The Potentate Only Sixteen Years Old-How the Bride is selected For Him -Juposing Ceremonies And Magnificent Displays - The Bridal Procession Will be a Long One.

New York Mail and Express. The Emperor of China is to marry. He was born Aug. 15, 1871. This would make him 16 years old, but as he has the privilege of adding two years to his age whenever he see fit he is now considered to have reached his 18th year, and fully competent to enter occasion will cost at least $5,000,000. Marriage customs in China are peculiar. once since 1674 has marriage taken place in imperial palace when the imperial bride-groom was a minor. This was on Oct. 16, 1872, when the Emperor Tungchi, aged 17, was married to Aluteh, a Manchu lady.

into the married state. A wife has been selected for him and the festivities of the

The emperor does not see his bride until the wedding ceremony. She is selected for him by the empress dowager. She must be a Manchu and belong to the Eight Banners, a division of the military population. A year previous to the wedding orders are issued to this class that every girl of a specified age shall be sent to the imperial palace. These girls, hundred in number, are put through a thorough course of examination, ten at a time, by the empresses dowager. Fifty are first selected, and the remainder allowed to go. After these fifty have been retained at the palace for some time, they are in turn weeded out until only ten remain. This process is repeated after a time until finally only the bride-elect is left. She is then placed in an elegant bridal house in Peking, where she remains preparing herself for the wedding until it takes place.

About a week before the wedding a route is selected through the streets of Peking from the bride's house to the imperial palace. A path is laid out and sprinkled with new sand to make it look yellow, the imperial color. Over this route the presents of the brides are taken to the apartments she will occupy in the palace. Only, once a day are the presents conveyed to the palace. This is in the morning, and a procession accompanies them. For Tungchi's bride, in 1872, these processions were continued for fully a week before the ceremony, and the presents included large and elegant cabinets, elaborately carved chairs, and other articles of furniture made of the finest kind, of wood, dishes, vases, goblets, and gold and silver articles in profusion. The larger gifts are carried by men whose dresses are of red cloth with white spots. The smaller articles are carried upon yellow tables, to which they are fastened. Along this route, for days preceding the ceremony, the body of men who are to carry the bridal chair of the empress are continually drilling.

A number of days before the ceremony the bride's house is most elaborately decorated. On the gate is fastened rich silk in red, blue, yellow, and green, braided and fringed, together with bunches of ailk. On the pedestal of each post in front of the house there is painted in red the word "Shih," which means happiness. This word, in fact, is painted in bright red on everything connected with the wedding that it is possible to put it on.

Two days before the wedding, that is on the day before the emperor sends his bride her phœnix robes and diadem, he orders three princes to offer sacrifice and burn incense on the alter to heaven. Another prince makes eacrifice on the altar to earth, and still another repeats the ceremony on the shrine of the imperial ancestors in their special temple. These ceremonies are for the purpose of announcing the marriage to those whom the sacrifices are addressed. The day before the wedding the emperor sends to his bride a tablet of gold, the sceptre and seal. The tablet is called the permission, because it denotes that the empress dowager and empress-mother allow the emperor to marry. When it is taken to the bride's palace and is about to be read a master of ceremonies exclaims : "Listen to the will of heaven !" Tablet, scepter and seal are taken to the bride in a temple-like chair called the dragon car.

Everything is now in readiness for the great ceremony, with but one exception. This is the barricading of the entrances of every street and lane opening on the line of march, so that the eyes of foreigners or other curious persons shall not witness the procession or any part of it, or get the smallest possible glimpse of the bride.

The bridal procession starts from the bride's house shortly after midnight, and the wedding ceremony must be over before 3 a.m. or good luck will not attend the nuptials. The night, too, must be one of a full moon. All this is arranged by a board known as the "Inquiring into Heaven Officials," who are the royal astrologers

At midnight the bride is escorted to the dragon car. She is completely muffled from sight, and the car is closed on all sides. Over the car is held the imperial umbrella, and close beside the body of men carrying the bride walks a figure carrying a burning joss stick. Immediately in front are borne the golden tablet, the sceptre and seal. Heading the procession are the Mongol princes and chiefs in extra grand costume, on pure white korses covered with gold and yellow trappings. Next come persons bearing banners, tall triple umbrellas and fans, embroidered on which are dragons and phoenixes. Following there are 200 lanternbearers, the bridal car and attendants.

