A MOST NATURAL AND EASY MODE OF SWIMMING.

Interesting Incidents in the Life of the Philanthropist, Stephen Girard-Derivation of Words Relating to Money That Are Both Instructive and Entertaining.

As Philadelphia is where an elaborate celebration of the anniversary of the birthday of the philanthropist, Stephen Girard, is to be held this year, it may be well to acquaint our younger readers with a ww of the many incidents of this good man's notable life.

Stephen Girard was born in Bordeaux, France, about the year 1750. He came to Philadelphia for the first time in 1769, and it is told that he was obliged to borrow $5 to bring him into that city. He died in December, 1831, an old man, almost 82 years of age. During his long life he advanced step by step upward, beginning at the early age of 17 as a cabin boy in a ship, then a cook, and from thence onward to steward, mate and captain, until he became a very successful mariner and merchant. Having no children of his own, Mr. Girard left at his death the immense fortune of nearly $8,000,000 for the founding and maintenance of a college for boys, now known the country over as "Girard college."

THE PHILANTHROPIST'S GIG.

In the midst of his prosperity it is told that Mr. Girard neverdost his fondness for young people and canary birds, all of whom he liked well, but best of all he liked his farm down in "the Neck." A writer in Domestic Monthly tells how every day in his yellow gig Mr. Girard drove down there, and then took off his coat and went to work. Rich though he was, he did not disdain manual labor, but found pleasure in the recreation, as well as profit from his farm.

Some idea may be gained perhaps of the extent of good accomplished by Mr. Girard's princely present to the city of Philadelphia when it is known that 1,100 boys attended Girard college last year.

Words Relating to Money.

The derivations of words relating to money and commerce are both interesting and in structive. The word money is from moneta, because in Rome coins were first regularly struck in the temple of Juno Moneta, which again was derived from monere, to warn, because it was built on the spot where Manlius heard the Gauls approaching to the attack of the city. "Coin" is probably from the Latin cuneus, a die or stamp.

Many coins are merely so called from their weight, as for instance the English pound, the French livre, Italian lira; others from the metal, as the rupee from the Sanskrit rupya, silver; others from the head of the state, as the sovereign, crown; others from the proper name of the monarch, such as the Louis d'or, or the Napoleon. The dollar or thaler is short for the Joachimsthaler, or money of the Joachims valley, in Bohemia, where these coins were first struck in the Sixteenth century. Guineas were first called after the country from which the gold was obtained, and the franc is an abbreviation of the inscription Francorum Rex. The sou is from the Latin solidus. The word shilling appears to be derived from a root signifying to divide; and in several cases the name indicates the fraction of some larger coin, as the denarius, half-penny, farthing, cent and mill. The pound was originally not a coin, but a weight, and comes from the Latin pondus. The British pound originally was a pound of silver, which was divided into 240 pennies. The origin of the word penny is unknown. Some have derived it from pendo, to weigh; but this does not seem very satisfactory. The word "sterling" is said to go back to the time of the Conquest, but the derivation has been much disputed.

Swimming Like a Dog.

This is, after all, the most natural method of swimming, and, as such, is followed by the unhappy kittens and puppies condemned by relentless fate to death by drowning.

ONE WAY OF SWIMMING.

The swimmer who wishes to imitate these canine evolutions must keep his hands in front of his chest, as shown in the cut, and strike out with each hand and foot alternately, the right hand with the left foct, and vice versa. The hands strike downwards towards the chest, the palms depressed, and a little hollowed. The legs strike out as usual, except that the motion is alternate, first one leg being used and then the other. Remember always to inhale the air when the head is highest out of water.

Pluck and Luck.

Pluck and luck are wonderfully different affairs, says Youth. Luck is a delusion. We cannot learn by luck; we cannot acquire anything worth knowing by it; it is all imagination. Pluck is a quality of character well worth possessing.

