CAPTAIN JACK AND THE RED

MODOCS. AIR--"CAPTAIN JINKS."

I'm Captain Jack of the red Modocs, Who grimly at the government mocks, Enthroned among the lava rocks; For I'm the pest of the army. I've led them many a weary dance, Weary dance, weary dance;

For a dirty, savage, red nuisance,

I'm an awful pest to the army.

Killing and scalping, and drinking rum, I always thought the best of fun, Till the soldiers came ; then eff I run, So as not to be caught by the army. "Don't take his home!" the peace men cried, The peace men cried, the peace men cried;

And hard and fast the hands they tied Of those cruel men of the army. I toled them to my mountain lair : The peace men led them into the snare, In which I managed to "take the hair" Of the bravest men in the army.

The country then did wildly shout. Did wildly shout, did wildly shout, "Let these Indian scoundrels becleaned o By the boys in blue of the army.

In the vengeful hands of the army. That have torn the braves of the army.
