For beauty as bright as a star ; The city prepared of our God Hath dwellers within it I know-Familiar its streets are now trod, By those I have loved here below Just over the mountain it lies, And often in visions I see The house of my Father arise-The home of my kindred and me.

I journey by faith o'er the hills, I wind through the valleys below, Sing 'mid the storms and the ills Which pilgrims must suffer and know O shall I some bright sunny morn, Look down from the summit of bliss, A pilamin to angelhood born, Escaped to that country from this ! Just over the mountain it lies

And there is the home of my heart

The sight of it gladdens my eyes, And biddeth my sorrows depart. And shall I the city behold, Whose builder and maker is God; Whose wall are of jasper and gold, Whose streets by the angels are trod Shall I through the emerald gate, From earth and its desert of sin, Pass on to my angel estate, With Jesus forever shut in !
