

FORCE AT BARRIEFIELD.

THE TROOPS TENTING ON THE OLD CAMP GROUND.

Drilling Going on Daily—A Specimen of Government Meanness—The Absence of Col. Villiers Deeply Deplored—Colonel Boulton in Temporary Command of the Volunteers.

The soldiers attending the annual military camp at Barriefield are happy, and, up to the present, conducting themselves in a manner calculated to reflect credit upon themselves. They are exceedingly well pleased with the quality of the rations served to them. The first day has passed without any event of a remarkable character having transpired. All the men were paraded yesterday, and, by companies, sections and squads, instructed in a series of military movements. Some of them acted very awkwardly, but considering that they are recruits a severe criticism cannot be passed upon them. The officers expect that, even in the short time allotted them for instruction, they will have the men well acquainted with their duty. The affliction which has overtaken Col. Villiers, D.A.G., in the illness of his wife, is lamented by all the volunteers in camp. He has been unable to attend the camp, and his absence is deplored. His cheering counsel to the officers and kindness to the men, which won for him their respect and confidence in times past, are now remembered by many, and regrets are expressed that he cannot be present with them. The volunteers do not seem to display as much enthusiasm as they undoubtedly would if the colonel were on the ground. In his absence Col. Boulton, of the Third regiment of cavalry, a gentleman and an officer in every respect, acts as commandant. He is the senior officer in camp. He hopes to receive the unanimous support of the whole camp in the performance of his duty.

The actual strength of the 45th battalion band is twenty-seven pieces, but only sixteen players are in camp. The others were unable to get away. Those present are: E. S. Meath, band master; R. Barrett, J. Summers, N. Yellowless, R. Jacobs, R. Glidden, G. Keeler, T. Rattenbury, J. Halfpenny, J. Colgate, C. Roblin, A. Windsor, C. Thompson, W. Ronich, G. Pickham, and J. Goble. C. Thompson was formerly a member of the Kingston police force. The band of the 46th battalion, which hails from Fort Hope, is made up of sixteen pieces. The players are: J. R. Smith, bandmaster; J. Roberts, W. Hall, H. Lithgow, A. Oliver, W. Curtis, A. Meadows, J. Elliott, C. Hormel, G. Morrison, T. Carson, H. Jones, W. Harcourt, H. Moore, G. McKim, C. True and Levi Wager. The organization is composed of first-class musicians.

A marquee has been erected near the shore on the Royal military college grounds by the Kingston young men's christian association. The tent is in charge of H. C. Drummond, of Seaford, a member of Rev. Mr. Savage's evangelistic band. Soldiers are invited to use the tent freely. First-class magazines and all the leading daily and weekly newspapers are on file. Stationary of all kinds is kept on hand for the accommodation of the campers. The proprietors of the Montreal Witness have kindly authorized Mr. Drummond to supply, gratis, each tent with a copy of the Witness every day during the camp. Religious services are held nightly. Last evening the meeting was addressed by Mr. Dodds.

Lieut.-Col. Rogers states that the government has not treated the Third regiment of cavalry properly. Nine stakes have been supplied to which are fastened 105 horses. The number of pickets is not sufficient, and the horses cannot be kept as they should be during the night. On Tuesday evening several of the horses broke loose, and trouble was caused in consequence. The colonel says he will not be allowed to put in more stakes. He expects that some of the horses will be injured, and the government called upon to pay the damages, which will probably cause a larger expenditure than if proper supplies were furnished. He applied for heel ropes for the horses and received only enough for one troop. The regiment was treated in a similarly shameful way two years ago. The result has been that members of the corps, who have good horses, would not turn out this year. Cavalry corps cannot be kept up properly if more protection for the horses against accidents and exposure is not afforded by the government than has been.

Sergt. C. Billings, of "C" troop of cavalry, commenced soldiering in 1837. He joined the Seventieth foot imperial regiment in Guernsey and went to Gibraltar. After serving with the regiment in the West Indies he was transferred to the Seventh Hussars in 1838 and came to Laprairie, P.Q. He was in Kingston at the time Von Schultz was executed. Billings says the unfortunate man was not guilty of rebelling. Billings went back to England in 1842, and in 1853 was discharged. He came to Canada and joined the Fifty-Seventh regiment at Peterboro, and after two years' service connected himself with the Third regiment of cavalry, with which he has been for eighteen years. His father was a member of the Royal horse guards, and was killed in the battle of Waterloo at the age of twenty-eight.

