TO ADVERTISERS.

In no single case will any alteration of the advertising bill be allowed, unless previously arranged.

☞ THE COUNTY COUNCIL.—This Municipal Body met on Saturday, having finished all the business before it. This consisted in passing the Rye Law for the payment of the Justices, settling all disputed matters about the Assessment, and arranging for the leasing of the Toll Gates on the Macadamized Road for the year 1835. The Council meets for the last time on the 2nd Thursday in January, to settle up the business of the past year.

☞ A TAILOR WITHOUT CABBAGE.—The "Three Tailors of Canada," the Globe, the Examiner and the North American, have at length settled the difficult affair of Cabinet Making, wherein the two latter rogues reporters, while the former only hangs his lip like a quarrelsome Bull. Besides the Executive and North American, hence the lots of Cabbage that will fall to their particular share; whereas the Globe having no property in the future, can only grub over the cabbage already cooked.

☞ On Sunday night last, about seven o'clock, the Barn belonging to Mr. William Walker, of Sherrington, was set on fire by some evil disposed person or persons, and together with its contents, the whole crop of 1834 was burnt to the ground.

☞ THE MAYOR OF MIRAMICHI.—The able host a contract on the lotus road, was paying off his men, when a dispute took place between a man named Clifford, from the Queen's Bush, and some of the laboring men. Mr. K. proceeded to put them out, and was assisted by a tailoress by the name of Kenny. A fight took place, and Kenny was afterwards found stabbed. An inquest was held on the body yesterday. We have not heard the verdict. Clifford and two others are in custody.

BOSTON WIT.

The following jeu d'esprit, clipped from a contemporary, is said to be an extract from the Boston Daily Times:—

HIGHLY IMPORTANT INTELLIGENCE FROM MONTREAL—MUNIFICENT TESTIMONIALS FROM THE CANADIANS—GREAT MEETING AT MONKLANDS—A ROW, A FIGHT, AND A GENERAL "BUST UP."

BY TELEGRAPH—EXCLUSIVE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7—10 P. M.

At a meeting of the returned citizens of Canada, held this evening at Monklands, Lord Klein was called to the chair, and Lord Mark Kerr and Hon. George Wallgreen appointed Secretaries. A. Mac Ariel, Esq., officiated as Janitor.

His Lordship, the Chairman, stated that the object of the meeting was to devise some mode of evincing the sentiments of Canadians in regard to the late railway and steam-ship celebration in Boston, and to offer some complimental testimonials in return for the courteous hospitalities extended by the city government of Boston to their Canadian visitors. (Hear, hear.) His Lordship then proceeded to say that the British Government had long regarded with a contemptuous eye the progress of the City of Boston in all the elementary principles of the age. (Applause.) He stated that for himself he had understood the Bostonians could not discover the difference between a porter-house steak and a Digby herring. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) But, my lords, said he and the most of this noble assemblage, have just obtained ample proof of the incorrectness of this supposition. (Cheers.) Boston, my lords, is a city of three mountains—two have been cut away to fill up what they call the "salt mash," and the other still remains a Beacon light to the aristocracy of all climes. ("Hear, hear.") and three rousing cheers for the "ladies of Beacon street!") For myself, gentlemen, words cannot express my sense of the obligations rendered to me personally, and I intend to forward some testimonial to His Grace the Duke of Soft Soap, and High priest of Perfumery, the principal stockholder of the fete, that will, I trust, prove acceptable to him and honorable to my station. (Deafening applause.) The chair is now ready to hear what the gentlemen present have to propose.

Lieut. Col. Hare of her Majesty's Double X Regiment, said, especial thanks were due to Deacon Grant for his bountiful supply of champagne and cognac, furnished on the occasion (Good, good, and laughter.) He proposed that a demijohn of prime old London dock be forwarded to the honorable Deacon immediately. (Agreed to.)

Hon. Col. Bruce coincided with the views of the Chairman respecting the conduct of His Grace the Duke of Soft Soap, and hoped that he might be allowed to contribute his mite in connecting a mighty and suitable testimonial. (Great applause.) Her Majesty's subject, said the Hon. Col, admired the good taste and superior judgement of this essence of nobility, and, unanimously speaking, they were eager to give him an unmistakable evidence of their sentiments. (Tremendous applause and cheering, which lasted several minutes.) He proposed to add a bottle of carefully prepared pondrette to any testimonial his Lordship, the Chairman, might think proper to forward (Cheers and boisterous laughter, in which his Lordship the Chairman abcessed, joined heartily.)