When the bride reaches the central court a herald makes a proclamation : "The orders of his sacred majesty, the emperor, are fulfilled." The emperor then appears and receives the bride. In each of the bride's hands are placed uncoined pieces of gold and silver and her arms are crossed on her breast. Then she is made to support a vase containing wheat, maze, rice, emeralds, sapphires, rubies and other articles to symbolize all that the earth produces. Then she steps from the car upon a sma'l golden saddle, and in this manner enters the palace as its chosen empress. The wedding ceremonies and festivities continue for five days. Immediately upon the bride's arrival she and the emperor drink a cup of wine together, exchanging cups while drinking. In sitting down for the first time together each tries to sit on the other's robes, the omen being that the one who is successful in this has the upper hand through life. After the wine-drinking they together worship earth and heaven and their ancestors. Then they join the woolding feast with their relatives. On the morning following the ceremony of arranging the bride's hair in the manner in which it is worn by married women takes place. On the third day the bride and groom appear in most gorgeous costumes, which are called the dragon and phonix robes. These are literally covered with pearls and all kinds of precious stones, and those worn by the young Emperor Tungehi and his bride cost $900,000. On this day the emperor holds court, receiving the princes and high officials and their congratulations. Elaborate music is played by the imperial band throughout the ceremonies.

The annual income of the young emperor is variously estimated at from $50,000,000 to 70,000,000.

The Base Ball Gossip-The Standing of the Leagues-General Notes.

Larry Corcoran, the once famous pitcher, is now a total wreck. Whiskey did it. Chic Hofford, of the Uticas, has signed with Jersey City. Carroll will sign with Cleveland.

Manager Dishler, of the defunct Uticas, says te lost $3,000 this season in trying to run the champions.

The Kingstons and Park Nine play at Wolfe Island on Friday, July 29th, for a prize of $75. The Elks base ball club did not go to Pic ton to-day, owing to the unsettled state of the weather. The manager of the Newarks is of the opinion that the Newarks will not lead the league at the end of the present trip. It is reported that Buffalo and Milwaukee have fyled applications for the first vacancy in the American association.

Over forty international games have been won by a run, which serves to show that the clubs are pretty well matched.

The Torontos have the talked-of third baseman. His name is Rickley, and he hails from Williamsport, Pa., for which club he has been playing third in the Pennsylvania state league.

Barnfather's place in the Kingstons hes been temporarily filled by Ambach, of the Watertown Grays. Trainor has also been prectising with Young and is developing a good grip on the pitcher's lightning twirls.

The Ottawas will be strengthened by two new players, with which they meet the Kingstons. Harry Murphy, who has held the third bag for the past four years, is playing in his usual good style, and expects to be the host in the coming game for the championship of Eastern Canada.

Flemming put a man out near second base in the Channel Grove match, having held the ball to deceive him, but a spectator threw a second ball near the catcher to divert the umpire's attention at a critical moment, and he did not see the play. -Belleville Ontario.

The following constitute the Kingston team that plays in Ottawa to-morrow : Pomfret, short stop; Eilbeck, right field; Allen, second base; Young, pitcher; Ambach, catcher; Johnson, centre field; Trainor, third base; Jamieson, first base; McMillan, left field. The club left at noon to day going via K. & P. RR. and C.P.R.

A Circuit is Suggested. Before leaving Kingston yesterday Mr. Jenkins, manager of the Bellevilles, told a citizen that he purposed writing to Kingston and suggesting the formation of a circuit to embrace the two Kingston clubs and that of Belleville. He said he thought it would be a popular move, and that the proposition had only to be laid before the Kingston clubs to be accepted by them. The idea is to play two games in each city at regular periods so as to keep the several clubs in practice and make base ball the attraction it ought to be. The WHIG hopes the proposition will be acted upon, and that as soon as possible. The local clubs cannot meet on their terms and give the people the games they desire to see ; perhaps they will meet as members of the circuit suggested by Mr.

THE MOUTHPIECE OF BRITISH PAR-LIAMENT TAKES A DROP.

