment of the fair-minded citizens of Toronto. We have triumphed, our cause is just, and the lives of hundreds of poor Irishmen depend upon the result of our mission among you. God bless you." He then disappeared within the car, followed by cheers and groans. The cheering and hooting was kept up till the rear car disappeared from view. Land leaguers accompanied the train to the north Toronto junction, where about half a dozen policemen were stationed for fear of a row. Wall, the New York reporter, is not much injured, but had a narrow escape, the stone having struck him near the temple.

Mr. O'Brien is unnecessarily alarmed about a riot in Kingston. He need not be. The people have too much sense. After speaking here he goes to Niagara Falls to spend Sunday.

IRISH PARTY HIT HARD.

THE MEMOIR ISSUED BY THE IRISH COLLEGE AT ROME.

It Deals Severely With Parnell and Gladstone—The Church Not Pulling With the Nationalists—Does the Vatican Endorse the Document?—It is Said So.

LONDON, May 19.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Rome received the proof sheets of the memoir prepared by the Irish college. The document begins by pointing out that in the Parnell or the Fenian movement interest is far higher and holier than the material advantages sought for are at stake. Genuine Irish grievances are no longer heard of, the cry for total separation having replaced all others. What was treason in the revolt of 1866, condemned by Pius IX, is now regarded as a mere matter of practical politics.

"But," says the memoir, "the acts against morality and religion, or the peace of society, cannot, like the chameleon or Gladstone, change their hue, and acts of Parnell and his followers are still under papal condemnation. It is not necessary, therefore, for the pope to condemn them, although, to quote the memoir, this their leader, being a free thinker and outside of the pale of the church, is exempt from. But that will not exempt his followers who profess to be Catholics."

After condemning Parnell for his associations with the apostles of violence the memoir declares that to accomplish his self-assumed task of breaking the last link that unites Ireland to England he made traitors of the masses of the Irish people. The means by which he sought to dissolve the union are denounced in the most unmeasured terms, while the "tools" he employed to spread "terrorism" throughout Ireland are held up to public execration.

The memoir then continues: "The acts of the Fenian party are the surest witnesses we can have, first of what their rule is, and second what it will be if they get supreme power. They now claim the support of the Catholics of Rome, and other foreign countries, who, of late, have been led to look favorably upon the Parnellite movement. Such can have had no notion of the horrible terrorism of which the Parnellite rule, wherever it has prevailed, has been the cause. It is that terrorism which has, from the first, been the source of Parnell's power. In support of this view, it gives a long catalogue of the agrarian crimes committed between January, 1866, and March, 1887, derived from the last report of the inspector general of the Irish constabulary, and declares that the perpetrators of these atrocious outrages must be brought to punishment if the loyal section of the population is not to be exterminated."

It insists that everyone, who has any sympathy for the sufferings of mankind, should hail with joy the passing of the Crimes act, and adds: "But, incredible as it may seem, there is a party opposed to it in parliament, on whom the appalling sufferings of the defenceless class, who are being mercilessly hacked down and butchered as if they were wild beasts, go for nothing; a party led by the very man who, only ten years ago, passed a Coercion bill that Nero or Draco would hardly have dared to pass. The bill is opposed by them on the plea that it is a Coercion bill, and not what the house of commons calls it, a Crimes bill. That is their plea for the conspiracy, now entered into by Gladstone and Parnell, to impede its passing and becoming speedily a law. They hope, by this inhuman process, to prolong the reign of terrorism which now obtains in Ireland, because they see that in its destruction the reign of Parnellism and crime will come to an end." Nothing, it holds, can justify the opposition to the immediate passing of the bill, and it predicts that Gladstone's hostility to the measure will utterly ruin his character as a statesman.

After expressing the sorrow of the Irish college at the Phoenix park murders, and the subsequent glorification of that execrable deed, the memoir concludes as follows: "The party with whom Gladstone has now identified himself for the furtherance of a revolutionary movement, which has for its avowed object the dismemberment of the United Kingdom, have done everything possible of late to persuade Catholics, by their speeches in and out of parliament, that the vicar of Christ was in favor of it. Could the English government be brought to believe this outrageous calumny. What would they think of the pope? What would the emperors of Austria, Germany and China think of him? What would the world at large think of it? What would non-Catholics, who believe in revelation, think of the Catholic church if its head on earth could view, except with profound sorrow, a movement which is filling Ireland with anarchy and devastation? Woe to a movement which, unless its days are shortened, will leave a land that once flowed with milk and honey, a desert without religion."

AN ORDER HAS BEEN ISSUED.

Dr. Kergan's Agent Seems to be Disinclined to Comply With an Injunction.

To-day the police authorities notified J. Q. Willy, agent for Dr. Kergan, that the circulation of the physician's circulars must cease. James Agnew, city solicitor, sent the mayor the following memorandum:

"With regard to the medical publications, which have been and are being so profusely distributed in the city, and alleged to be immoral, the following appears to be the law governing the case: 'Such immodest and immoral publications as tend to corrupt the mind and to destroy the love of decency, morality and good order, are also offences at common law.' Parties circulating publications coming under the above definition are liable to be indicted."

The agent claims that the circulars are not immoral. He was disinclined to comply with the order. He says there will be trouble before this matter ends.

Police Court—Thursday.

E. O'Rourke and C. McMahon, drunk, were fined $1 and $5 respectively. John Igho, assessed, was dismissed. Eliza Mills, for throwing refuse and water into the premises of a neighbor, had the case adjourned for a week. An action of ejectment caused the trouble. An ex-mayor was fined $5 and costs for an infraction of the Shaw by-law. Mary Ahern, for the larceny of white flannel, was remanded until to-morrow for sentence.

Swamped by Gladstonians.

BRISTOL, May 18.—A unionist meeting held here to-day was swamped by Gladstonians. Sir Henry James, who was to have delivered an address, was unable to obtain a hearing, and the meeting broke up in disorder.