Hon. Mr. Hincks, Inspector General of Canada, continued to the idea, and said that he felt it his duty to contribute a somewhat similar testimonial. He stated what it was, and cheerily greeted views of lunches; but delicacy forbids any precise mention of its character.

Sir Allan McNab said he was particularly indebted to Marshal Turkey, and Captain Barry of the night watch, for he had been more than once troubled with bricks during his stay in Boston but he would forego his services in their behalf in order to meet the wishes of the meeting, which seemed inclined to shower its favors exclusively upon his Grace the Duke. He begged to be allowed to add to the testimonial one bad American accent.—(Loud applause, and screams of laughter.)

His Honor John G. Bowes, Mayor of Toronto, said he did not think the person the meeting intended to honor would duly appreciate their efforts. Those citizens of Canada who were "fortunate enough," to be present at the Jubilee, particularly the Mayor and Council of Kingston.

Mayor of Kingston—(Interruption.)—My lord! my lord! I cannot remain silent and listen to this fulsome adulation of a conceited coxcomb and ill bred, bad bred dunce. (Sensation.) I beg the gentleman's pardon for the interruption, but what I say I say boldly, as a high blooded British subject should. (Symptoms of a row, among and over the left.)—Sir, I pronounce the whole Jubilee a humbug, a hum, gentlemen—a hum now, by ——! (Turbulence increasing, the noble chairman endeavors in vain to preserve order.) I didn't want their bad bad liquor—we men of Kingston can get better any hour in the day, and day in the week, gentlemen—do you hear me chief? (Loud cries of "Order"—"order."—"shut him"—"muzzle him," McNab—d—n him") I'm responsible for what I say here or elsewhere—elsewhere or here—d'ye understand that? ("Hear," "hear.") And I now say that the Boston City Government is composed of a set of unmitigated, unmitigated rascals—I use the word with a full sense of its meaning, gentlemen. (Loud shouts of "Off on" from the pit.) I need only refer to that impartial print the British Whig, for the truth of what I say.

The Chairman—Has the gentleman a copy of the paper with him?

Mayor of Kingston—May it please your Lordship I have.

Voices, in every direction—"Read"—"read."

His honor, William Kell-, Mayor of Cobourg—I solemnly protest against the reading of the article referred to.

Mayor of Kingston—Protest and be ——! These Boston officials shall be shown up—shown up, by the cross of St George! in puris naturalibus. Every rag shall be stripped from their uncultivated backs, and the lash applied unmercifully. (Cries of "don't be rash"—"Keep your breath to cool your punch," &c.) Now, gentlemen, I will proceed to read, and any man that disputes the statement, I tell him beforehand that he lies. (Cries of "good"—"good"—"order."—"silence.")

The Mayor of Kingston then unfolded a respectable looking sheet and read as follows. Your readers the Boston Daily Times can judge whether the statements are true or false—

The Mayor and Corporation of Kingston did not dine with the President of the United States, like other Mayors and Corporations; certain it is, that their expenses were not paid by the Boston Authorities like the expenses of other Mayors and other Corporations; certain it is, that the Mayor and Corporation of Kingston walked during the Grand Procession, while other Mayors and other Corporations, even those of small places like Cobourg and Belleville, rode in coaches; certain it is, that while the mess of Beef and Pudding served out to the Mayor and Corporation of Kingston was sneeringly described in the Boston papers, the Mayor and Corporation of Kingston were feasting on the delicacies of the season, and washing down the delicacies with the choicest wines; certain it is, that while the Mayor and Corporation of Kingston were entertained at the Grand Dinner, no mention was made of Kingston at all; and certain it is, that all this demands explanation from somebody."

A murmur of approbation followed the reading of this; but the speaker desired to be heard a little further, and proceeded to read from the same paper:—

"Nothing remains for me (the Mayor) to add but some slight token of thankfulness for the kind treatment we Canadians of Kingston and Toronto received at the hands of Mr Lewis Rice, the proprietor of that most excellent hotel, the American House. He has done everything in his power to accomodate us and oblige us; instead of overcharging us, as the people of the Revere House overcharged the Kingston party, put extortions, and making us pay for more days than we stayed, he actually took less than his exact due, and one dollar and a half a day, instead of two dollars, or more, the rate at the Revere House."

The Mayor of Kingston said he would read no further; but would rest his case upon the calm deliberate decision of the meeting.

Sir Harold Rosemary, a scion of a noble English house, rose under considerable agitation, and said—I declare, this is the most unfortunate business that ever happened. The Revere House the resort of all the high-toriality. No politicians are wanted there. Mr Thevers the celebrated gourmand; being delineated from the noble house of Malmsbury, one of the earliest American monarchs. ("Bah! bah!") Gentlemen may cry "bah!" for it the natural exclamation of all these.