Mr. Parnell Better Satisfied With the Modified Land Bill-But the Welfare of the Tenants Not Yet Sufficiently Wel Protected-The Tanner Case And What Came of It.

London, July 22.—On motion to commit the Land bill in the house Mr. R. B. Haldane, liberal, after a short discussion, withdrew his motion asking that provision be made to reduce family charges on Irish land, the government promising an inquiry into the subject.

Mr. Illingworth, member for West Brad-ford, a liberal, moved to adjournment of the debate. He appealed to the govern-ment to make a distinct and definite statement regarding the proposed modifications of the bill.

Mr. Smith said that the motion to adjourn itself prevented a statement of the main changes which Mr. Balfour would have otherwise made. The government would be prepared to put the amendment on the paper to-morrow, and to proceed with the bill on Monday. If the opposition intended to delay or frustrate the passage of the bill on them would rest the responsibility.

Mr. Balfour said the government would make a statement of the proposed amendment. Messrs. O'Connor and Labouchere having spoken Mr. Illingworth withdrew his motion, and Mr. Balfour, rising amid cheers from the opposition, said that the only important amendments the government proposed related to what had been called the "backdoor" given to landlords for eviction, and the question of the abatement of rent. With regard to the first amendment it had been framed to prevent a creditor from proceeding, not against the ordinary assets of a debtor, but against the tenant's right. (Cheers.) With regard to the second Mr. Balfour said the government was unable to accept any such proposal as Mr. Morley's amendment, which seemed to be meant to throw all judicial leases into the melting pot and bring out brand new ones revised on the present scale of prices. The government adhered to the idea that the judicial rents ought not to be revised, but recognizing the fact that the house had undertaken to manage land contracts in Ireland and make the landlords good by act of parliament, and recognizing, also, the revolution in prices, they proposed to do what the English laudlords would do in a similar case—they would adopt in a rough way the Cowper commission plan on a sliding scale, which would produce the necessary abatements for the next three years, until the Purchase act was in force. It was consequently proposed that the land court be instructed to devise a scale of remission based solely on the varying prices in different districts. (Cheers.)

Mr. Parnell admitted that the bill, as altered, would do much towards relieving the Irish tenants, and he therefore heartily welcomed it, but he hoped the government would go a step further and endeavor to mitigate the hardships resulting from their delay in dealing with the question. He urged that the judicial decisions of the commissions should affect the present year's

After further remarks by Messrs. Goschen, Dillon and Russell the house then entered into committee pro for ma.

The Long Incident Again. LONDON, July 21. -Dr. Tanner, home

ruler, appeared before the house of commons this afternoon to explain the charge made by Mr. Long, conservative, that the doctor had, in the lobby, and in the presence of several members, called Mr. Long a "d-d-d snob." Dr. Tanner regretted the trouble the house had been put to about the matter. Mr. Long's manner and language, when he approached him (Tanner) in the lobby, were part of an arrangement to annoy him. Mr. Long twice importuned him, and said in reference to his exclusion from the division, (a matter over which he was still very sensitive,) "That was a nice sell you got." Here Dr. Tanner said he was sorry for replying to Mr. Long as he did and withdrew the indecorous expressions. Mr. Long denied Dr. Tanner's statements, worth Bond and James Bigwood, conservatives, confirmed his statement. Mr. Patrick O'Hea, home rule member for West Donegal, said he also was present, and that he heard Mr. Long say "That was a nice sell you got." Mr. O'Hea added that Dr. Tanner was jeered at by Mr. Long and declaring that he did not make use of the alleged words about a sell. George Hawkes-his comrades.

W. H. Smith, the government leader, said he regretted that he was unable to accept Sir Julian Goldsmid's advice. If a month's suspension was too long the term of suspension would be shortened.

After Mr. Smith had spoken Mr. Gladstone arose. He contended that Dr. Tanner's apology should suffice. Mr. Smith had introduced an ill-advised element into the discussion by suggesting that Dr. Tanner imputed a falsehood to Mr. Long. Did not Mr. Long, in like manner, impute a falsehood to Mr. Tanner ? Was an imputation upon an Irish member one thing and an imputation upon an English member an-
