What I Live For.

he for those who love me. Whose hearts are kind and true: For the Heaven that smiles above me, And awaits my spirit too; For human ties that bind me : For the task that God assigned me For the bright hopes left behind me, And the good that I can do.

I live to learn their story Who suffered for my sake, To emulate their glory, And to follow in their wake; ds, patriots, martyrs, sages, The heroes of all ages, Whose deeds crowd History's pages, And Time's great volume make.

Hive to hold communion With all that is divine; To tell there is a union Twixt Nature's heart and mine ; To profit by affliction, Reap truths from fields of fiction, Grow wiser from conviction, And fulfil each grand design.

live to hail that season, By gifted minds foretold, When man shall rule by reason, And not alone by gold When man to man united. And every wrong thing righted, The whole world shall be lighted As Eden was of old.

Hive for those who love me, For those who know me true; For the Heaven that smiles above me, And awaits my spirit too; For the cause that lacks assistance; For the wrong that needs resistance; For the future in the distance; And the good that I can do.

to the Central American question, proceeds :-Such Pogether with the enlistment business, are the principal topics respecting which a quarrel may eventually arise between England and the United States. Reserving our opinion apon the English claim to the Bay Islands, we would say, with reference to our neighbors' demands and threats regarding other matters-If the United States are so eager for war, let them have as much of it as they will.

The conquest of Canada, so confidently antiipated by the N. Y. Tribune, our neighbors may ad as impracticable at the present day as in 812-13. Canada will do a little to defend herelf from so inglorious a fate; and, with her asistance, and our other European allies, together with the elp of the millions of the colored population of the Southern States, Great Britain may possibly, teach our neighbors a lesson, if they will break the peace, that they will not soon forget.

But may wiser councils prevail! Who is there of us that has not on the other side of the lines many and most valued friends. May the Gop of peace recencile our differences, and inspire us with abhorrence of a sword wherewith brother. must make brother bleed.
