bu iness all over the country is broken. The intelligence which this mail conveys to you is condensed in these few words .-A desultory and comparatively feeble coposition is all that is likely to be encountered in our progress towards the complete pacification of the country.

TRIAL OF THE KING OF DELHI. The tried of the ex King of Delhi bad been fixed for the 9th of January, but the prisoner being indisposed, it was postsioned until the 13th. The charges preferred against him by the government prosecutor, Major Harriott, of the Judge Advocate General's department, are for encourageing mutiny and rebeliion against the state, whilst a pensioner of the British government in India; for having declared himself sovereign of India. And the last charge is that he did f-loniously cause and become accessory to the murder of fortynine persons, chiefly women and children, of European and mixed European decent, and did, moreover, encourage and abet the prisoner to death, but the general sup- on heads that had been bald for years.

CALCUTTA. January, 9. (Calcutta Correspondence of the London Times ) A Gazette Extraordinary, published on Wednesday last, informed the people of Calcutta of the arrangements which government had ordered for the reception of the illustrious heroines and their children, who, after undergoing unprecedented hardships during a seige of four months, have finally been relieved by Sir Colin Campbell, and sent down the ramparts of Fort William announced that the Madras was passing Acheepore, and almost everybody that had horse or carriage rode down to t'rincep's Ghat, where it was intimated the passengers would land. The Madras, having, however, a heavy upthe side in her favor, but slow progress; and as it soon became evident that she could not come up ere the night set in, a telegraphic message was despatched to the commander of the steamer to anchor below Garden reach, and to come up next morning. At six o'clock on Saturday morning a crowd of people asfrom the men-of-war in the river. All vesout with all their flags, and presented a very imposing sight. Along the steps from the Ghat down to the water's edge was formed a sort of gangway, guarded by policemen, and along the whole red carpeting was laid out, such as it is customary to use on state occasions. At last the Madras arrived off meantime looking on in stern silence, as if Perfumery. afraid lest even now some accident might happen to those whose eacape from the hands of a barbarous and blood thirsty enemy was decreed by a merciful Providence. The whole scene partook of a solemnity rarely to the hospitable City of Palaces. Mr. Beadon, the Secretary of the Home Department on behalf of government; the Hon. - Tai bot. Private Secretary to the Governor General, on behalf of Lord Canning; and Dr. Leckie, as secretary to the Relief Committee, went down to the water's edge to receive the ladies. A sudden rush towards the river, a thronging towards the gangway, and a slight whisper of voices, indicated that the landing had begun. Cheers were given at-first, but only alowly responded to, people evidently being too much occupied with their own reflections to think of cheering; but as the ladies and children proceeded up, people duffed their hats almost mechanically, silenty looking on as the heromes passed on .--At this moment another ship in the harbor fired a salute, but it did not sound joyiully; it appeared rather like minute gune in remem-

Alas! they are no more; but their names | men .. will live forever in the heart of every true Briton. And, though there is no mounment te mark the place where they sleep the everlasting sleep, their blood has marked in indelible ink in the bosom of their surviving brethren the word 'tetribution." The sofemn procession thus passed on, and was handed into carriages which conveyed them to their temporary home. Home, did we say? It sounds almost tike mockery to call the solitary room of the widow and her orphan by that name. Though the government Gazette intlinated that the Governor General's state carriages and barges would be in attendance. by some oversight none of them came up the Ghat, and we confess that in our hembie ppinion the presence of Lord and Lady Canming on such an occasion would have been as desirable as gratifying to all.