Here there was a terrible storm of hisses, shouts and dismal outcries. Sir Allan McNab was on the point of smashing the countenance of the imprudent speaker, but was restrained by the proprietor of Monklands, who is very much of a gentleman, by the way. A noisy and acrimonious discussion ensued between Sir Mark Kerr, Hon. Mr. Melody, His Honor W. H. Poulton, Mayor of Bellerville, (who wanted to "lick" the Mayor of Kingston outright), and several others—but the din was finally ended by the appearance of seventeen policemen, who made an onslaught on the entire crowd, captured about a dozen of the most turbulent, and the meeting broke up—the noble chairman making his escape through the kitchen in the disguise of the chef de cuisine.

P. S.—Your correspondent is requested to state, on high authority, that the testimonials last voted for His Grace the Duke of Soft Soap, will be forwarded per Central Railroad, as soon as the stock of that company is sufficiently high to warrant its transmission.

Her Majesty, it appears, has resumed the habit of attending the Scotch Kirk on Sundays, during her residence at Balmoral; and the circumstance has again been made the subject of painful remark by conscientious Church folk, who are alive to the inconsistency of a practice in the supreme Governor of a branch of the Catholic Church, the professions with which Scotch Presbyterianism ridicules and repudiates. But in this occasion one of her Majesty's domestic Chaplains has gone down to Balmoral, though for what purpose it is difficult to conceive, since it was understood that none of the ordinances of his own church would be tolerated there. The hope is beginning to be entertained, however, that the error of such a course will gradually develope itself; and that by—and-by her Majesty will see the necessity of having a chapel of her own at her Highland home, so as to avoid any such unhappy compromise as is now diplomatically said to exist.—Oxford Herald.

The Coburg Reporter came out on the 7th and 8th inst., and in spite of some slight mishaps, appears to have afforded general satisfaction. On the first day, the Examiner got final of the Press immediately after starting, carrying away a large portion of the materials of the latter, and throwing life on the broad lake, by which two of the crew were precipitated into the water. Sub-sequently, the Reporter started a plank, and instantly filled; but the crew were saved by the Examiner. On the second day, the Knight of Kars carried away her mast by the board—the only accident that appears to have occurred during the day. The three races for which prizes were awarded, were won respectively by the Lark the Little Briton, and the Green Wave.—Star.

WM. WELLER, Esq. has issued an address to the Electors of Northumberland, announcing his intention of being a candidate for that County. In addition to his former politics of "wheat a dollar a bushel, and a good road to every man's door," he will advocate "free constitutional reform principles" and "responsible government, in the broadest sense of the word, as understood by the people."

CHINA.—A dread ful conflagration had taken place among the Chinese shipping in the River Kiang, on the 1st January. The number of craft destroyed is estimated by some at 30,000; and more than 70,000 dead bodies have been taken from the river. The details are horrible beyond description.

BRAGGART OF PRUSSIA.—A correspondent gives the following in large type:—"We understand that an action for breach of promise of marriage is to be brought forthwith against the Duke of Wellington."—John O'Groat Journal.

BLOOMERISM IN PICCADILLY.—On Friday forenoon a further attempt was made in Piccadilly to familiarize the inhabitants of London with the appearance of the new female costume lately introduced in America. Two young ladies, with two companions who might have been their mothers, alighted from a cab, in the peculiar dress so often described of late, and, proceeding towards the entrance to the Green Park, distributed in their way handbills, containing a spirited appeal to the women of England to throw off the yoke of their unfeeling and brutal oppressors, and adopt an attire better suited to the dignity of the equal of man. In a short time the presence of the crowd became so great that the missionaries found it convenient to call a cab, which they entered amid much laughter, mingled with cheering.—Globe.

HEALTH WHERE 'TIS SOUGHT!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

THE TRUE OF ALL DISORDERS ARISE OF A LIVER AND STOMACH COMPLAINT.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Lovelace, dated Villa Abenzia Leghorn, 21st February, 1833.

To Professor Holloway.

SIR—Various circumstances prevented the possibility of my thanking you before this time for your politeness in sending me your Pills as you said. I now take this opportunity of sending you an order for the amount, and, at the same time, to add that your Pills have effected a cure of a disorder in my Liver and Stomach, which all the most eminent of the Faculty at home, and all over the continent had not been able to effect; nay, not even the waters of Carlsbad and Marienbad. I wish to have another keg and a Pot of the Ointment, in case any of my family should ever require either. your most obliged and obedient,

(Signed) ALDBOROUGH.
