The Daily Telegraph

Yesterday forenoon, a fire occurred in Osborne Street back of the South Church, in the large frame house occupied by Mrs Henry, which was totally destroyed in a very short time. The whole Five Bridges were in early attendance.

ANOTHER FIRE.

Yesterday forenoon, a fire occurred in the Archibald Constable the eminent Edinburgh Publisher and friend of the Illustrious Sir Walter Scott.

This fact alone should entitle the gallant Mayor to the respectful notice of Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren at large. And who was this Right Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren? Then who was he? Why, he was the Mayor of the Ancient City of Dyce. He a descendant would be held in the highest estimation in the Archibald Constable of Edinburgh and Parent of the Mackenzie Angus of Wallace Lyon Sheridan Hogan of Dyce. He a descendant of our matrimonial