Notes and Comments.

The colours of the 45th battalion have gone astray. Capt. Evans, of the 45th battalion, had charge of the guard yesterday. Four companies of the 49th battalion practised at the butts to-day. Mr. Bird is caterer for the staff officers, and officers of the batteries and cavalry. The members of two troops of the cavalry wear scarlet uniforms. The coats of the other troops are dark blue. There are about twenty buglers in camp. They are under the instruction of Bugle-Major Jacobs. Capt. Snelgrove, of No. 1 company, 40th battalion, is one of the proprietors of the Cobourg World. His popularity with the men is very apparent. The officer of the day was Lieut.-Col. Rogers, 40th battalion, and the principal medical officer Dr. Boyd. The 46th battalion furnished the guard. The guard, furnished by the 46th battalion, on Tuesday, in charge of Capt. Snelgrove, was complimented on their appearance by Col. Cotton. One of the horses in the "A" battery division was purchased in the North-West. It is called "Assiniboine," and is an extraordinary hurdle leaper. Private W. Taylor, of the 45th batt., wears a silver medal, with clasp, in recognition of his services at Batoche during the North-West campaign. The most efficient bugler in camp is Pepper, of the 45th batt. He served with the 43rd regiment. His father, who remains next at Cataract, was a military schoolmaster, and at one time stationed at Fort Henry.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

CHARMING EFFECT. Dr. J. R. Schwartz, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "I used it in a case of dyspepsia, with charming effect, and am much pleased with it."

White lawns, for dresses, cheap at Murray & Taylor's.

"Everybody dance," was the call given at midnight on Tuesday by a number of unsexed privates of the 40th batt., who were determined to disturb the slumbers of their comrades.

Capt. E. W. Hubbell, of the department of inferior, adjutant of the 46th battalion, is a graduate of the Royal military college. He served as a lieutenant in the late Col. Williams' regiment in the North-West. Staff-Sergeant F. A. Birch, brigade clerk, is the right man in the right place. He is obliging to all, and well spoken of by the men. To visitors he is most attentive. Gr. Grant, of "A" battery, brigade clerk of artillery, is looked upon with favour also.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

Paragraphs of Interest as Picked Up by Our Busy Reporters on the Street.

A special meeting of the city council this evening. Corded crazy cloth 10c. per yard, at Murray & Taylor's. Jubilee handkerchiefs, for pocket and apron, at McMahon's. WON IT IN AN EASY WAY.

MATCH BETWEEN LOCAL TEAMS AT WOLFE ISLAND.

Much Demonstration When the Park Nine Led Off, but a Dampening Feeling Created Later on—Five Successive White-washes—The Kingstons Win Without Playing the Ninth Innings.

There was intense excitement at the new picnic grounds, Wolfe Island, for two hours yesterday. The occasion was a game of base-ball between the Park Nines and the Kingstons. It was their first meeting of the season.

There was bad feeling in connection with it, too, and unnecessary remarks made as to the new club claiming patronage. With sensible men the Park Nine lost prestige on account of the actions of its so-called friends.

The battle was hotly contested from beginning to finish. In nearly all the innings the teams played ball. Errors on both sides added to the score. The Kingstons battery was the best, but the Park Nine outtrivalled its opponents on the field.

There were about five hundred spectators, nearly all of whom were from Kingston. The inducement that brought the teams together on the island was a purse of $75. "Knock whisks on it" was the opening advice tendered Walker as he stepped to the plate and opened the match for the Park Nine. Charles Jerome, of Cape Vincent, was the umpire. Walker did not do as he was asked, but sent a hot liner to second, who laid it in Johnson's hands before the runner could reach the base.

"Didn't he take it well?" was the exclamation as Allen scooped in a foul fly from Millan's bat. A large piece of the crooked club flew in the diamond with the ball. The smash was too severe. Jerome shoved on a mask as balls were called on Connolly, he said: "I don't want a base hit made on me." Connolly got his first on the pitcher's throwing. The side retired without scoring a run.

MAKING THE FIRST RUNS.