The boy or girl who waits on luck for success will wait long. On the other hand, all who have pluck will either succeed or make a dignified and excusable failure. It is not pleasant to fail of success in anything that we attempt, but better far something good attempted, even if it be not schieved, than the idle, aimless waiting for a shower of good fortune that may never fall. Life is not a lottery wheel dispensing favors without any regard to the deserts of the winners. Life's best prizes are worked for, struggled for, toiled for and all the sweeter when secured by reason of the toil and struggle that has won them. Easy won, little worth, might well be a proverb. We do not generally appreciate what it has cost us nothing to secure. Let us not be afraid of effort and push, but cheerfully put our shoulders well to our load in life. Having set some good aim before us, let us work with pluck and perseverance, with push and patience, for the object we desire. We shall be the better for the effort, even if the coveted prize be not grasped, and in all things the old couplet is worthy of recomenow or other the idea has gained ground that the students at, the average American college pay more attention to athletic sports, including eigarette smoking. than is really good for them. It is also alleged that the expense is very heavy, inasmuch as it costs as much to be a Congressman as it does to be a student at Harvard College students are very extravagant in everything except attendance at prayers. It is not very often that common sense is taught at universities, but we infer that such is the case at a Georgia college which is named Polecat College.

There are some colleges that would never be heard of if it were not for base ball clubs. The reason the Harvard men had it laid on them so thick last year was because the latter foolishly devoted some of their time to study, thus neglecting their regular business. What does a young man go to college for except to play base ball?

A college is very often a place where a young man, if he studies hard, can, in two years, learn as much Latin as he can forget in six months after he goes to work for a living. It is a solemn and instructive fact that one of the best Latin and Greek scholars in Athens, Ga., is sodding grass at seventy-five cents a day. - He intended to become a great lawyer, or an influential journalist, but he found out that he could make more money at his present employment.

To succeed in this world a college education is not at all requisite. There is a county treasurer in Texas who can neither read nor write, and yet he has put $15,000 where nobody but himself can find it.

A gentleman who has been there says that the festive college youth spends most of his time courting the girls, and doctoring up his monthly statements to his father. He will study between times, provided smoking eigarettes, playing base ball, football tennis and poker, taking hops and banquets, and getting full will leave any time.

Most of the colleges devote a great deal of time to studying the dead languages. On this subject the editor of the Lowell Times, who is posted, says: "We are willing that those dead and dangerous languages should go, provided the study of ballet dancing is made compulsory." -S.flings.

But woe and misery.

We parted, 'twas the story old: I had a lack of dimes. And thinking to climb Fortune's mount, I fied to mountain climes.

We met again in after years, And fortune seemed to say: "Death hasn't laid away your maid, Though you have made your lay."

We met, old memories came back; I asked her to be mine-She would, but she a husband had, And 'little piedges' nine.

And I, concluding life to be A blank-a cheeress thing; Now that my only hope was gone, Got married in the Spring. -Exchange.

Mrs. Livermore personally raised most of the handsome fund which was presented to Mrs. J. Ellen Foster for her trip abroad.

The end of a busy and successful season finds Mrs. Langtry looking pale and tired. She has had her hair cut like a boy's, and the style is not becoming, say her admirers.

Miss Elizabeth Garrett, sister of the President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, is worth about $18,000,000, and is a very bright and business-like woman. Miss Catherine Heathorne, known as "the maid of Kent," has just celebrated her 103d birthday. The maid of Kent seems to be made of iron. - Loston Trans-Miss Cleveland will assume charge of the province of history in Miss Reed's New York school. Her contract enjoins upon her not to do literary work of any kind for outside parties. It is one of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's whims to wear nothing but white indoors. Usually it is some sort of a white satin Kate Greenaway robe, high-necked and long-sleeved in the morning, short sleeves and square neck at night. People who wonder that so small an organization as the Boston Ideal Opera Company could raise so big a row, forget that several of the members of the company have had long experience as singers in church choirs .- Journal of Education.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter, which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half dotheir work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.
