WEDN'SDAY EVEN'G, APRIL 30, 1873. ONLY A HEART.

It is not a stone that will bruise, my lord, Nor is it a serpent to sting ; A thorn to rend, a sword to pierce, Or any vile, poisonous thing.

Bravely done like a gentleman, Turn on your heel and go. Only a heart! What harm is done? Let it bleed in the dust and moan ;

Only a heart, a woman's heart,

Step on it ! crush it ! so !

Or stifle its auguish as best it may, Or stiffen, my lord, into stone. Only a heart ! it was fresh and young, And tender and warm, I know ;

As pure as the spirit of chastity, My lord, and it leved you so. But nothing is lost; let it die, my lord, Let its death be quick or slow;

We find them where . we go. aly a heart ' do not fear, my lord ; Nobody on earth is near To come to the cry of the wounded thing. And God is too far to hear.
