THE DAILY WHIG.

"Opifer per Orbem Dicor."

The correspondence on another page will be read with great interest. It hinges upon the teaching of christianity in regard to poverty, and really it is amazing what a diver sity of opinion has been expressed upon it by the men who, of all in the city, should be capable of discussing it clearly and of arriving at conclusions clear and concise. The clergy need to give the questions of the day more attention.

TROUBLE ABOUT CLEARANCES.

There is a flutter among marine men owto the imposition (that is the right word) of the tax of one dollar each time a Canadian craft enters from and clears for an American port. This is burdensome to all and ruinous, especially to ferry steamers. The action of Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, in his role of public executioner of Canadian inland marine, is in marked contrast with the policy of the Ontario government, which has recently, by its legislation, lightened the taxation on floating property. Our water traffic is being swept from the lakes by oppressive legislation, while the whole country is being bled to fill the capacious maw of the Canadian Pacific rrilway. It is a startling fact that on the whole Canadian frontier there is not one freight carrying craft under construction, whilst our neighbors have put affoat a larger tonnage within the last year than ever before in the same space of time. If this unwise discrimination on the part of the Canadian government continues a short time longer the Union Jack will be an unknown flag on these waters. It is only because the matter is so little understood by the general public that complaints are not more wide-spread and bitter. Any one who will take the trouble to inquire will learn that American vessels are getting $1.90 per ton on coal from Oswego to Chicago, whilst Canadian vessels are at the same time taking ore from our docks to Chicago at $1 per ton, and doing it today. And yet the present government seems to be doing all it can to further handicap the dying industry.

TUPPER'S DOCTRINE.

The Hamilton Times points out the evil of Sir Charles Tupper's preaching and practice. It is announced that he will, after witnessing the marriage of his son, proceed with Lady Tupper to England, and resume his office of high commissioner, at $10,000 a year, et cetera, et cetera. In a recent debate in the commons Sir Charles expressed the opinion that it was justifiable for civil servants to take part in politics on the government side. He certainly squares his own conduct by his theory. Until a few weeks before the election he was a civil servant, paid a handsome salary out of taxes contributed by the whole people, and doing work that could be described as partizan. When Sir John Macdonald was trembling with apprehension that the people would mete out to him and his colleagues the punishment they had so richly earned, along came Sir Charles Tupper from England, leaving his high commissionership to take care of itself while he managed the Nova Scotia elections, secured a seat for himself in parliament, and put in a session as finance minister. That done he goes back into civil service. In fighting to sustain the Macdonald government he was, of course, fighting to retain his office of emolument. But if it was right for Sir Charles to forsake his regular duties to take part in an election, why should the same rule not apply to smaller men in the civil service ? Every postmaster, customs collector and other officer under government pay could reason as Sir Charles reasoned and act as Sir Charles acted. General recognition of the notion that "to the victors belong the spoils' must follow. The idea has never been popular in Canada, but if it is to be adopted it is better that it should be done openly than under cover, and it is better that the practice of partyism on American lines should be carried out during the term of Sir Charles in London so that should the whirl of the wheel of fortune end the reign of toryism the liberals will know where to consign him.

BEATH OF A JUDGE. A painful feeling prevails, especially in legal circles to-day, in consequence of the death of Chief Justice Cameron. His illness had been brief, but it was of a serious nature from the beginning, and its fatal ending has not been unexpected. The removal of so talented a man leaves a vacant chair in the judiciary of the country which it will be difficult to fill. Sir Matthew, knighted only recently, took eminence from the outstart of his career. He won respect and honor in every walk of life. Politically he was one of the conspicuous figures in the legislature while he had a seat there, and for years acted as leader of his party. He left politics and a lucrative practice to accept a seat on the bench, and as a judge be has won the highest admiration and given the fullest satisfaction. He was learned in the law; and he brought to bear upon the legal entanglements upon which he had to pronounce a ripeness of judgment and experience which made appeal seldom necessary. He was, too, singularly pure in his personal relations, elevated in his aspirations, and dignified in his associations. His record will remain, memorial of him, though he has forever passed from the scene of ac-

Sir M. C. Cameron was born at Dundas Oct. 2, 1822. In 1838 he entered Upper Canada college, where he remained till 1840, when his college career was cut short by a lamentable accident. While shooting on the island with two companions one of them accidently shot him in the ankle, shattering the joint. He quit college, entered the law office of Gamble & Boulton, Toronto, was admitted as an attorney and solicitor in Trinity term, 1848, and called to the bar in Hilary term, 1849. He was an extraordinarily hard worker, and he was ever noted for the unremitting attention which he gave to his work.

In 1861 he was elected to represent North Ontario in the assembly; in 1864, for North Ontario. He sat in the assembly until confederation. Then he was elected to represent East Toronto in the assembly, became a member of the Sandfield Macdonald coalition administration, was provincial secretary and registrar from July, 1867, to July 25, 1871, when he became commissioner of crown lands. He was always a staunch conservative.

Sir Matthew was appointed a Q.C. in 1863, a puisne judge of the court of queen's bench in 1878, and chief justice of the common pleas division in 1884 Two months ago he received the honour of knighthood. The deceased was married in 1851 and leaves six children.

Crowding the Turks Pretty Close-The Last Appeal to England.

London, June 27.-The Egyptian negotiations have reached an acute stage. France threatens to break off diplomatic relations with the port and resume her claims regarding the protection of the oriental holy places if the convention be ratified, while Russia demands recompense in the direction of Erzeroum. The porte then asks England whether, in the event of the ratification of the convention, Turkey can rely upon the fulfillment of the convention relating to Cypress.
