WEDN'SDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 5, 1873 The Sailor Boy's Farewell.

Wait, wait, ye winds! till I repeat parting signal to the fleet Whose station is at home; Then waft the sea-boys simple prayer, And let it oft be whispered there, While in far climes I roam.

In spite of metal, spite of bulk, Soon may his cable slip; Yet, while the parting tear is moist, The flag of gratitude I'll hoist In duty to the ship. Farewell to mother ! first-class she !

And rigged me, fore and aft :

And keep her hull in good repair, To tow tho smaller craft." Farewell to sister! Lovely yacht! But whether she'll be "manned" or not, cannot now feresee;

Well-found in stores of truth and love, And take her under lee. Farewell to Georgie! The "jolly boat! And all the little craft affoat In home's delightful bay : When they arrive at sailing age, May wisdom give the weather-guage,

And guide them on their way. Farewell to all on life's rude main ! Perhaps we ne'er shall meet again, Through stress of stormy weather; But, summened by the Board above. We'll harber in the port of Love, And all be moored together.

WORKING MEN.

The noblest men I know on earth. Are men whose hands are brown with Who, backed by no ancestral graves, Hew down the wood and till the soil, And thereby win a prouder fame Than follows king or warrior's name.

The sweat upon their henest brows, The royal stamp and seal of God! And brighter are their drops of sweat Than diamonds in a corenet. God bless the noble working men! Who rear the cities of the plain

Who dig the mines and build the ships,

And drive the commerce of the main ;

Have wrought the glory of all lands!

We find some curious correspondence in the London Church Times upon the subject of desecrated churches. One writer gives the story of an aged priesty who told him that in the year 1500 he was sent to a certain church in the West Riding to perform "the monthly fluty;" but that he was peremptorily warned away by the church warden's wife, who refused to have the service performed that day because her turkey was sitting in the pulpit. On another occasion, in another church, the service was suspended because the farmer's wheat was stacked in the nave, and he had forgotten that it was church Sunday. A parish church at Heene was bit by bit allowed to fall into decay, and was finally pulled down because of its danger to pigs and sheep. The stone of this chapel was worked up into the adjoining buildings. John Rayne, Vicar of Blyth, complains that there is a remnant of a Benedictine church near his own, which has been shamefully dispeiled, the neighboring proprietor having carried off a part of the nave. and converted it into an avairy for parrots, cockatoos, and canaries. Here is something even worse. At Crawford, in Middlesex, the church, as often happens, is situated in the park. The fellowing notice appeared at the gate: "The road is only public to the parish church for the performance of divine service, and persons trespassing at any other time will be presecuted.
