Mysterious Murder in Memphis.

A mysterious murder was committed at 199 Monroe street, Memphis, on Sunday morring, the victim being Frank Moore, a well-known citizen. About 3 o'clock his wife was awakened by a noise resembling persons struggling; and called to her husband, who was standing near the bed, to know what was the matter. He replied moment afterwards fell heavily to the Appl yto floor. She alarmed the neighbors, who came in and found him lying insensible on the floor with a pistol wound in the head. Mr. Moore never spoke again, but lingered until five e'clock, when he expirwindow down stairs was raised, and a wardrobe door in the bedroom was open, which Mrs. Moore states was shut when they retired. The general impression is that the murder was committed by a burglar who had been discovered in the room by Moore, but still neither Mrs. Moore nor a young man sleeping down stairs heard any report of a pistol. inquest was was held, but nothing further than the facts given was elicited. them of the murder.

A despatch announces the arrest at Provo. Utah, of a woman believed to be the notorious Katie Bender. The record of her crimes constitutes her one of the most deliberate, brutal, and dexterous of all murderers of either sex. She and her sisters some time ago murdered a traveller in Kansas. This victim was asleep in their house, where he had obtained lodging, and lying with his head almost touching a curtain which formed a partition. One or more of the Bender sisters drove an axe into his skull, and he died instantly. This murder led to the discovery of an incredibly large number of other murders by poison by this family. But they escaped the vengeance of the law. would be a source of universal satisfaction if the person arrested in Utah should prove to be Katie Bender.

PRESERVING RAILROAD TIES. - A Dresden engineer proposes a method for increasing the durability of railroad ties, by which, he considers, they may be made to last four times as long as at present. The sleepers, of whatever kind of wood, are first allowed to dry for some time in the air, then are artificially dried in a hot chamber. They are next introduced, while hot, into an impregnation apparatus containing heated coal tar, where they are impregnated thoroughly under pressure. Then they are coated with sifted sand or coal ashes and allowed to dry. Every fissure is carefully filled; the nails used in tixing the sleepers are first dippel in hot coal tar, and any part of the work which may be exposed is carefully coated. The inventor further states that wood thus prepared has been also used for house building purposes, and with excellent results.