The Kingstons opened for two runs. Pomfret who stole around to third, after striking a ball along the base line, stamped the home plate on Connolly's muff of Young's fly. Then Young scored as Barnfather made a grounder to left field. He was cut off while making second and at the same time McConville's nose was injured by contact with the runner.

Then the Park Nine's time came again, with cries and jeers, for they made four runs. There was signs of a dispute when McConville got home on what was called "a block ball," made by Young's wild throw to first. Lovett, amid the excitement of the joyous spectators, also made a run. Walker made a rousing knock to left field, and Thomas Little scored. Millan then hit and Moran was run out on second and Walker scored.

Then Kingstons' victory didn't come, for the side was retired in quick order. The Park Nine, in enthusiastic mood, made another run. And James Little in his strike knocked the cover loose. A new ball was supplied. By McConville's hit to Dunlop Little got home. The stock of the club went bobbing up, and much money was offered on the older team. But then luck changed, and the Kingstons were the crows. Dunlop struck out; Pomfret got a base on balls; Erilbeck hit to Connolly who made a good attempt to catch the soaring ball. Bases were stolen by the runners, and when Johnston got to first on balls the bases were filled. Young sent a la-lah to Moran and Pomfret scored; Barnfather hit to McConville and Erilbeck scored. A pass ball by Lovett let Johnson in, but Young expired while returning to third. There was no one to run him and he took chances and lost. Barnfather, who had reached third, stole home on another pass ball of Lovett's.

THE KINGSTONS STILL LEADING.

Six to five in favour of the Kingstons, was the aspect of affairs at this juncture. The Park Nine for the next five innings were Chicagoed. Four were struck out, seven were caught out, and four were felled from securing bases. Milan, in the fourth innings, made many foul hits, and one time knocked a spectator's hat off. Allen and Conde were loudly applauded as they captured various sky-scrapers that came in their neighborhood.

The Park Nine had continually complained that Young stepped out of the box, until finally the pleasant pitcher said there was no salt on the lines. "Pickle him," said a bystander, as the white substance was placed about the enclosure. Young smiled, and said that some one else might need it soon enough. The pitcher fielded nearly all the balls that put runners out in the five innings. He is a good 'un. "I like to see them bat," said a citizen who was talking on a stick, but the batting was generally unfortunate. In the Park Nine's eighth innings great cheering ensued as McIntyre and Lovett worked to third and second bases respectively. "It looks like scoring," exclaimed an enthusiast, but T. Little ended all hope by landing a foul in the catcher's hands. In the ninth innings the Park Nine went in to do its level best, and though there was excitement and high feeling the score was furnished with an additional run made by Moran. In this innings Walker tipped a foul in the air. Barnfather turned around, threw off his mask and caught the ball on his thumbs, and though it bounced in the air he hung to it. Dunlop made a great catch, and it finished the Park Nine. The spectators, with bated breath, watched him dash for it and cheered as they found he held it. The fly was sent by J. Little, and had it been missed, goodness knows, might have saved the club from defeat.

The Kingstons were not dismayed by the treatment accorded them, but played quietly along. Johnston broke a bat in the fifth innings and lost his base. Young reached the first, stole around to second, Barnfather hit to Walker. He threw it to McConville to shut off Young, but the little pitcher moved forward, and by a wild throw of McConville to Walker, made the base and scored. Meantime, in the by-play, Barnfather got well around and on an overthrow of Lovett to Moran scored while Allan dashed to third base.

MAKING THE LAST RUN.

A minute afterwards McMillan sent a rocket over to McConville, who took it, and by a double play cut off Allen, who was making back for the third bag. Erilbeck got his first base on the meagrest chance. He sent a fly to Walker, who let it drop even when surrounded by several others who wanted to take it. Erilbeck smiled as he thought of the slim thread on which his life had hung. He made the only run of the innings, when Barnfather sent a grass-creeper to Millan.

The eighth innings was barren of results, and as the winners were well ahead the ninth inning was not played by them. The Kingston battery played a fine game. Little work was needed by the field. Young struck five men out, and eleven men collapsed before the first base was reached. Eleven flies and four tips were taken.

CELEBRATION AT ODESSA.

The People Endorse the Scheme and Refer it to a Committee.

