MR. WHIG: A few days ago I made one of an excursion party to Alexandria Bay in the steamer Maud, on board of which was a tance, and the farther off the better. But the music of this particular Band would have been endurable, were it not for its Big Drum. Its execrable noise, its OFR SAILOR'S ON THE SEA-Song everlasting bang, bang, bang, distracting U by F. If I malked to the front part of the Promenade deck, where the Band was posted, the loudness of the Big Drum spoilt the melody; and if I went to the after part, nothing could be heard at all but the tormenting bang! bang!! bang!!! I was annoyed and lost my temper, became savage, and snapt at all who came agross me. thought of two remedies; the one to seize hold of an axe, and split open the head of the drum, and then gather quarters from the excursionists to pay the damage; the other to catch the Big Drummer-he was but a little fellow-by the scruff of the neck, and chuck him into the St. Lawrence, fully satisfied that, in this case, killing would be no murder. I attempted neither-sulked and nursed my wrath, mentally resolving never to go on a Steamboat Excursion again, unless as-
