A THOUGHT OR TWO-No. 40. GENEROSITY alias MISAPPLICATION.

Just a word on the subject, kind reader, before we part. Properly speaking there is but one kind of generosity; but by being less particu lar about correctness we have two. The first is the voluntary giving to another of ourselves; the second is giving to another that which we don't want ourselves.

first is genuine generosity, and is very scarce; the second is bogus, but very

This bogus generosity is largely practiced by many people in the material things of this life, but perhaps far more so in connection with things which are not material in their nature. For e.g., when we go to shurch and hear a good practical sermon, in which are some very "c'ose fits" and very "hard hits," how natural it is for us to say either audibly afterwards or inaudibly at the time, "I know whom that fits!" at the same time generously appropriating said part of the sermon some person we know, whom we think it will suit, while at the same time we are just as much in need of it ourselves, (and like enough the same person is kindly sharing it out to us!) Or if in our reading we discover anything especially suitable, as we think, for some particular individual we are acquainted with, we at once conclude that Toledo, Buffalo, Syracuse, and other and possibly we should not have far to an open-backed shirt, and a coat buttoned travel to find one !

This kind of generosity, otherwise The character and conduct of the Tory "misapplication," is possessed by a great donald's brother in law, goes to England stances of this are continually occurring sented with a large moose head and ant-One person supposes a minister or author lers, also two cariboo heads and antiers, means a certain person in his remarks, across the Atlantic in charge of the Wimand foolishly, perhaps maliciously, ex- bledon team. presses himself to that effect.