ODESSA, June 22.—(To the Editor): A meeting was called at the town hall here on Monday evening, to discuss the advisability of having a queen's jubilee on July 1st. There were present: Dr. Booth, Messrs. Byron Derbyshire, George Watts, P. A. Mabee, Truman Miller, Andrew Wycott, Joseph Sproule, John A. Mackay, S. J. Walker, and others. John Mackay was elected chairman and S. J. Walker secretary of the meeting. The following resolutions were unanimously carried: Moved and seconded, that it is desirable to have a jubilee in Odessa on July 1st if sufficient encouragement be given by the people. Moved and seconded, that the following be a committee to report to-morrow evening as to the encouragement that can be had for the undertaking, viz, Messrs. Byron Derbyshire, Doctor Booth, George Watts, P. A. Mabee, S. J. Walker, A. Wycott, Joseph Sproule, John A. Mackay and B. A. Booth. All present subscribed liberally. The meeting then adjourned. Resumed at Beaver hall next evening. Mr. George Aylsworth in the chair. The following was the decision of the meeting: That the same committee, with Mr. John Douglas and Mr. George Aylsworth added, be the committee of management, and that the celebration be held.

AT HYMEN'S ALTAR.

Mr. John Scanlan—Mrs. B. Kavanagh.

About four hundred persons occupied positions in St. Mary's cathedral last evening to witness the ceremony that united Mrs. Bessie Kavanagh to Mr. John Scanlan, one of the WHIG'S efficient composers. Mr. Scanlan promised to take good care of the bride, and his word is as good as his bond. Before the ceremony his associates in this office remembered him in a pleasant way. Hearty congratulations are now tendered to the couple. Several ladies sprinkled the bridal couple with rice as they passed through the front entrance of the cathedral on their way to the carriage. Mr. J. L. Madill—Miss W. Sands. An interesting bride was Miss Wilhemina Sands, daughter of J. S. Sands, merchant tailor, yesterday at noon. The groom was J. Lewis Madill, of Lakefield, Ont., a brother of Mr. Madill, who married an elder sister. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, ornamented with shell pink lace and pearls. She looked very handsome. Her sister, Miss Henrietta Sands, in pink satin, fawn lace and pearls, assisted as bridesmaid. Mr. E. C. Mitchell was the groomsmen. The marriage was solemnized in the parlors of the bride's mother by Rev. Dr. Mowat, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. There was a superb dinner and a mammoth cake, which was cut afterwards and carried away. The bride received very many gifts. She was a young lady of great amiability and her friends deeply regret that she leaves the city.

Hard on the Hospitals.

LONDON, June 21.—So far as the figures published go hospital Sunday was a deplorable fiasco. Last year the whole amount collected was over £40,000. This time the managers of the fund have been begging hard for at least twice that sum. The fact is, the people have been absurdly extravagant over the jubilee celebration, and are economizing in their charities. In consequence it looks as if the jubilee was going to kill hospital Sunday. A prize of $25, given by his honor Judge McGowan, LL.D., will be awarded at Queen's college in April, 1888, for the best collection of Canadian plants, made during the season of 1887. The Mast goes down among the islands Saturday, 25th, leaving at 1:30 p.m.

PRAISE YE THE LORD.

JUBILEE DEVOTIONS IN THE SEVERAL CHURCHES HERE.

The Life, Work and Virtues of the Queen Commented Upon—The Extension of the British Empire Under the Rule of Her Majesty—The Clergy Strongly Represented at One Service.

At the First Congregational church an attractive service was held. The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers, and a full choir rendered some beautiful and appropriate selections. Dr. Jackson preached from II. Samuel, xxiii., 3-4. In his discourse he said: "We have met to invoke the divine blessing on our queen, whose fiftieth anniversary of coronation is celebrated to-day. In doing so we cannot help thanking God for the preservation of the empire as a whole during all this time. While France has passed from a monarchy to a republic, then to an empire, and back to a republic, the empire of which we form a part has been preserved over and led to prosperity by Queen Victoria. Although such a long reign it has been one of comparative peace. Under irritating circumstances, and with unlimited resources, it is a matter for congratulation that but two wars of grave importance have been entered into necessarily, viz., the Crimean, suggested by the oppression and lust of gain of an autocratic power, and the mutiny in India, when the subjects were urged by disloyal advice to throw off the authority of England. These wars, although causing much loss of life and the expenditure of great treasure, made possible the establishment of peace on a firm basis, and brought about direct communication between India and the British crown. The extension of the empire in India, Africa, the land of the Pharaohs, Asia, Australasia, and other parts, until, from one hundred millions, she now sways the sceptre over three hundred millions, occupying in area one-third of the earth's surface, is a matter for congratulation. Everywhere that the flag has been planted the desire has been that it should be the emblem of liberty and right, and that cruelty and oppression should be abolished. The advancement in education and religious liberty until Jews, Roman Catholics, and those of all religions might act without molestation, was dwelt upon by the speaker. Temperance and morality and purity have ever had a strong advocate in the person of our beloved sovereign. Never did a sovereign reign who was more respected and beloved than Queen Victoria, who, in her childhood and in after life, sought the guidance which comes from above, which she ever was proud to acknowledge as the source of her power and that of her people.

Service in St. George's.

On Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock a united service was held in St. George's cathedral. The congregation was large, being representative of the several Anglican churches. The clergy present in their robes were the Ven. Archdeacon Jones, of Nanapanee; Revs. F. W. Dobbs, Portsmouth; W. L. Jones, Barriefield; I. J. Christie, Wolfe Island; C. E. Cartwright, A. Spencer, F. Prime, J. K. McMorine, A. W. Cooke, R. T. Burns, of Kingston; and Rev. J. H. Nimmo, Pittsburgh. Precisely at 10:30 the choir commenced the national anthem, when the clergy entered from the vestry. The prayers were read by Revs. J. H. Nimmo and I. J. Christie. The first lesson by Rev. K. L. Jones, the second lesson by Rev. F. Prime. Then followed the ante communion service, Rev. C. E. Cartwright reading the epistle and Rev. F. W. Dobbs the gospel. The preacher was the archdeacon, who took for his text Proverbs 8, verse 15: "By Me Kings Reign." The sermon was a very eloquent one, reviewing the past fifty years. The preacher paid a high tribute to the excellence, the grandeur and the goodness in every way of the reign of our noble queen, and closed by entreating all to imitate her as wife, mother, ruler, in fact in every department of life. During the service the choir sang a jubilee hymn, composed for the occasion by the Lord Bishop of Ossory. A large number remained to partake of holy communion.

Service of the Methodists.

"I have heard it remarked," said the Rev. Mr. Whiting in Sydenham St. Methodist church yesterday morning, "that none of us have ever taken part before in the celebration of the jubilee of a British sovereign, but in looking around me this morning I am not sure that that is true. I think I see amongst us one or two links that binds us to the last jubilee celebration. It is almost certain, however, that none of us will ever see such a jubilee again." Touching on the nature of the Hebrew jubilee and its typical meaning, Mr. Whiting then dwelt on the meaning of the present jubilee and honourably vindicated the right of Methodists to celebrate it not only because of their characteristic loyalty, but because of their fondness for a jubilant piety. The birth, education, coronation, marriage and other leading events in the life of the queen were then rapidly sketched and happily illustrated with anecdote and comment, her womanliness, dignity, firmness, common sense, and high christian principle being admirably brought out. The service, which was very interesting was a union one, and the other resident Methodist clergymen, Revs. Messrs. Sparling, Wilson, Timberlake and Bland, occupied the pulpit and participated in the devotional exercises. The choir of the church rendered the fine chorus, "Britannia, We Hail Thee" with spirit.

PERSONAL MENTION.

People Whose Movements, Sayings and Doings Attract Attention.

Rev. David Savage's evangelistic band has gone to Manitoba. Miss Jennie Warwick, of Smith's Falls, is visiting W. H. Asselstine. Rev. Dr. Cleary took part in the dedication of the new chapel at Ottawa college yesterday. Henry Wilnot, jr., son of H. Wilnot, M.P.P., has been appointed to a position in the post office inspector's office. Rev. G. C. Poyser, formerly of Sydenham, sailed on Wednesday for England on the steamer Parisian. He will be absent about two months. Prof. Goodwin, of Queen's, has issued a text book of chemistry for students in medicine. A critic says: "Every page bears evidence of scrupulous care and accuracy." Dr. Russell, of Binbrook, has been appointed medical superintendent of the Hamilton insane asylum. Dr. Wallace has resigned because of ill-health. The salary is $1,500 and a free house.

Weather Probabilities.

Moderate to fresh south to west winds, mostly fair weather, with slight showers in a few localities; stationary or slightly lower temperature.
